Hanson urges hiring architect for police unit

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has recommended the Arlington Heights Village Board hire an architect soon to plan a new public safety building so the village can apply for full funding of the building under a new federal public works program.

To be eligible for funding under the $2 billion Public Works Employment Act recently passed by Congress, the village must have "working drawings" of the project.

The village board has never voted to build new headquarters for the police department, but in May authorized the finance committee to begin interviewing architects for the project. It narrowed the field by two, but the board agreed to postpone hiring an architect until a new police chief was named.

Since Robert P. Derks has been hired to replace L.W. Calderwood and will assume his duties Oct. 18, Hanson now is recommending the board proceed with the public safety building.

HANSON ALSO IS recommending the board reconsider the need for hiring outside consultants to study the spatial needs of the building because Derks has extensive experience in planning police facilities.

Hanson has urged the board to approve construction of a new public safety building because of insufficient space for police headquarters in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

A study conducted last summer by two members of the police department recommended construction of a 50,000-square-foot building on village-owned land directly east of the municipal building on Sigwalt Street. The estimated cost of the building is $2.5 million, Hanson said.

The $2 billion public works act is aimed at reducing the nation's unemployment rate, so the village's application will be judged on the basis of the unemployment rate in the area and the effect the proposed project will have on that rate.

IF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS is successful in its bid for the government grant, 100 per cent funding will be provided.

Projects up to $5 million may be funded by the grant.

The village board must authorize architectural plans for the project before applying for the grant because one condition of the program is that construction begin within 90 days after an application is approved.

The village cannot submit its application for the funds because Congress has not officially appropriated the funds, which will be administered by the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce.

$1.3 million issue on ballot Saturday

Voters to tell park improvements' fate

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two stories explaining Saturday's Arlington Heights Park District referendum. Today's story looks at the proposed $1.3 million bond issue for general park improvements. The park district also is seeking approval of a $1.5 million bond issue to develop the former Nike site into a golf course.

by NANCY GOTLER

The Arlington Heights Park District Saturday will ask voters to approve a $1.3 million bond issue to fund improvements at 22 park sites.

If passed, the project would cost the average taxpayer with a home valued at $66,658 an estimated $5.60 annually.

Included in the plans are:

- Complete development of Centennial, Ivy Hill East, Northgate and Surrey Ridge Parks for $360,000;
- Remodeling or additions to fieldhouses at Hasbrook, Heritage, Pioneer and Recreation parks for $265,000;
- Lighting of athletic fields at Centennial and Recreation parks and the Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin for $265,000;
- Building 17 tennis courts at Carefree, Centennial, Dryden, Greenbrier, Ivy Hill East and Surrey Ridge parks for $170,000;
- Walkway and play area lighting at 15 sites for $127,000;
- Lighting of five existing tennis courts at Forest View Park for $50,000.

A contingency fund of $58,000 will pay for architects' fees and miscellaneous items.

Park commissioners say the improvements will be completed within 12 to 18 months if the referendum is approved.

The lighted athletic fields will be used for softball, baseball, football, and soccer games and ice skating in the winter.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS is the only community in the area without lighted sports fields which prompts many adult teams to pay to play in other towns, according to a brochure put out by the park district.

Electricity for the lighted athletic fields and tennis courts would be paid for by the teams and individuals who use them through registration or entry fees.

The four undeveloped park sites — Centennial, Ivy Hill East, Northgate and Surrey Ridge — will have play areas, walkways, athletic fields and landscaping. All but Northgate will have tennis courts.

Lighting walkways, play areas and athletic fields is supported by Comr. Jacqueline J. Gruenewald as a deterrent to vandalism.

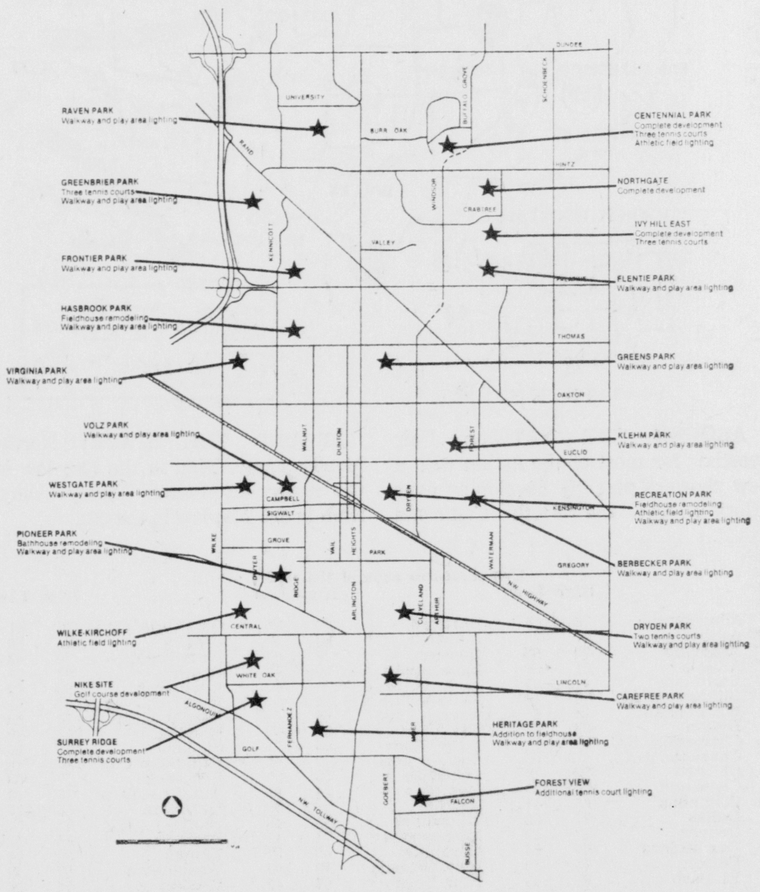
"By spending money for the lights we could, in the long run, save money," she said. "Because we could curb vandalism, cut down damage repair costs and generate revenue through night play."

THE PARK DEVELOPMENT item was added to the referendum last month. Although some residents and commissioners said they felt it was tacked on to balance development of the golf course at the south end of the village, Comr. Robert Rohleder said, "This is not giving in to the north side"

"This entire second question (on the referendum) is there at the request of the public," said Comr. Kathryn Graham. "It's not something the park board has thought up. The people asked for it. The park district didn't write all those letters. Now it's time for people to put their money where their mouth is."

If the referendum fails, commissioners have said the improvements will probably be postponed until a later bond issue referendum, which could take years.

The last park improvement referendum was approved March 1, 1975, and included a $537,000 bond issue for park maintenance and construction of an equipment garage.



RESIDENTS of the Arlington Heights Park District Saturday will decide whether $1.3 million in general obligation bonds will be spent for developments at 22 park sites shown on the map.

Disease center to track flu epidemics this winter

ATLANTA (UPI) — On the eve of a massive natonwide effort to immunize 200 million Americans against swine influenza, the national Center for Disease Control Wednesday readied an unprecedented surveillance network to keep track of flu epidemics this winter.

For the first time, national influenza surveillance will include a program aimed at detecting the "silent seeding" of flu virus — the unrecognized spread of the disease by persons who may not be ill, or only mildly ill.

With such a warning, and before there is widespread illness, the CDC said the possiblity exists that quick, population-wide vaccinations in the area could control the spread of influenza.

Dr. Richard O'Brien, CDC Epidemiological Service Intelligence officer, said that the center's laboratories have processed 6,000 specimens from health facilities around the country looking for influenza virus.

So far, the search has turned up the usual flu strains, such as the A-Victoria which was prevalent last year, and the B-Hong Kong, but none of the potent swine strain.

The "silent seeding," or early warning search, is being conducted by 40 World Health Organization collaborating laboratories, 10 federally sponsored labs in this country, 58 hospitals and clinics and 35 "sentinel" physicians, the latter being doctors especially assigned to report influenza activity to the CDC.

The surveillance for early signs of influenza is being concentrated in primary health care centers which have child health facilities.

The swine flu inoculation program gets under way Oct. 1. The CDC said some vaccine supplies already have been shipped to all 50 states with more on the way. Don Berreth, CDC public information officer, said the four vaccine manufacturers have been provided shipping instructions for delivery of 24 million doses on or before Oct. 1.

An immunization clinic using vaccine for the protection of high risk groups against both swine and A-Victoria influenza was to begin op-

Burglars hit trainer's track room

A burglar stole $5,000 cash and a radio and camera valued at $170 from a room at the Arlington Park Race Track Wednesday morning, police reported.

Police said a burglar pried out a door jamb to gain entry to the room of Glenn M. Stanchfield in the race track annex of Arlington Park between 5:30 and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Stanchfield, of North Miami, Fla., returned from work as a trainer at the race track at 8:30 a.m. and discovered his room ransacked and drawers rifled, police said.

Hospital hall named for Lattof

The public auditorium at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, has been named in honor of Nicholas M. Lattof.

Announcement of the dedication was made Wednesday night at a testimonial dinner for the Northwest suburban civic, business and church leader by Robert Bukowski, chairman of the hospital board.

The Lattof testimonial dinner at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel was attended by 332 Northwest suburban residents.

Placques citing Lattof for "extraordinary community service," were presented by Earl Johnson, executive secretary of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and Robert Y. Paddock, chairman of the testimonial planning committee.

Testimonial addresses were offered by Stephen Jurco, chairman of the board of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines; Dr. Harold Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston; Carl Mees, director of the Cook Extension Service. The Rev. Robert Gish, pastor of Southminster United Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, David G. Rummel, regional manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division; Jack Hughes, president of Littlefuse Inc., Des Plaines; and Herman Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA, Palatine.

Crane refutes mail charges

by KURT BAER
and STEVE BROWN

Campaign aides to U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, Wednesday provided The Herald with documentation substantiating their report that a recent mass mailing had not been done at government expense.

Crane's aides also reported that they were filing a complaint against the congressman's Democratic opponent, Edwin L. Frank of Hoffman Estates, with the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, charging Frank with misconduct.

The Herald reported Wednesday that questions had been raised about a letter from U.S. Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, soliciting support for Crane. Although the letter was mailed in envelopes bearing McClure's franked mail symbol, they were paid for and should have carried a meter cancellation.

THE DOCUMENTATION provided by Crane's staff includes receipts from the U.S. Postal Service showing the $6,308 was paid in advance to cover the postage cost.

Frank said Wednesday that he had asked the U.S. Attorney's office and the Federal Election Commission to investigate the propriety of the mailing.

Richard Williamson, Crane's administrative assistant, said requests have been made to the U.S. Attorney General's office and Federal Election Commission asking the agencies to expedite the investigation.

"We are also filing a complaint charging Frank with using unfair campaign practices in this matter," Williamson said. The Unfair Campaign Practices Commission is a private agency that monitors campaigns and has established a procedure for reviewing complaints filed by candidates.

Several representative said some of the McClure letters may not have been sent through a postage meter. The Herald obtained a copy of one envelope without the meter stamp.

THE DOCUMENTS provided by Crane's staff show 17,143 were sent to 12th Congressional district residents and 23,943 were sent to persons outside the district.

Alan Baldridge, the direct mail consultant who prepared the mailing for Crane, said he was "upset" by Frank's charges.

"McClure and Crane are public figures and may be fair game, but Frank is questioning my integrity too and I am contemplating filing a slander suit against him," Baldridge added.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Attorney's office and the Federal Elections Commission were unable to determine if there would be an investigation of Frank's allegations.

Wheeling board target of CCPA

Wheeling police will work to unseat incumbent village board members during the April 1977, municipal election despite a village policy prohibiting such activity, a police spokesman said. Lawrence Parks, chairman of the Wheeling chapter of the Combined Counties Police Assn. Wednesday said he will actively campaign for candidates during the April election and will urge his fellow police officers to do the same. "We will actively work to get that village board removed. We've asked for open negotiations and the board will only negotiate under that resolution (a collective bargaining policy). We can't do it under that." Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle said the board is willing to negotiate, but that employe groups first must seek recognition as an internal employe bargaining unit.

Testing station opening delayed

The planned opening Friday of a Northwest suburban driver testing station near Schaumburg's Woodfield Shopping Center has been delayed "about 10 days" to allow for the delivery of furniture to the facility. An aide to Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett said the testing station at 1231 E. Golf Rd., will open "as soon as the furniture arrives — in about 10 days." The furniture is being shipped from Springfield and is expected to arrive "about Oct. 10." The center will handle an estimated 700 applicants each day and will employ 26 persons.

Off-duty deputies to patrol

Off-duty Cook County sheriff's deputies will provide extra patrols in Maine Township beginning Friday. The Maine Township board of auditors has approved a contract with the county calling for two off-duty officers to patrol unincorporated areas in uniform every night. The county police already provide protection in the area, but residents have complained that service is inadequate because of increasing vandalism and crime. The township has budgeted $15,000 to pay for the additional patrols through the end of the fiscal year, Feb. 28, 1977.

Harrises indicted for Hearst kidnaping

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris were indicted Wednesday for the kidnaping of Patricia Hearst, who spent a year and a half in hiding with them.

A grand jury in Oakland voted the indictments hours after Miss Hearst's attorneys filed a motion for a new trial in her bank robbery conviction, charging that the government withheld evidence that would have helped her defense.

The Harrises already had been charged with the kidnaping, but the indictments speed up the judicial process and permit prosecutors to proceed directly to trial without preliminary hearings.

The grand jury indictment, returned after the panel spent 2½ days hearing testimony from 51 witnesses including Miss Hearst, charged the Harrises with kidnaping the newspaper heiress from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974; kidnaping Peter Benenson, whose car was used in the Hearst kidnaping; and assault on Miss Hearst's then-fiance, Steven Weed, who was severely beaten. They also were accused of assault with a deadly weapon on five neighbors who witnessed the kidnaping and were shot at by the fleeing abductors, and false imprisonment of another neighbor who came to Miss Hearst's aid at the time of the kidnaping.

Superior Court Judge Robert K. Barber set bail at $300,000 apiece for the Harrises.

Miss Hearst testified during her bank robbery trial that Harris was one of three persons who burst into her apartment and took her hostage, and that Mrs. Harris drove a getaway car.

Miss Hearst and the Harrises were captured on Sept. 18, 1975, in two San Francisco hideouts after spending a year and a half together in the Bay area, Los Angeles, and hideouts in New York and Pennsylvania. Miss Hearst said after her arrest that she stayed with the couple only out of fear.

District Attorney Lowell Jensen, who presented the case against the Harrises, said he was satisfied with the grand jury's action.

The indictments eliminate the need for a preliminary hearing against the couple, which had been scheduled for Oct. 7 in Berkeley Municipal Court.

In San Francisco, Miss Hearst's attorneys in their motion for a new trial charged prosecutors with withholding evidence that would have supported her innocence.

The chief prosecutor in the celebrated two-month trial denied the charge.

Defense attorney Albert Johnson filed the motion based on "newly discovered evidence" that a witness at the trial had wrongly identified Miss Hearst as the one who pointed a gun at him following a shooting incident in Los Angeles.

Miss Hearst was sentenced last Friday to seven years in prison for the robbery of a San Francisco bank branch on April 15, 1974, 10 weeks after her kidnaping by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Watchdog network to keep track of flu epidemics erating Friday in Indianapolis.

To monitor influenza activity across the nation and to keep tabs on the millions of doses of the vaccine flowing to the 50 state health departments, the CDC has converted one of its large auditoriums for use as a surveillance center and installed a computer.

Dr. Arthur Curtis III, chief of the information services group in the surveillance center, said 3,500 reporting stations, compared to 1,200 used last year, will report influenza activity and vaccine use to the CDC. These include hospitals, doctors offices, industries, businesses, health clinics, and schools.

Carter says his paid trips 'different'

Jimmy Carter said Wednesday President Ford should open up and "have a frank discussion with the American public" about his campaign financing and the golf trips he accepted from corporations when he was a congressman. "The best way to resolve the questions for Mr. Ford, who is accused of certain practices, to have a frank discussion with the American public through the news media which so far he has failed to do," Carter told a news conference in Plains, Ga.

Carter also acknowledged that while Georgia governor he had ridden a Coca-Cola plane on a domestric trip, had ridden a Lockheed plane to South America in 1971 or 1972, and took a trip to Europe in 1973 in which the local expenses were paid by the government of England and in part by the Israeli government. But he said those were strictly business trips, and that was different from Ford accepting favors from corporations.

Ford hikes military employes' pay

President Ford Wednesday ordered a 4.83 per cent pay raise for both federal civilian and military employes effective on the first pay period, or after Oct. 1.

About 1.4 million civilians and 2 million military personnel are affected by Ford's action. The White House announcement said the increase will vary with general grade from 4.24 per cent at GS-5 to 7.92 per cent in the lower step grades of GS-15. Under the law, the rates of basic pay and certain allowances for certain military personnel will also increase by a total of 4.83 per cent.

Belenko tells Soviets he's staying

Defector Viktor I. Belenko personally told Soviet representatives in Washington this week he has decided to remain in the United States, State Department officials disclosed Wednesay. Belenko's whereabouts have been kept secret since he was granted asylum in the United States after flying a supersonic Russian MIG25 fighter to Japan Sept. 6. The Soviet Union has charged that Japan and the United States connived to compel Belenko, 28, to seek refuge in America.

A State Department spokesman said Russian officials last week requested a meeting with Belenko, and the former Soviet Air Force Lieutenant agreed to speak with them. Belenko told the Soviet representatives at a State Department meeting Tuesday that he had decided to remain and was doing so of his own free will.

Emergency in Youngstown would be tough

Because of a strike by policemen and firemen, Youngstown, Ohio, would have a tough time protecting itself against a crime or fire emergency, the police and fire chiefs said Wednesday. The city's safety force of 543 — 283 policemen and 260 firemen — was shrunk to 41. Twelve of 13 fire stations were closed because of the strike by city employes demanding higher pay. The walkout that began Monday also curtailed garbage pickups. "I don't know what would happen if we had a serious fire," said Fire Chief George Panno.

Mideast conditions 'ripe' for solution

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Wednesday that conditions are now ripe for "comprehensive solutions" in the Middle East, signalling an end to his step-by-step diplomacy. Speaking to a group of 18 Arab ambassadors and foreign ministers at a lunch at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations, Kissinger said, "We believe that conditions now exist that make comprehensive solutions a useful approach (in the Middle East).

Italy seals off Arsenic area

Italian authorities Wednesday sealed off a sparsely populated zone on the southern Adriatic coast which may have been contaminated by a toxic cloud containing arsenic which killed several sheep. The gas cloud formed Sunday when a cooling pipe used in the production of ammonia burst at the ANIC petrochemical plant. ANIC officials said almost all the gas remained inside the plant but workers' representatives claimed about 200 cubic yards escaped into the atmosphere. The cloud, which soon evaporated, may have deposited particles of arsenious anhydride over a 6.2 square mile area, officials said. Doctors said the substance is harmful only if inhaled or ingested.

Conservatives back Rhodesia peace plan

Prime Minister Ian Smith, fearing a collapse in efforts to give Rhodesia black majority rule and end the guerrilla war, Wednesday persuaded conservatives in his ruling Rhodesia Front party to support Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's plan for peace, party officials said. Britain said it was ready to convene a conference within two weeks, "anywhere in southern Africa acceptable to all the parties involved," to form an interim government of blacks and whites to rule the breakaway colony. The "frontline" presidents of black Africa insisted that Britain should take charge of the move to form an interim government because they rejected Smith's version of the Kissinger peace plan.

Congress races toward adjournment

Fuel-stingy engine veto upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted to raise the unemployment insurance tax, the House adopted stringent new rules on federal lobbying and another of President Ford's vetoes was upheld as Congress Wednesday pushed toward adjournment.

But Congressional leaders appeared divided on whether the 94th Congress would meet its targeted adjournment date on Saturday.

Acting Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said prospects of finishing by the end of the week were "still good" but Assistant Senate GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin expressed some pessimism.

"I'm not right now," Griffin replied when asked if he was optimistic about finishing Saturday. But he said in the final days of a session, logjams can quickly break.

President Ford could hold the key.

Democratic Congressional leaders have decided to stay in session past the weekend to prevent a possible pocket veto on a $3.7 billion appropriations bill for public works jobs and an authorization for the extension of a program which provides 260,000 public service jobs.

Ford told Byrd by telephone Wednesday he will not reach a decision until Congress sends him an extension of the revenue sharing program. Both the House and Senate have yet to act on a compromise version of that bill.

Byrd said Ford told him "he needs that (the revenue sharing measure) to really make a decision" on the jobs bills, Byrd added "he'd like to have that first."

Byrd said "I have the impression once he gets the revenue sharing bill, he will either veto (the jobs bills) or tell us he will sign it."

The House, 293 to 102, voted to override Ford's veto of a $100 million project to develop a fuel-stingy and clean automobile engine. But the Senate sustained the veto on a 41-35 vote, 10 short of the two-thirds needed.

The Senate approved, 70-6, a bill which would increase the unemployment insurance tax and reduce, from 65 to 39 weeks, the amount of time a person could get unemployment insurance benefits. It has to go to conference with a House-passed bill.

The bill would require states to provide temporary unemployment compenation coverage for nearly 8 million state and local government employes. But it would deny permanent coverage to the nation's one million domestic and one million farm workers now covered by a temporary program.

The House — meeting in the early morning hours — adopted legislation which for the first time in 30 years imposes strict federal lobbying regulations. The vote was an overwhelming 307-34 but it will have to go to conference.

In addition, the House gave final Congressioanl approval of a three-year, $4.8 billion extension of economic development programs aimed at helping areas of high unemployment.

But legislation granting up to $250 in tax credits for college tuition died quietly in the House. The bill was killed when Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., objected to a request by House Ways and Means chairman Al Ullman that the House go to conference with the Senate on the minor tax bill to which the tuition credit had been attached by the Senate.

According to House sources, the move was intended to kill the bill without actually bringing the popular measure to a House vote. In an election year, it would have been difficult to vote against such a measure.

Syrians capture 3 Palestinian towns

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian forces sliced through Lebanon's central mountains from three directions Wednesday and captured at least three key Palestinian-held towns after battling guerrillas through the streets.

Palestinian defenders retreated, vowing to "fight until the last man."

A Palestinian military spokesman conceded the loss of Aintoura and Metein, two key mountain towns 19 miles northeast of Beirut, to Syrian troops backed by tank and surface-to-surface missile batteries Wednesday night.

A third key town, Hammana, five miles further south, was also later reported to have fallen when Syrian troops stormed it from the north and the east and battled their way through it in fierce street fighting.

The loss of the three towns left two more, Qurnayel and Falougha, surrounded. At last report, they were both under heavy attack and might already have fallen.

The Christian Phalangist Party, whose forces took part in the Aintoura and Metein attacks, reported the towns had already been taken but this was not confirmed by the Palestinians.

"The battle to liberate the mountains is over," a Phalangist official said. The Christian Phalangists had boasted they would drive the Palestinians from their entrenched mountain positions within three days of the offensive launched by Syrian tanks and troops Tuesday.

A Palestinian spokesman said Syrian troop and tank reinforcements brought into battle after nightfall had turned the tide against them after defenders held off advances during a day of artillery sparring in which shells fell at a rate of one every 15 seconds.

Humphrey due in hospital for bladder tumor tests

• Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., will enter Bethesda Naval Hospital this weekend for "extensive tests" to determine if surgery is needed to remove tumors in his bladder. "In his regular checkup earlier this month, the bladder tumors (which he has been subject to) have shown a change in character which may require surgery," a statement issued by his office said. In 1973, Humphrey underwent X-ray treatments for what was then termed "carsinoma in situ" — a condition which some — but not all — physicians consider a pre-cancerous state.

7 cited for failing to tell finances

Seven North and Northwest suburban political groups or candidates were among those named by the Illinois election officials as failing to file full financial reports. The local groups, along with 47 other candidates or political organizations around the state, were ordered by the Illinois Board of Elections to appear at hearings early next month to review the matter. Franklin Lunding, chairman of the elections board, said that groups or candidates who failed to comply with the law face civil and criminal penalties of up to $500 fines and jail sentences.

Among the suburban organizations cited by the state is the Democratic Club of Wilmette and Kenilworth, a group formed by supporters of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to rival maverick New Trier Township Democratic Committeeman Lynn Williams. The board also named seven committees formed around the state to collect money for Gov. Daniel Walker's unsuccessful effort to win the March primary.

Most of the area individuals cited by the board were also beaten in the primary election but one committee, Citizens Committee to Elect Alvin J. Marks, was named. Other area candidates and groups named by the board include attorney William Jacobs of Des Plaines, who unsuccessfully sought nomination as a Republican candidate for judge of the Cook County Circuit Court; committees representing Anne Marzullo, who lost in the 4th District Republican House primary; John Conteduca who lost in the 5th District Democratic House primary; and Duane Walter, who lost in the 2nd District Republican House primary.

Medic linked to fraud slain

A doctor indicted on federal Medicaid fraud charges this week was found Wednesday with his throat slashed, dead of an apparent suicide, police said. Chicago police homicide commander Joseph DiLeonardi said Dr. William Guthrie, 69, apparently plunged from his ninth floor room at the YMCA Hotel after he sustained a throat wound. Guthrie had been employed as a physician in a chain of medical clinics operated by Eugene Ziperstein, 33, and was among 16 persons and medical companies indicted with Ziperstein in an alleged multi-million dollar Medicaid fraud scheme Tuesday.

Records at the hotel show Guthrie had lived in a low-rent room since Oct. 21, 1975. Employes and other residents told police they thought he was destitute because of the way he lived. State Public Aid Dept. records showed he collected $59,000 from the state last year for treating welfare patients.

Groups kept out of ICC meeting

Security guards and secretaries turned away representatives of citizens groups Wednesday when they tried to crash a private meeting of the Illinois Commerce Commission. "At issue is the question of whether the commerce commission will continue to bar the public from its meetings," said Bernard Willow, chairman of Public Action, an activist group. "We shall return in two weeks to attend the ICC's next meeting in Chicago. The hearings of the commission are open but when the time comes for 'horse trading' the commissioners act in private." It was not known what the commissioners were discussing in the private meeting. Among requests pending before the ICC are petitions for increases ranging from 15 to 22 per cent from Downstate electrical suppliers.

4 indicted in murder case

Four Chicago men were identified Wednesday in Kane County indictments linking them to the bludgeoning murder of Lori Bolger. The body of the 16-year-old South Elgin girl was found June 22 on the outskirts of Elgin. James Martin, 21, and Robert Ikhtiari, 18, were indicted on murder charges. Obstruction of justice charges were placed against John Rowe, 18, and Gary Miller, 22. All are Chicago residents. In addition, authorities said they had a warrant for the arrest of a 16-year-old juvenile on obstruction-of-justice charges.

Firing of Niles teachers delayed

The week-long teachers' strike in Niles Township involving 7,000 students moved into court Wednesday. Two fathers of students in the strikebound schools filed a suit Tuesday in an attempt to end the strike and prevent the board of education from firing the 267 striking teachers in Dist. 219. The seven-member Niles board voted to fire the teachers but also approved a resolution calling for reinstatement of any teacher who returns to work by 8 a.m. Thursday. A hearing on the suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court. was delayed by Circuit Court Judge Francis T. Delaney because teachers and the school board agreed to another negotiating session Wednesday night.

In the Pittsfield area, meantime, teachers went on strike, closing schools for some 2,000 students.

Police seek man in Quincy blasts

Police issued an arrest warrant Wednesday for a Quincy construction worker on murder and arson charges in a series of bomb blasts that led to the death of one man and the injury of another. Quincy sheriff's Capt. John Harberts said the warrant was issued about 2 p.m. for the arrest of Robert Motley, 37. "We've got him pretty well staked out," Harberts said midafternoon, "and we expect him in custody soon."

The warrant charged Motley with committing a forcible felony — arson — and with causing the death of Kenneth Foster, 45, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., an Army bomb expert who was in Quincy to investigate explosions that occurred Monday night and Tuesday. Another man, Ernest Arenz, 52, a state arson investigator from Beardstown, Ill., was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Blessing Hospital Wednesday. The blasts occurred during an overnight visit to Quincy by Republican vice presidential candidate Robert Dole, but there was no evidence Dole was the target of the blasts. Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., asked the FBI to investigate the blasts but the FBI said Wednesday bombings are the province of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms — not the FBI.

Lottery ticket sales up 13.7%

Illinois state lottery tickets sales increased 13.7 per cent in the game's second year of operations, Supt. Ralph F. Batch said Wednesday. Batch, in his second annual report, said the lottery topped $293 million in the 23 months it has been in operation. The period is from July 30, 1974, through June 30, 1976. Of the total, $133.5 million has been allotted to Illinois' general revenue funds. Another $3.1 million in unclaimed prizes also reverted to the state coffers.

"The Illinois Lottery continues to be the most efficient lottery in the nation with only 4.5 per cent of total revenues used for operational expenses, meaning 11 per cent more money is being returned to the state than required by the lottery law," he said. Batch said in the first 23 months, more than $1 billion has been awarded to more than 5 million winners. The figure includes 16 millionaires, two winners of $500,000, 12 of $400,000, 71 of $300,000 and 55 of $100,000.

Thompson says Howlett flip flopped on tax issue

by KURT BAER

James R. Thompson, Republican candidate for governor, charged Wednesday his opponent Michael J. Howlett has done a "flip flop" on taxes this year and cannot be trusted to keep his promise not to raise taxes if elected.

Thompson said Howlett, secretary of state, changed his position on the 8 to 5 ratio of corporate income taxes to individual income taxes in Ilinois.

In a January interview published in the Peoria Journal-Star, Howlett is quoted as opposing any change in the ratio.

But at a state AFL-CIO convention Sept. 21, Howlett said he would support a constitutional amendment to remove the ratio, Thompson said.

THOMPSON LEVELED the charge at a Chicago news conference called to explain his proposed changes in Illinois' Medicaid program. He outlined a four-point plan, that includes formation of a special investigation unit, to eliminate Medicaid fraud which he says amounts to $200 million to $300 million a year in Illinois.

Thompson said Howlett has changed his mind on the corporate tax ratio and also could change his mind on a tax increase.

"A week ago Mike Howlett made a very dramatic pledge not to increase taxes in his term as governor and if he did, he said he would end his political career and not run for reelection," Thompson said.

"You can't trust Howlett on taxes," Thompson said. "And if you can't trust Howlett on taxes, where can you trust him?"

HOWLETT, campaigning in Chicago area suburbs, said he favors changing the income tax ratio, as he told the AFL-CIO, because corporations are not paying their fair share of taxes. He said Thompson was in no position to criticize anyone for changing his mind.

"Any man who admits to changing his mind 47 times on aid to education is hardly in a position to challenge my positions," Howlett said. "My Republican opponent continues to play fast and loose with the truth."

A change in the 8 to 5 ratio generally is opposed by businessmen who fear corporations will wind up paying more income taxes. Thompson also opposes the change.

Thompson said Medicaid in Illinois is "a national disgrace." The greatest source of waste in the program is not welfare cheaters but fraud among health service providers, he said.

He called for:

- Implementing the federal government's computerized Medicaid information system in Illinois to process Medicaid bills and help control fraud.
- Improving the relationship between the Dept. of Public Aid and Medicaid service providers through a liaison program.
- Implementing a record book procedure that would require health care providers to document the Medicaid services they render.

Picketing faculty ask compromise

by JUDY JOBBITT

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 teachers will picket the administration center before school opens today to urge the board to "compromise" issues stalemating negotiations and to bring contract talks back to the bargaining table.

"We will be there to demonstrate that we want the board to compromise. We also will try to see the superintendent to ask his assistance to get negotiations going again," said David Kessler, union negotiator, Teachers will return to the classroom when classes begin.

The teachers voted Tuesday to picket the administration center and to pass out leaflets at PTA open houses next week.

KESSLER SAID the union is seeking Supt. Edward Grodsky's help as a "neutral party in negotiations. We would like him to convince the board that the only way to get us back to the table is for them to compromise."

Grodsky Wednesday would not comment on the request.

Contract talks broke down two weeks ago when the teachers walked away from the bargaining table, saying they would not return until the board agreed to include two board policies in the contract as part of a compromise measure.

The major stumbling block in negotiations has been the teachers' demand that the current merit system of pay be dropped for a standard salary schedule. The board wants to maintain the merit system but agreed to set up a committee to look into alternative methods of pay.

THE BOARD ALSO wants the committee to be permitted to include merit systems in its investigation and recommendations.

The teachers agreed to continue using the merit system this year and allow the committee to include it in the investigation in return for including board policies on maternity leave and releasing tenured teachers in the contract. The teachers also want to negotiate an early retirement policy.

The board has agreed to negotiate the early retirement policy but says the board policies are not negotiable.

In a letter sent to all teachers last week, the board stated that the union negotiators "suspended negotiation. We regret this and wish to reaffirm our continuing willingness to negotiate."

THE LETTER STATES that the board's reduction in force policy for releasing teachers has been called "more than fair" by union leaders and that the maternity leave policy is "a matter covered by federal legislation. Why is this an issue?"

The board stated that it "will not negotiate away matters that impinge on the board's legal, financial and moral responsibilities."

Kessler said union officials believe they have "compromised as far as we can" and will not continue negotiations until the board expresses a willingness to include these policies in the contract.

He said the union discussed other actions that might be taken by the teachers to force the board to compromise if the picketing and leaflet distribution are not effective. Kessler refused to release the details of other actions considered until the union can measure the results of the first two actions.

He said the union has not discussed a strike.

Events set for fire prevention week

Special demonstrations at schools and open houses at Arlington Heights fire stations are planned next week in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week.

Members of the Arlington Heights Fire Prevention Bureau will visit more than 30 schools next week, Fire Chief John Hayden said. A clown and "Engine 22," a miniature fire engine, will highlight many of the demonstrations.

Fire equipment also will be taken to the schools, he said.

THERE WILL BE open houses at the four Arlington Heights fire stations from 5 to 9 p.m. Oct. 8 and from 1 to 5 p.m. Oct. 9. Special tours also may be arranged by calling 253-2340.

Arlington Heights fire stations are located at 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., 709 N. Arlington Heights Rd., 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd., and 3330 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

A special display of fire department vehicles and equipment is planned from 9 a.m. to noon Oct. 9 at Northwest Trust and Savings Co., 331 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Fire drills will be conducted at schools Monday and Tuesday, followed by displays, demonstratons and talks by members of the Fire Prevention Bureau, Lt. Daniel Raupp said.

"Learn not to burn" is the theme of fire prevention week and there will be special emphasis placed on teaching fire safety to younger children, he said.

POINTS THAT will be stressed include:

- Don't play with matches.
- Don't run when clothes are on fire. Drop to the ground and roll.
- Don't hide under beds or in closets when there is a fire.

Parents also will be encouraged to conduct fire drills.

"The only way you can judge the effectiveness of these programs is on the lower rates of incidence. In Arlington Heights, we have a minimal number of fires caused by children playing with matches," Raupp said.

Correction

The proposed $1.5 million golf course at Wilke and Central roads, which Arlington Heights Park District residents will vote on Saturday, should generate $200,000 profit by its third year of operation.

The Herald incorrectly stated Wednesday that the third year profit would be $20,000.

Pupils have no trouble learning in Oakton 'factory'

Koehnline ideas make nontraditional school

By December 1969, William A. Koehnline had been a part of two new community colleges and he "felt ready" for a community college presidency.

The original Oakton College Board of Trustees also thought Koehnline was ready, and on Dec. 16, 1969, selected him from among 150 applicants to head the new college.

"I came here with an inspiration, with a cluster of ideas that I hoped could be made to work together," Koehnline says.

THOSE IDEAS included organizing Oakton differently from the traditional department method used by most colleges, integrating the counseling staff with the rest of the faculty and eliminating the "F" grade given for failing a course.

Oakton schedules different events for different persons, giving each an opportunity to demonstrate abilities in varied areas of interest.

"We have given up altogether the notion of a uniform product or a single product," Koehnline says. "We have to find out what their objectives and potentials are and try to fulfill those objectives and potentials."

Koehnline opted for forming clusters of faculty members at Oakton beginning in 1971. Rather than group faculty by departments, the cluster system groups faculty randomly with an emphasis on maintaining a common cluster size.

ALONG WITH building an innovative tradition, Oakton must build a permanent campus, which will mean struggles with the state for capital development funds.

There has been a tendency in the Maine and Niles township areas that Oakton serves to consider the school "a third-rate institution because it is in third-rate buildings," Koehnline says.

The accreditation Oakton received last year from the North Central Assn., the accrediting body in the Midwest, has helped to overcome that attitude, Koehnline says.

With growth has come a problem of diminishing trust among members of the Oakton community. Koehnline has set the restoration of trust between faculty and administrators as a prime goal for this academic year.

THE USE OF A nonpunitive "X" grade instead of the traditional "F" grade is another of Koehnline's cluster of ideas.

Students should not be stigmatized for the rest of their academic lives with an "F" grade, Koehnline says.

At Oakton, students who would receive "F's" elsewhere are given "X" grades and have the chance to retake the course or somehow fulfill its requirements, at which time the "X" grade is removed from their records.

The buildings were once factories, and noise travels from classroom to classroom faster than a speeding bullet.

How do faculty and students tolerate such conditions on Oakton College's interim campus in Morton Grove? By ignoring them and devoting their time to teaching and learning.

"If you get 12 tree trunks in a circle you've got a classroom," says Leslie Smith, an assistant professor of communications.

THE EMPHASIS AT Oakton has been "the people dimension from day one," says Arthur Klem, director of development.

"As long as you have a classroom, desks and blackboards you have the same as a four-year university," says Elliot Faermark, a student in his third semester at Oakton.

Faermark was a high school dropout who decided to return to school and discovered Oakton in the process.

Teachers at Oakton really become involved in their teaching, Faermark says, and this helps students learn.

"The idea here is that a student is someone to be valued, encouraged," says Richard R. Storinger, an associate professor of humanities.

THE OAKTON STUDENT may be anywhere from 17 to 70 years old, with average student age being 27.

Ms. Smith and Storinger agree that having older people in class often stimulates class discussion and brings an element of the real world into the sometimes cloistered realm of academia.

Mary Wells is married and has children. She had been out of school seven years when she returned to Oakton and she was "terrified." She soon found others in the same age range in her classes, which helped ease her fears.

Ms. Wells came to Oakton because it has a day-care facility for her children and because it was affordable, two points which are attracting people to community colleges across the state.

Oakton Trustee Raymond Hartstein says Oakton needs such features to meet the needs of the community.

A community college "has to be flexible, has to change constantly with the economy and the times," he says. Oakton has sought that flexibility from its beginning in 1969, says Hartstein, who chaired the first board of trustees, and innovation has often been the result.

One innovation was to group faculty members in clusters rather than traditional departments. The size of clusters is kept equal and each of the four clusters now has about 1,500 students and 70 full-and part-time faculty members. This has meant the college "grew smaller as we grew larger," says Eugene Lockwood, an associate professor of philosophy.

"A college was born, it survived, it became stabilized, it's contributing to the community," Hartstein says.

THE ATMOSPHERE AT Oakton is not only innovative, it's "freer" than at other educational institutions, says Steve Simon of Niles, a first semester student in the fire science program.

That freedom can be seen in the student-painted murals on walls throughout the six buildings on Nagle Avenue where Oakton now sits.

It can also be seen in attempts by the faculty and administration to give students information to make choices regarding their own futures.

The college publishes a course directory each year which gives descriptions of sections of various courses written by the person who will be teaching that section. The directory, says Richard Jordan, vice president for curriculum and instruction, is an attempt by Oakton to "go as far as we can to give students as much information as we can."

"Ultimately, whatever happens, most of us were hired because we're basically teachers. if you love to teach and students fascinate you, you can teach in a corner," Ms. Smith says.

SOME FACULTY members at Oakton, however, are dissatisfied with the merit-pay system and the lack of communication between teachers in the same subject area because of the absence of departments.

Lockwood sees a growing faculty unity and identity as the college grows, but he doesn't think an adversary relationship will develop between faculty and administrators.

"I don't think anybody is going to turn down a good idea," he says.

Oakton Pres. William A. Koehnline declared in his welcoming remarks to the faculty this year that he wants to work to reestablish the kind of trust between faculty and administrators that will prevent the "us-them" mentality from taking hold.

Oakton's future includes a permanent campus, another cluster to accommodate increasing enrollment while still allowing the college to grow small as it gets larger and continued efforts to tailor its programs to the changing needs of the Maine-Niles township areas it serves.

Different emphasis at 'Palatine U.'

The record speaks for itself: Lahti

In 1965, Robert Lahti came to Harper College to begin what he calls a "once in a lifetime experience."

At age 35, he had been selected by the new college's board as the first president of the as yet unborn institution.

Lahti had already led a college in Michigan which was reorganizing from a junior college into a community college. He had been part of a similar transformation at a Wyoming school and the two experiences led him to consider the challenge of starting a school "from scratch," he says.

HE CAME TO Harper with definite goals and plans to achieve them.

Those early plans included establishing a college that totally integrated career and academic programs, Lahti says.

Another early goal, Lahti says, was the creation of a campus that "worked for people."

Harper opened its 200-acre campus at Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, in 1969, two years after classes were first held during the evening at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village.

BUT LAHTI is not content with past accomplishments. His "dreams" for Harper's future include a second campus in the eastern end of the 200-square-mile district.

With projections showing the district's population increasing by almost 200,000 persons by 1995, Lahti has also begun facing the question of how to provide educational services for those in the 25-to 45-year-old age group, the so-called "new learners" who will be returning to school.

Lahti recently told the Harper faculty, "The next 10 years look like it could be mindboggling for us."

Resourcefulness will be needed to deal with a changing financial picture, which Lahti terms a major problem facing Harper in the next 10 years.

"THE CHALLENGE is to have the ability to set aside traditions that are no longer justifiable," Lahti says, but such actions may often put the college in conflict with state boards which control school-aid dollars and dictate course standards and college procedures.

Colleges may have to go to the state legislature to seek relief from over-regulation, Lahti says.

Another area for future concern at Harper will be faculty involvement in the college decision-making process.

Lahti says there is no reason the faculty can't be involved as long as that involvement does not become "a tug of war between management and labor."

When Greg Meyer and Michele Conduto decided to go to Harper College, which they and their high school friends called "the University of Southern Palatine," people said, "Why don't you go to a real school?"

Greg and Michele have since discovered that Harper is a real school which they find well-suited to their needs.

"You're just a speck at a four-year school and here you're a person," says Meyer, a sophomore who intends to transfer to a four-year institution when he completes his program at Harper.

MS. CONDUTO FINDS the attitudes of Harper teachers one of the most refreshing changes from her high school days.

"It's easier to talk to someone when they're on your level. You're not a kid here," says Ms. Conduto, a second-year physical education major. "They're willing to help if you're willing to show interest," she says about Harper faculty members.

Kevin Westburg, who transferred to Harper this year from Purdue University, says it wasn't always like that at Purdue.

Westburg says he was amazed at the small classes at Harper compared to Purdue, and also at the way Harper people helped him through registration and his early days at a new school.

"At Purdue, you have to seek out that help," he says.

THE DIFFERENCE IN atmosphere, faculty members and administrators say, is a result of a different emphasis at Harper.

"The emphasis has always been on what happens in the classroom," says Lester N. Hook, who is beginning his ninth year at Harper as a history professor.

The university stress on faculty research is not present at Harper, Hook says, and the result is that teachers are able to devote themselves totally to teaching.

"I just want to teach," Hook says. "This place gives me the opportunity to do that."

THE TEACHING emphasis is part of a comprehensive college concept.

John Birkholz, vice president for academic affairs, says that a community college must have five areas of concern to be truly comprehensive.

It must offer comprehensive selections of courses for students wishing to transfer to four-year schools, a full-range of career programs as warranted by its community, a full-range of community education programs, aid to disadvantaged students and a comprehensive guidance and counseling service to all who need it, says Birkholz.

"If the product we have isn't what they (the community), want we have to come up with a different product or show them why what we're selling them is important," Hook says.

Harper Pres. Robert Lahti says that the percentage of high school graduates attending Harper has increased 10 per cent since classes were first held in 1967.

"WE CAN STILL expect a larger percentage and at least a break, even in the number of 18 to 21-year-olds going to Harper," Lahti says.

Harper's student body is not all 18- to 21-year-olds. The average age of Harper's more than 20,000 students is 27.

"You sit in class and there'll be somebody next to you who looks like your mom," Meyer says.

"The exchange of ideas makes it a better learning situation, a genuine learning situation," Hook says about the age variety.

THE REASONS WHICH bring students to Harper rather than a four-year institution are much the same as at other community colleges — closeness to home, the relative low cost and variety of programs.

Guerin Fischer, vice president of student affairs, says an increase in part-time students this year at Harper corresponds with the availability of part-time jobs.

"When students can hold part-time jobs they're able to stretch their education over a longer period of time and consequently only attend school part time," Fischer says.

Many of the part-timers are women returning to college or people already in the business world who feel they need additional training or new information to advance in their fields.

MICHAEL LAURENZANO, a technician with Motorola Inc., is enrolled in Harper's associate-in-liberal-studies degree program, which allows persons with business experience to earn college credit for what they have learned in the business world.

"It's probably the only way I'd have gotten it (a degree)," says Laurenzano, who sees his degree as a must for advancement in business.

Whether middle-age or teen-age, students at Harper this year are feeling crowded.

James Bliss, who began this year in Harper's chemical engineering program, says his graphics class in overflowing with students. Meyer and Ms. Conduto say everything seems more crowded this year.

"THERE'S NO QUESTION that we should be breaking ground for the second campus," says Birkholz. After completion of two new classroom buildings on the Palatine campus, there will be no new classroom construction at Harper for at least three years because of a lack of state funding, Birkholz says.

The campus, which was designed to accommodate 10,000 students, now handles the needs of 20,000, although many of those attend classes at the satellite locations in the district.

Students also see the need for a gymnasium and the administration agrees. A recreation building will be constructed with money from a local tax referendum Harper held when state funding could not be obtained.

Students also say Harper needs an auditorium or concert center. Lahti agrees.

"I'VE ALWAYS DREAMT that the Northwest suburbs should be able to have symphonies and operas come out to it," Lahti says.

While Lahti receives generally good marks from students, faculty members are expressing growing dissatisfaction with the way the college is run.

Edison's phones may help frustrated callers

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

In this progressive world of touch-tones and trimlines, there is nothing more frustrating than a busy signal.

And perhaps there are none more aware of this than those who each day try to contact the Northwest suburban office of the Commonwealth Edison Co., 201 N. Arthur Ave., Mount Prospect.

The Commonwealth Edison office — serving about 175,000 customers in an area bound by Hoffman Estates, Park Ridge, Wheeling and Palatine — handles approximately 1,000 telephone calls a day during a regular five-day work week.

AND THOSE SUCCESSFUL callers deserve a pat on the back. Many who don't realize patience indeed is a virtue give up after several futile attempts. For it does not take long before one becomes irritated by the blaring busy signal.

Company officials realize it is difficult for their customers to register complaints and questions over the phone. And they are working on improving their system.

"We are aware there is a problem with our phones," said Bob Tyler, assistant area manager. "The outdated equipment is insufficient for the volume of work we do now."

Tyler added Edison has ordered more modern telephone equipment, available through the Bell System. "The latest equipment Bell has should do the trick for us," he said.

AREA MANAGER EDWARD Bartels admits Edison's telephone equipment is a bit obsolete but said phone tie-ups are a seasonal problem faced by the firm. "Starting in May and going through October, we get most of our traffic," Bartels said. "The summer period is normally the heaviest period primarily because so many are moving in and out of apartments."

Bartels added most of the calls received by Edison are "of a credit nature or a question about an electrical service account." He attributed the high concentration of telephone calls to the increased probability of storms causing electrical power outages in the summer than during the winter. "I'm expecting the problems to tail off now," he said.

Commonwealth Edison's customer count in the Northwest suburbs has increased approximately 70 per cent in the past 10 years. Consequently, the firm's personnel figure has increased between 30 and 40 per cent.

There are 15 full-time customer service representatives answering phones in addition to 10 marketing people handling predominantly new business requests.

Bartels said the new equipment, expected to be installed by the spring, will have a familiar recorded message — a feature lacking in Edison's present system.

Until then though, there will remain only one number to call which feeds into 19 different lines. So Commonwealth Edison customers expecting to have their electrical problems remedied should just keep dialing 259-2300.

Driver station opening delayed

The opening Friday of the long-awaited Northwest suburban driver testing station in Schaumburg has been delayed by "about 10 days" because the furniture still is enroute from Springfield, The Herald learned Wednesday.

An aide to Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett said the facility, 1231 E. Golf Rd., will open "as soon as the furniture arrives — in about 10 days, give or take a day either way."

The spokesman said the furniture has been ordered from the state's surplus properties division and is expected to arrive "about Oct. 10."

WHEN THE TWO-YEAR lease was signed on the Schaumburg storefront Aug. 30, state officials said the station would open "in a month, or slightly more" as soon as interior remodeling was completed.

Representatives of the J. Emil Anderson and Sons leasing firm say the remodeling will be completed this week and the center will be ready for occupancy Friday, the Oct. 1 target date given them by Howlett's office.

Schaumburg's village building department has scheduled a final inspection of the storefront today. "Provided the center passes inspection, the secretary of state's office can pick up an occupancy permit at the village hall Friday morning," a building department representative said.

The state is paying $3,122 per month for the 4,428-square-foot office and will also pay for utilities.

COLT LANDRETH of the leasing firm, said the state's annual cost of $8.46 per square foot also includes the cost of remodeling.

Howlett's representatives say the Schaumburg location was chosen because of its central location and accessability to major highways.

The center, expected to handle an estimated 700 applicants each day, will employ 26 persons when it reaches full strength later this year. Most personnel will be reassigned from other testing centers since the new station is expected to relieve the burden at other Chicago area facilities.

Deadline Friday for absentee vote

Absentee balloting for Saturday's $2.5 million golf course/park improvement referendum will continue through 5 p.m. Friday at the Arlington Heights Park District office, 800 E. Falcon Dr.

The two items on the referendum are a $1.5 million project to build a golf course/storm retention facility on an 87-acre tract at Central and Wilke roads and a $1.3 million general park improvement plan.

'America First' Daly — greatest loser of his time

Americans love winners, especially big winners. So why his countrymen tolarate Lar Daly, a recognized Hall of Fame quality loser, is anybody's guess. But they do.

No political season would be complete without "America First" Daly. Lar's political career boasts more campaigns than an old dog has fleas in the summertime.

Lar Daly campaigns for office while packaged between sandwich boards. The people who run elections prefer to dismiss him as bologna on stale bread without mayonnaise.

But that does not slow down "America First." He has run for everything in sight.

HATS OFF TO "America First!" The greatest loser of his time! Many candidates come forward to lose and be humbled, but few lose so often or by such large margins.

Close your eyes one moment and imagine this day:

"WASHINGTON (UPI) Nov. 2 — Lar 'American First' Daly, the Chicago presidential candidate who first sought office against Harry Truman, scored the political upset of modern times Tuesday when he unseated President Ford and smashed fellow challenger Jimmy Carter.

"Daly, a 64-year-old former produce peddler who never graduated from high school, will be sworn in Jan. 20 as the 39th President of the United States. He said Nelson A. Rockefeller will remain as vice president.

"Not a single Chicagoan voted against Daly. He amassed a huge 3-1 edge over Ford, Carter and the so-called 'splinter candidates,' of whom Daly is the new champion."

And so on.

FRANKLY, NOBODY else can imagine that day either. Not even "America First" Daly who received eight votes from Chicago as a 1972 presidential write-in candidate.

Yes, "America First" is a White House candidate again this year. This marks Daly's seventh presidential campaign, even more than George Wallace.

Lar Daly's presidential saga began in 1948. "America First" and Thomas E. Dewey were upset by Truman.

He skipped the 1952 general election, Lar threw his support and influence behind Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who refused to buck Dwight Eisenhower for the GOP nomination.

Six White House campaigns have followed for Daly. Not to overlook his various candidacies for U.S. senator and congressman, governor of Illinois, mayor of Chicago and even committeeman from Chicago's sixth ward.

EACH TIME, Lar Daly has managed a stunning defeat.

"America First" Daly sat almost unnoticed inside a Glenview restaurant late one night this week. An attorney friend seated at Daly's left seemed ready to fall asleep.

EVERYBODY KNOWS Lar Daly. Even Hugh Hefner. His Playboy magazine included "America First" among other White House candidates discussed on page 148 of th October issue. And without Lar's consent!

"I refused the interview," Daly stated. "I didn't want my name in a magazine like that. But I can't do anything about it. This is news."

Lar Daly, speaking about the Presidential debates: "God save America!" on Gerald Ford: "Unable." On Jimmy Carter: "Out of his class." On Lar Daly: "Most able man in the country."

THE WAITRESS must have been curious, as papers had been spread all over the dining table.

"What are you, credit collectors?" she asked.

"This is the Lar Daly campaign," he said.

"Are you doing something?" she asked.

"We're doing an article," Lar said.

The waitress said that was nice. She walked over to her station for a moment, then she returned.

"You're not going to tell me that you're Lar Daly, are you?" she asked, rather sheepishly. A covey of other waitresses listened not far way.

"I sure am," Lar bellowed. "Don't I look like him?"

The room had begun to perk up now. A celebrity sat among them. That's Lar Daly . . . the presidential candidate. There were murmurs and whispers.

"How many years you been running?" she asked.

"Since 1932," Lar said.

"You must enjoy it," the waitress said.

"Never say die," Lar Daly advised. "Never say die!"

Right-to-life groups out to defeat me: Chapman

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said Wednesday she plans to alert voters in the Third Legislative District that she is a target of an organized campaign against her reelection by right-to-life organizations.

Chapman, who also is facing a challenge for her seat from fellow Democrat Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village, will detail the right-to-life campaign against her at a press conference today.

Chapman has opposed laws limiting abortions and praised Northwest Community Hospital last summer when its board of directors voted to allow abortion in the first tri-mester of pregnancy.

SHE SAID Wednesday in a Herald interview that abortion "is a non-issue in this campaign and I've treated it as such. I'm a very forthright person, and if somebody asks me I tell them what I think, but I want to focus on the issues."

However, Chapman said, "It's apparent that I'm a target" of right-to-life forces. To anti-abortion activists, she said "one's integrity and honesty and ability are not issues. The only issue is whether you support a constitutional amendment banning abortion. I have heard rumors that people will come out to canvass the Third District from the West Side of Chicago."

Chapman also said she has heard that Democrats from Chicago will work in the Third District for Brennan, the other Democrat running for the three seats in the Illinois House from the district.

Traditionally, the third and other suburban legislative districts elect two Republicans and one Democrat to the House. Because of this, the two Democrats running are generally considered opponents even though they are technically running mates.

BRENNAN HAS said she is running as a "regular" Democrat loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and has criticized Chapman for her vote to uphold Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of an appropriations bill funding the school-aid formula.

Chapman characterized some of Brennan's attacks on her over the school-aid issue as a "dirty tricks campaign." She said, "In 12 years I have cast only one vote that anyone could possibly interpret as anti-school, but before the primary there were deliberate efforts to misrepresent my position."

Chapman said the misrepresentation involved flyers distributed before the primary which contained parts of a newspaper article with a quote from Chapman which the flyer contended showed Chapman favored deeper cuts in the education budget than those made by Walker.

"You can't move to a place I can't get to , so I said, 'bus me or I'll quit!' "

The way we see it

Taxes not for free rides

When most of us take a job, it is assumed we will take responsibility to get to work and get home.

Apparently, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes believes that if you work for the government, you shouldn't have to take that responsibility for yourself.

The union has filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court charging that if the Illinois Department of Transportation discontinues bus service for its employes to its Schaumburg office it will violate the constitutional rights of those who ride the bus.

The service brings about 140 workers from Chicago and Elgin to the department's office, according to the union. The bus service has been supplied since the department moved from downtown Chicago to Schaumburg in April 1975.

It made sense for the state to provide the bus service temporarily to give employes inconvenienced by the move a chance to make arrangements to get to work.

However, the employe's union seems to believe that the state owes the employes bus service to their jobs indefinitely. It has to come as a surprise to any taxpayer who has ever been inconvenienced by an employer that government employes have that right.

The lack of public transportation to and from Schaumburg is a problem for many more persons than those who work for the Department of Transportation.

Ever since the Regional Transportation Authority was formed, it has been clear that one pressing need of the suburbs is for the RTA to provide transportation to areas like the one around Woodfield Mall.

It is outrageous to argue, however, that the state, merely because it moves some offices into an area, must provide subsidized transportation for its employes that is not available to the general public.

Schaumburg is 20 miles from the Chicago city limits and 15 miles from Elgin. The round-trip commute for employes who must go to Schaumburg from Chicago and Elgin is undoubtedly unpleasantly long.

However, there are plenty of ordinary taxpayers who are not state employes who commute equally long distances to work.

State employes, and their unions, should remember that before they demand privileges that the people who pay the bills can't have.

Residents give their views on park district referendum

So far, all publicity regarding the Arlington Heights Park District's intense desire to foist a golf course on park district residents has not brought forth any appreciable comments from the people or media regarding the inadvisability of burdening the tax payers with another $20-$25 a year on their real estate tax bill. It is time to do so, now that a $1.3 million bond referendum is scheduled for Oct. 2.

Before submitting to the recent "scare" publicity put out by the park district implying that the Federal government may take the property away from the park district if it is not used as a golf course, the public should consider a number of factors which are on the other side of the question. They are:

1. The public demand for a golf course is about as great as the public demand for another tavern in our town. The "public demand" is a figment of imagination in the minds of the park board and their employes.

2. There are at least 10 public-fee golf courses already within a 15-20 minute drive of Arlington Heights, some of which wish they would do better financially.

3. About a year ago, the park board had allowed itself to drift into such a deplorable financial crises that it found it necessary to ask a citizens committee to figure out how to get the finances in order. As expected, that committee recommended and pushed a referendum to bail out the park district and keep matters under control for several years.

4. Now, the park board, which could not operate the district a year ago, is back again for another $1.3 million. What reasons are there which should reward inept management with another big sum of money to operate a golf course for which there are no public demands?

5. Consultants have given an opinion that the golf course would be self sustaining, pay its own way after a couple of years, and to make it more attractive even suggest there will be extra money available to help finance other park programs. This is only an opinion and there is no guarantee. This was the same pitch aimed at Bensenville residents when those people were urged to take over the established White Pines Country Club in their park district. It did not work out that way at all.

6. In all fairness to the Arlington Heights voters, a complete financial report on the experiences of the Mount Prospect Park District and the Bensenville district covering their costs and revenues for operating their golf courses should be published. Such reports would reveal some sobering financial facts. Decision should be made by logic, not emotion.

7. If success of the golf course is such a "sure thing," there should be no reluctance or concern over financing with revenue bonds rather than general obligation bonds. Let the golfers pay their way. The recent comment by a park official that the revenue bond approach is not practical because the amount is too big for small investors and too small for big investors is an irresponsible statement. If this should be accepted, then first build a nine hole course at a cost that the small investors can handle. After several years experience, and if it is favorable, build the second nine holes at a small cost which purchasers of revenue could handle again.

8. The most serious problem facing Arlington Heights, and will before some years, is the water supply. Where will the water come from during the period of construction and growing of the grass before the course can be opened for play, and also for the daily watering. The voters should be told by our Village officials if there is adequate water to properly maintain a golf course without endangering the supply for our homes and businesses. If I have a choice of where a $25 increase in my tax bill should be used, I want it to go for solving the No. 1 priority — water problem rather than a golf course.

9. Monies needed for necessities should be approved by the voters, but a golf course is far from a necessity. The big rush to have a $1.3 million referendum within a couple of months after receiving the land is questionable. Why the big rush?

10. What Arlington Heights can really use is a large open park designed for large events, carnivals, exhibitions, outdoor civic affairs. We would have a facility for large civic affairs which no other suburb could match. Let us use this land for the benefit of all the people who are expected to pay for it and not for a minority group of golfers.

11. There is no need for voters to vote yes at this time. Uncle Sam is not going to reclaim the land on Oct. 3 if the referendum is voted down on Oct. 2. The park board having set a precedent last year calling on a citizens committee for advice, should have obtained opinions from a committee to determine what use the land should be put to. How can the park board document their decisions that a golf course is the best possible land use for our people.

12. After the recent fiscal dilemma of the park district, and the bailing out referendum voted by the people, it would seem reasonable to ask the board to show the public for a year or two that they have learned how to control their financial responsibilities, before asking for another big handout for a fiscally dangerous project.

13. This referendum for general obligation bonds should be voted down this time, because if the golf course is such an assured success issuance of revenue bonds and their retirements from receipts of the golf course should be a breeze.

E. C. Wahl
Arlington Heights

(Editor's note: Park officials estimate the cost of the two-part, $2.8 million referendum at $12.03 per year for the average home, not $20-$25. They have indicated water for the greens will come from retained storm water, not from the village's water system. The Federal government donated the land for golf course development; however, it has not indicated what it will do if the course if not developed. The park district is required to submit reports every two years on progress made toward developing the intended usage.)

I am strongly opposed to the $1,500,000 bond issue on Oct. 2 for the purpose of creating a golf course out of the old Nike site on Central Road.

I absolutely cannot see the wisdom of spending the homeowners tax money, which will benefit perhaps 10 or 15 per cent of the people of Arlington Heights. Our village fathers should realize that the nearby country clubs, both private and public, adequately serve the needs of our golfers.

As a resident and homeowner in Arlington Heights for the past 26 years, I propose instead of spending 15 per cent of this $1,500,000 for the purchase of special equipped trucks, which will remove our fallen leaves each fall with large suction hoses, after the leaves are raked to the curbs.

MY FAMILY AND I spend about four weekends each year raking and bagging leaves from five huge elm trees on our parkway. The bagging taking up most of the work and time.

These special vehicles would benefit the majority of the homeowners; many of whom have voiced the same complaint as myself each autumn.

Our neighboring towns of Mount Prospect and Des Plaines have had these trucks doing this service for their homeowners for the past several years. Certainly a village of Arlington Heights' stature can afford to do the same for their taxpaying homeowners.

Plague almost banished

It was a sad day for tragedy.

The World Health Organization (WHO) came out with an announcement that would bring tears to the eyes of any professional pessimist. Only seven people in all the world, it was reported, were known to have smallpox.

Since the disease began knocking around in the dark ages as the plague, it has taken millions of victims, at times threatening whole populations.

Within the last decade, it has claimed the lives of two million people worldwide.

Now, because the disease can be transmitted only through direct contact, the dreaded plague may be breathing its last.

On a planet whose news is dominated by the success of failure, that's pretty encouraging.

"I'm afraid vendors are not permitted in front of the White House. Maybe next year, Miss Carter!"

Not enough rich to pay the bills

Tax relief all talk, but no action

by RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — A candidate must do more than assert what he will do if elected.

To be believable he must tell how he will go about achieving the goals he sets before us. How, above all, will he get a reluctant Senate and House of Representatives to go along with what he pledges on the campaign trail?

Especially when it's Jimmy Carter or Gerald Ford and their vice-presidential running mates promising changes no Congress in recent years has cottoned to.

Mr. Ford proposes to ease the tax burden on the middle class. Yet the Congress in its wisdom after two years of work has come forth with a proposal so complicated that it's understood by only a few tax experts, and they're knowledgeable almost solely on the loopholes destroyed and created. But one thing is certain — the new legislation does little to help the middle-class taxpayer and reserves almost all of its goodies for special interests, with special favors for the rich and poor. This leaves the middle class holding the bag.

Mr. Ford can sign this monstrosity into law or veto it. Ht can't change the wording along Ford-Dole lines. And since it is almost certain the same Democratic majority which controls Congress today will control both the Senate and House next year and the year after, how will Messrs. Ford and Dole accomplish what they promise?

As for Jimmy Carter. He proposes, ad nauseum, to soak the well-to-do, and, like Robin Hood, give the proceeds to the poor. But assuming this promise is more than a campaign gimmick, Carter and Mondale would be up against the same Congress as the Ford-Dole team.

Carter, moreover, has given no evidence of being better able to handle a strong-minded legislature than has President Ford.

We recall that Mr. Ford came into the presidency after a quarter century in Congress, where he was well liked both by his fellow Republicans and by his Democratic opponents. He had a reputation as a tough but respected fighter. Yet his record in influencing Congress from the White House has been dismal. His strongest point has been negative. That is, most of his vetoes have been sustained. His positive proposals have, in the main, been ignored.

So much for a man with a previously excellent track record with the Congress.

Now for Jimmy Carter. His record, both as a legislator and as governor indicates no particular ability at influencing a reluctant legislature, or at keeping on good terms with either his friends or opponents in the Georgia body. This is not to argue whether the legislature was right or wrong, or whether any man could have done better. It is simply to say that the Carter record here is not impressive. And that's all we have to go by. Except promises. And assurances.

Carter talks about going to the people. And bringing pressure. He tried both in Georgia. He did not hesitate to embarrass or attack individual lawmakers, even friends and past supporters who differed with him on one bill or another. The record does not indicate this technique was worth continuing. And most certainly federal cabinet secretaries who have attempted that strong-voice approach with the U.S Congress have invariably come away with hands burnt to the elbow.

What's being talked about in this tax shift is gibberish in any case.

There is no way to lower taxes on the poor further without increasing the burden on the middle class. There aren't enough rich.

Congress knows this. Jimmy Carter knows it. And President Ford. The record is plain: There is no relief in sight for the middle-class taxpayer. Only more suffering.

Stock prices fall as rally fizzles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell Wednesday for the second consecutive session in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange when an early rally fizzled because of investor concern over the gloomy economic outlook.

Rising unemployment and haziness surrounding the nation's money supply picture were other reasons the Dow Jones industrial average fell 3.74 points to 991.19, bringing its two-day loss to 21.94 points. It plunged 18.20 points Tuesday and failed for the 11th time this year to hold above the 1,000 level.

The blue-chip average, off three points at the outset, rose three points before noon and was off six points with an hour to go during the seesaw session.

INVESTORS COULD not shrug off their concern about Tuesday's report of a 1.5 per cent drop in the Commerce Department's August leading economic indicators or the Labor Department's report of a rise in the factory layoff rate.

The reports confirmed the economy slowed down in the third quarter, forcing some economists to revise downward their estimates of the growth of the Gross National Product. The report did not bode well for the September unemployment figures.

The market's setback also was broad for the second day. The NYSE common stock index lost 0.29 to 56.30 and the average price of a common share decreased by 18 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, shed 0.55 to 105.37.

Declines routed advances, 967 to 426, among the 1,885 issues crossing the tape.

VOLUME TOTALED 18,090,000 shares, down from the 20,430,000 traded Tuesday.

Dow Chemical topped the Big Board actives, off 1¼ to 44 on 252,600 shares. Among the other chemicals, Monsanto shed 1¼ to 89¼ and DuPont ½ to 125-7/8.

Westinghouse Electric was the second most active issue, up 1/8 to 19-1/8 on 252,100 shares. Central Louisiana Electric was third, off ¼ to 23-1/8 on 207,500 shares.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased five cents. Volume totaled 1,770,000 shares, compared with 1,890,000 traded Tuesday.

Curb in costs of workmen's comp sought

by LEA TONKIN

Something's got to be done about skyrocketing workmen's compensation insurance costs in Illinois, said the speakers at an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce conference in Arlington Heights Wednesday.

Safety programs aimed at the elimination of accidents wre discussed by Bennie Bumpers, manager of corporate casualty insurance and claims for the Vulcan Materials Co. and other speakers. Surveillance of employes is another tool increasingly used by companies, said attorney Robert Joyce.

Joyce said a private eye may be hired, for example, to film an employe's after hours softball playing abilities when the employ is claiming a work-related back injury. He said such evidence is important when a company presents testimony before the Illinois Industrial Commission, which settles workmen's compensation claims.

JOYCE SAID THERE is no question about payment when an employe is disabled following an on-the-job accident. He said a "fair, but firm" policy should be followed in settlements. Joyce is a partner in the Chicago firm of Seyfarth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson.

"Out of sight" increases in compensation costs have plagued small and large company executives in Illinois, said state chamber labor relations manager Leonard Day.

The laws are designed to offer protection to workers suffering disabilities related to their occupations. Schedules of benefits are established by law.

UAW threatening to strike at Deere

If the United Auto Workers do not reach a new contract agreement with Deere and Co., the union's farm and construction equipment target company, the union will strike at midnight Thursday, a union source said Wednesday. If the contract agreement is not reached, Deere, with its 27,000 workers, would be added to the current UAW auto industry strike against Ford Motor Co. and its 170,000 workers. Negotiations continued in Moline, Ill., Wednesday, but union officials declined to comment on any progress that might have been made. Deere has been selected by the UAW as the target company to set the industry wide farm and construction equipment contract, which will cover more than 110,000 UAW employes. Caterpiller Tractor Co. and the UAW announced Wednesday they have extended a contract that expires today. The union also has extended its contract with International Harvester.

Ford, union talks still stymied

The 15-day-old shutdown of the Ford Motor Co. appeared no closer to settlement Wednesday. Talks droned on and the union's chief negotiator left the bargaining table to visit striking workers. For the second straight day, United Auto Workers Vice President Ken Bannon said the lull in the talks gave him time to meet with union members.

Ford to keep '77 price hike to 5%

The strike-bound Ford Motor Co., in an attempt to stay competitive with new, smaller "full-sized" General Motors cars, said it is holding 1977 model price increases to $310, or 5.1 per cent, above its 1976 models. The Ford increase compares with an average 5.9 per cent raise, or $338 per car, announced earlier by GM. Chrysler and American Motors have not announced their 1977 prices. Ford had told dealers in August its prices could rise as much as 6 per cent. The Ford increases ranged from $5 on the Mustang II to $583 on the restyled Continental Mark V.

Britain uses credit to save pound

Britain moved Wednesday to exhaust a $5 billion International Monetary Fund credit in a desperate effort to rescue the crumbling pound. The Bank of England, which already has shelled out $1.1 billion of the standby credit granted by the IMF last June, asked for the remainng $3.9 billion. The pound rose Wednesday from an all-time low of $1.6378 to $1.6670, settled around $1.6600 as dealers took their chance to make a quick profit and closed at $1.6675.

Job fair for disabled Wednesday

The Job Fair '76-Hire the Disabled conference is scheduled Wednesday at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, 345 E. Superior St. Employers will have the opportunity to interview skilled, handicapped persons during the 9 a.m.-to-9 p.m. session. The fair is sponsored by the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind, Northern Illinois University program for the Hearing Impaired, the North Shore Assn. for the Retarded and Rehabilitation Institute.

Farmers protest defeat of dam

National farm groups Wednesday attacked the Senate's refusal to approve construction of a dam and locks on the Mississippi River at Alton, Ill. The proposal was deleted by voice vote Tuesday from a $1.1 billion rivers and harbors navigation and flood-control authorization bill. But spokesmen for the farm groups said many Midwestern farmers depend on the river system to ship grain and other crops as well as receive fertilizer. They attacked a possible long delay in the projects. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who led the fight against construction of Locks and Dam 26 in Alton, said, "This dam simply is not justified by the evidence. Worse, its construction now might lead us into environmental and economic disasters because no serious studies have been made to forecast the impact of the dam in either area."

Kemper to pay 20c dividend

Kemper Corp., Long Grove, has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share. It is payable Nov. 30 to shareholders of record Nov. 9.

Exxon tries discounts on gas

Exxon USA recently announced initial testing of a cash discount program at Exxon service stations in Abilene, Tex., and Charleston, S.C. Up to a 5 per cent discount on cash purchases of gasoline is offered at the stations. The company said customers choose credit card or cash payment. Recent federal legislation allows retailers to offer cash discounts of up to 5 per cent.

Bulls feature new look, new attitude

by BOB GALLAS

The Bulls' training camp is only a few days old, but it's already obvious that the often stormy reign of ex-coach Dick Motta is history.

Despite the addition of high-priced stars Artis Gilmore and Scott May, both of whom should displace starters on last year's team, and new coach Ed Badger, the harmony in the Bulls camp already rivals that of any barbershop quartet.

There's Tom Boerwinkle, journeyman center who lost his starting job to Gilmore, but no one is happier about that than Long Tom.

John Laskowski could be a starting guard if Jerry Sloan's knee fails to respond to surgery, but Laskowski says he'd rather split playing time with Sloan "to learn."

And there's Scott May, perhaps the best college player in the country last year who recently joined the club after reaching an agreement on salary. A good bet to be a starter, May eases the tension by playing it low key, saying he doesn't care if he starts or how much he plays. He just wants to contribute.

The new look of the Bulls is more than skin deep.

"Everyone knows we had a really bad year last season," said Laskowski during a break in the Bulls camp Wednesday at Angel Guardian gym. "But you get a few guys during the offseason like Artis and Scott and that picks everyone up.

The hopeful mood has apparently spread to the fans. The Bulls report season tickets sales of 3,200, an all-time high that is expected to reach 4,000.

"Things are going to change this year," said Badger, the popular choice of the players for coach. "We'll try to put things in to make the best use of our players.

"With Artis, we'll have to move the ball into the center more than we did last year," Badger said. Scott (May) and Bob (Love) are good jump shooters and we'll give them a chance to shoot. And we'll run at the drop of the hat."

Running will be the biggest change in the Bulls' strategy, that previously was best described as "plodding." Emphasis in camp has been running and the players were ready for it.

Even Boerwinkle came into camp perhaps the best shape of his career, which now spans nine seasons, all with Chicago. Borwinkle played at 275 pounds last year, but the 6-11 giant is down to 265 and will shed even more poundage as the season progresses.

"We didn't know for a long time who was going to be coach, and I wanted to be ready," Long Tom explained. "I knew how to prepare for Coach Motta's camp, but if we got a coach who started running hard the first day of camp, I'd have had a tough time."

Boerwinkle likes his new role as backup to Gilmore. "I can help Artis and he can help me. In the ABA, he (Gilmore) was playing 45 minutes a game," Boerwinkle said. "I think he can be more effective if he plays 35 minutes a game."

Badger said he's impressed with the play of Tom Kropp, a 6-3 second-year man the Bulls obtained from Washington for a draft choice. Also drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers as a line-backer, Kropp is strong but saw limited action with the Bullets last season.

The Bulls have a wealth of talent at forward with May, Love, Jack Marin and Mickey Johnson, who averaged 15.3 points per game as a starter last year. Eric Fernsten holds the edge at the fifth forward spot.

That leaves the "Baby Bull," Cliff Pondexter, as trade bait, but the Bulls can't find any takers for Pondexter, who signed for a big no-cut contract out of high school in 1974.

Laskowski and Norm Van Lier are set at guards. Jerry Sloan's knee won't be ready until after the season has started so there'll be plenty of competition for the other guards spot and the Bulls have talented rookies.

Leon Benbow, 6-4, back from last year but in the hospital right now with a bad back, and 6-3 Bob Wilson, 6-3, averaged 7.1 and 7.5 points per game respectively last year. They'll be pushed by rookies like Kropp, 6-2 Willie Smith and 6-7 Keith Starr, who could help fill the gap if Sloan can't come back.

Sloan is working out every morning, running in the pool and on grass, but little more. "The doctors are higher on it (his knee) than I am," said Sloan, the last of the original Bulls. "I think I can play," he added. "But I don't know when."

The Bulls play an intrasquad game tonight at DePaul's Alumni Hall before hitting the road for Carbondale, where they open the exhibition season Saturday night against Atlanta. Admission tonight is $2, with part of the proceeds going to DePaul's athletic fund.

Royals clinch share with win

OAKLAND — The Oakland A's, only 2½ games behind pace-setting but slumping Kansas City in the American League West, squared off again Kansas City beat Oakland, 4-0, to clinch at least a tie for the title. with the Royals Wednesday night.

The A's won the first two games of the crucial series, 8-3 and 1-0, and trailed Kansas City by only two games in the loss column prior to Wednesday's game.

Fremd runs for record in meet at Union Oil

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

Four undefeated teams will put their dual-meet records on the line tonight during a full slate of Mid-Suburban League cross country meets.

Co-favorites in the North, Fremd and Palatine, take their 2-0 marks into tonight's action. Each team won major invitational meets last Saturday and each did it impressively.

Today at 5 p.m. Palatine hosts Arlington (1-1) at Palatine Hills, and at 4:30 Fremd welcomes Hersey (1-1) to its Union Oil course. Palatine and Fremd are on a collision course for Oct. 7 when the two teams, along with Central Suburban power Maine West, will meet in a duel on Palatine's course.

Fremd, with its 55-meet winning streak intact, takes on a young Hersey squad tonight. The undefeated Fremd Vikings will be trying to tie the all-time IHSA record for consecutive dual-meet victories.

The only undefeated teams in the South, Hoffman Estates (3-0) and Conant (3-0), will also be tested tonight. The head-to-head battle between those two teams is also scheduled for Oct. 7, at the Hoffman course.

Today, Conant visits Elk Grove (0-3) and Hoffman Estates hosts Rolling Meadows (1-3). Both meets are at 5 p.m.

In other meets tonight, Forest View (1-2) is at Prospect (3-1) and Wheeling (0-2) visits Buffalo Grove (0-2). Those, too, will be at 5 p.m.

Schaumburg (1-3) is idle.

Fremd will be easily favored over Hersey, especially with Vikings John Filosa, Dan Tischler, and soph Matt Filosa running at near-peak form. Rolando Garza, Fremd's sursprising senior, has turned in two good performances in a row for coach Ron Menely.

Palatine coach Joe Johnson has welcomed back the nucleus of his team, much to his delight. The return to form of junior Tom Johnson, who was ill, and senior Tony Vargas has meant consecutive big-meet victories at Woodstock and Homewood-Flossmoor. The Pirates will need to run well if they are to beat a strong Arlington squad.

The meet between Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows promises to be a good one. Both teams won invitationals Saturday and both teams have been improving by leaps and bounds in the past weeks.

Meadows, especially, has been a surprising factor in MSL cross country, with the return of lettermen Brian Germano and Dave Campbell. Both harriers turned in fine performances in the Mustangs' victory at the Barrington Invite Saturday. It was the second big meet Rolling Meadows has won this year.

Forest View's meet at Prospect will also be a pivotal meet — for both teams. The Falcons have a chance to move their record to .500 with a victory, while Prospect, currently at 3-1, could stay in the South title picture with a win.

Controversy surrounds a very unique individual

Does Muhammad Ali continue to deserve the "People's Champion" title?

Those who attended Tuesday's closed-circuit telecasts at six Chicago sites know the answer already. That is, if they wanted to drive a half hour to see it.

No theatre in The Herald area offered the championship fight. Hillside, over 20 miles away, did if you purchased a ticket the day before.

The next closest site was DePaul University's Alumni Hall. Tickets were $10 (advance sale) and $15 (on fight day).

A capacity crowd of 4,000 turned out to watch Ali defend his title against Ken Norton. Most of the fight fans I saw were hard-working middle and lower income whites and blacks.

Prior to the telecast, several people commented about the main event and the main man, Ali.

The two women I interviewed had different reasons for disliking Ali.

"Bedause I'm a woman and because of what has happened between him and his wife, I've lost the thing I had for Ali," said Osie Owens, a black woman in her middle 30s who lives near White Sox Park.

"I thin black men probably respect him for his fighting ability, but I think they are kind of looking down on him, also. We're looking for someone else to look up to. All the things we've admired are gone, over with.

"He needs to get into something else because I think people are getting tired of him. I think he should get out.

"People still look up to Joe Louis as a great fighter and people still look up to Sugar Ray (Robinson) as a great fighter. And if he wants to have the same image, I think he should get out now."

Oddly enough, Karen Rufo wanted to see Ali win so that he could get knocked out by George Foreman. Rufo, a white woman in her 20s who lives on the northwest side, was equally upset the way Ali left the mother of his children for a younger, more attractive woman. But there was another reason:

"Clay is prejudiced. He made a remark against white people on TV.

"I was never a fan of his. I want to see him get beat sometime.

"I want to see Foreman the champ. He's got a good personality, he's All-American and he fights. Like at the Olympics when he waved the American flag. I'm very patriotic."

Ray Ramey — white, in his 30s and a resident of Chicago's New Town — admitted to being a big fan of the champ.

"In the beginning, I didn't understand him," said Ramey. "I don't think the average person did. The loudmouth. He carried himself in an unusual manner.

"But as time went on, he began to stand for something. Not only for the black people but for the white as well.

"It could be his last fight. I'd hate to see him go down. I really do."

Concerning Ali's marital problems, Ramey said he only judged Ali "in the ring. I don't know what his personal problems were. It has little or no affect on me. I'm sure she'll be taken care of."

Chet Walker, the Bulls' former all-star forward, echoed these sentiments regarding Ali's personal life.

Being in the limelight himself for many years, this proud black basketball player could relate to Ali's problems. Walker said Ali's private problems outside the ring were nobody else's business.

Still, Ali's extra-marital affairs make news. And such stories just add to the controversy that surrounds this most unique individual.

Even the outcome of the fight was controversial. The unwritten law of the fight jungle — the contender must soundly whip the champ — held true again. The fight probably should have ended in a draw, but that's unheard of in heavyweight title matches.

After the majority of the DePaul crowd roared its approval of the unanimous but close decision, there seemed a huge sigh of relief. The "People's Champion" had performed another miracle.

But Ali barely won even though he appeared in superb shape. Again, it seemed that his strong heart — the will to succeed — pulled him through by the narrowest of margins.

Will his tremendous ego allow him to quit as champion? Can the temptation of a possible $10 or $20 million payday lure Ali into fighting Foreman again? Will he have to be knocked unconscious before he'll give up the game? Worse yet, will he hang on and on, dreaming of making still another comeback as Floyd Patterson did?

Now would be his chance to bow out gracefully. But Muhammad never does the expected. So he'll fight Foreman again just to prove the first win was no fluke.

He's still the "People's Champion," but I have the feeling that much of the status he enjoys will be lost if he leaves the fight game a beaten man.

The Count hurls Giant no-hitter

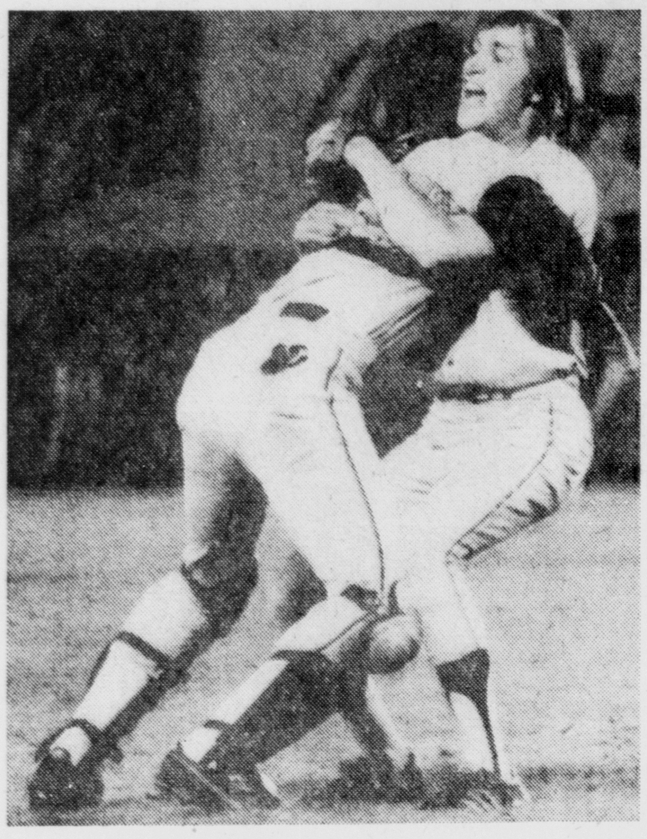
Sports world



JOHN MONTEFUSCO gets a bear hug from San Francisco batterymate catcher Gary Alexander after final out of no-hit, no-run gem against the Atlanta Braves. Montefusco faced just one batter over the maximum as the Giants romped, 9-0.

Montefusco pitches no-hit masterpiece

ATLANTA — Brash John Montefusco, backing up his boasts with a blazing fastball and pin-point control, pitched the fourth no-hitter of the major league season and the first of his career Wednesday night in a 9-0 win by the San Francisco Giants over the Atlanta Braves.

Montefusco, 16-14, struck out four batters and walked only one man, Jerry Royster, who led off the fourth inning.

The last time Montefusco had faced the braves on August 6th, he predicted that Willie Montanez would not get a base hit off him the rest of the year. He made good his boast by blanking the entire Braves' roster in the next time he faced him in Wednesday night's game. No one came close to a hit.

Only 1,369 fans were in attendance and many of them were shouting "no-hitter, no-hitter" at Montefusco as he crouched in the batters' circle waiting to bat in the eighth inning.

Lasorda named as Dodger manager

LOS ANGELES — Tommy Lasorda, a dedicated organization man who turned down other major league managing offers while waiting patiently for Walter Alston to retire, Wednesday was appointed manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Alston, who finally did announce his retirement Monday after 23 years on the job, immediately put Lasorda in charge of the club for the Dodgers' remaining four games this season.

Lasorda, 49, a holler guy who says he "bleeds Dodger blue," was announced as the new manager at a Dodger Stadium news conference.

The first words uttered by Lasorda, who coached under Alston at Montreal in the 1950s, were in praise of his mentor and predecessor.

"The man I refer to as 'The Big Dodger' has always been 'The Man' to me," said the happy Lasorda. "I hope and pray I can live up to his image. Thanks, Walt, for the wonderful memories you've given us."

'Robbed' Norton demands rematch

NEW YORK —Ken Norton, claiming he was robbed by the judges in losing a controversial heavyweight title decision to champion Muhammad Ali, said today he would retire if not given a rematch.

"I do think I won the fight big," Norton said. "I won it decisively. I did exactly what I wanted to do. It speaks for itself, I worked my booty off for this fight and all I can do is quit now. To have it taken from me is a great injustice."

"If I do not get a rematch with Ali, I'm quitting. Boxing has turned sour in my mouth."

When Ali entered the news conference a half hour after Norton and learned of his beaten adversary's remarks, he laid down the groundwork for a fourth fight.

"Go fight George Foreman and beat him, then I'll fight you," Ali said to Norton. Then turning to the press, Ali added, "I'm not gonna fight Norton a fourth time without fighting George Foreman. That's crazy. Foreman deserves a shot. He's the No. 1 contender.

"I don't want to fight two more tough fights. This is getting hard, I want to fight one more and I want it to be Foreman. But if Norton can beat Foreman, then I'll fight him again."

Pro baseball bomb ticking louder

WASHINGTON — That ticking heard on Capitol Hill is a legislative time bomb that could go off under professional baseball in the next session of Congress. Unless defused by the baseball owners, it could blow to smithereens the sport's unique legal exemption from federal antitrust laws which has prevailed on the basis of Supreme Court decisions for 54 years.

The message that the immunity is in jeopardy was delivered at the recently concluded hearings of a special House Committee on Professional Sports, which is to make recommendations to the Congress convening in January. More than half of the 13 committee members have pointedly signalled they are leaning toward ending baseball's exemption, including Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., and the senior GOP member, Rep. Wiliam Horton, R-N.Y.

The fail-safe point may be reached in early December when the major league owners convene for their winter meeting in Los Angeles. Failure of the National League to expand at that time might well trigger an adverse committee response.

Ryan hypnotizes White Sox, 3-0

From Herald Wire Services

ANAHEIM, CALIF. — Mount Prospect rookie Larry Monroe will make his second start of the season for the White Sox tonight when Chicago plays the California Angels in Anaheim.

The Sox lost, 3-0, Wednesday night.

Flamethrowing Nolan Ryan was on the hill for the Angels and spiced his shutout pitching with 10 strikeouts through the opening eight innings.

Ken Brett, a victim of shoddy White Sox defense throughout most of his starts, yielded an unearned run in the first inning Wednesday. The Angels doubled their advantage with another solo run in the third and added another in the seventh.

The only offense the Sox could show through the first six innings was a single by Ralph Garr.

Monroe, a righthander who had previously started and pitched two innings before being strategically relieved by manager Paul Richards, will be making his first appearance of his career against the Angels.

Monday shot tips Pirates

From Herald Wire Services

PITTSBURGH — Rick Monday hit his 31st home run and Steve Renko scattered five hits Wednesday night to give the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Renko, 8-12, walked two and struck out seven in hurling the distance.

Monday's sixth-inning solo blast was one of only three hits off loser Larry Demery, 10-7, who retired the first 13 batters before Manny Trillo hit a blooped single.

Palatine

PALATINE AMATEUR FOOTBALL ASSN.

Palatine South's Longhorns regained their winning ways with a 6-0 win over Mundelein. The rain caused an unusual number of turnovers, but the Longhorns kept constant pressure on the Mundelein defense. Palatine's punting game, highlighted by Jennings, constantly gave them good field position. Scott Lombardo and Jess Espinoza played well both ways, and Espinoza cracked in for the only score from three yards out. David Chase turned in a strng ame at defensive end. Palatine will host Highland Park this Sunday at Fremd High School.

Youth soccer

BOYS
BEGINNERS
Dolphins 4, Sharks 0

A hat trick by Louis Schager, one goal by Steve Chope; assists by Danny Hibner and two by Dave Walocha; defense by Dal Suslick and Danny Jacobson and a shutout by Jim Sonnenberg.

Barracudas 1, Marlins 0

The shorthanded Barracudas' Christopher Deutschmann scored one tally (although Marlin Paul Zipperich put up a terrific defense), and Randy Moore earned the shutout.

JUNIORS
Jaguars 0, Lions 0

Excellent work by Lion goalie Brad Liddiard held the undefeated Jags to a rare tie. The Jaguar stars were Mark Roe and John Burke on defense and Jim Proce, Peter Campbell, Dan Schager, Greg Jackowski and Ken Magee.

Tigers 1, Cheetahs 0

Cheetah Albert Kraml made a good save, and Todd Bleecker passed well to Mike Polizzi and Paul Burgess, but the Tigers' Mike Jennings, who was playing super soccer, made a single unassisted goal on a direct free kick. Matt Kouzes was strong at halfback, and both goalies, Phil John and Mike Donahue, did some fine net tending for the shutout.

Panthers 3, Bobcats 0

Outstanding effort by backs Danny Moller and Roddy Kincaid wasn't enough to hold the Panthers who were making their best team performance of the year. There was excellent play by Bob LeFevre, John Pabich, Chris Strzalka, and Doug Schneid; a shutout by Brad Rojas; and goals by Mike Swanson (assisted by Mike Stevens), Scott Padgett (assist to Swanson), and Bill Hibner (assist by Dan Schuman).

Cougars 2, Wildcats 0

Wildcat goalie Tim Cimaglio held the score down while brother Chris did an outstanding job at center forward and Bob Schulze at right half, but Cougars won on two goals by Craig Hartman (on assists by David Pederson and John Kleiser) and good defensive play by Gabor Mark, Gary Small, John Chase, Mary Falkenberg, and shutout goalies Mike Hibner and John Miller.

Pumas 2, Alley Cats 1

A good game by both sides with the Puma fullbacks looking strong and Kevin Smith and Dan Hogan scoring. The Cat tally was by Tom Dahlborn.

SENIORS
Impalas 5, Rams 1

The Impalas played superb soccer and built up the 5-1 score by half time. Their goals were by Bob Wegener (2), Andy Deutschmann (2), and Dave Castillo with assists by Rob Parenzan, Mike Crouse, Castillo and Wegener. The Ram goal was by Chris Collins.

Bears 3, Gazelles 2

The Bears were short a man, but Jim Lunch scored twice and Jim Rennie once to edge out the opposition. The Gazelle tallies were by Bill May and Jeff Ernst.

GIRLS
Streakers 0, Soccer Boppers 0

This was a defensive battle with Rita Belsterling, Christine Caviolo, Lisa Genovese, and Laurie Love starring for the Streakers; and Laura Carlile, Shelly Boudreau, and Kelly Murphy for the Boppers. The shutout goalies were Mary Beth Lydon and Mary Margaret O'Brien respectively.

INTERMEDIATES
Flaming Tigers 1, Royal Runners 0

The Tigers won on fine defensive play by Lisa Rennie and Allison Walther, a shutout for Vanessa Hadley, and a single goal by Colleen Molohon on a pass from Michele Lundell.

Green Machine 3, Skylarks 0

Good kicking by Skylarks Mary Ellen Arnold and Mary Ann Best, and some good wing plays by Mary Pat Miller, weren't enough to penetrate the Machine defense; Jennie Joll, Heidi Campbell, Jodi Hummel, and shutout goalie Justine Zamback. The offense, led by Charyl Crim and Amy Wilson, blasted in three goals; two by Denise Andre and one by Debbie Wenn.

Golden Eagles 5, Red Barons 0

Two goals each by Cindy Chope and Nancy Shellander, and one by Marilee Richards, and shutout performance by Maria Breen and Christine Mark made the Gold win in spite of good play by Barons Mary Delanty and Pam Stones.

SENIORS
Grasshoppers 0, Golden Eagles 0

Good play by both teams and particularly by Eagles Joan and Kitty Naughton (shutout goalie), Megan Frebault, Patti and Rhonda Reiter, and Donna Veshuroff; and Grasshopper goalies Cindy Kist and Lorrie Norys, characterized this scoreless match.

Bumblebees 4, Orange Blossoms 0

Superb passing by the forward line and the halfbacks; good defense by Cathy Chernesky, goals by Julie Monaco (assisted by Julie Buist), LaJuan Gregory, and double scorer Lori Hogan, helped the shutout for goalies Mary Jo Incavo and Jennifer Wilson.

TRAVELING TEAM
Celtic Midgets 1, Northbrook Booters 0

Great play by Jim Belsterling, Jim Joll, Michael Deutschmann, and Steve Winkler; a shutout by Jim Castello; and a single goal by Rich Drozd on an assist by Bill Murphy enabled the Celtic to eke out his second win of the National League season.

Youth football

Arlington Heights

Falcons 12, Bears 0

Fine defensive play by Bears M. Moore and S. LaBeau held the Falcons scoreless until late in the second quarter when Falcon quarterback Steve Rossdeutcher threw a 22-yard touchdown pass to Mahon. Falcon backs Terry Clerkin and Mahon made fine runs to aid the drive.

A strong Bear defense held the Falcons again in the second half until the last minutes of play. The final touchdown came on fourth down and two yards to go when Rossdeutcher pushed over.

Colts 44, Cardinals 0

Doug Brown ran 37 yards for a touchdown on the Colts 1st play from scrimmage. Gary Berman made two touchdown runs of 50 yards each in the first quarter. The Colt defense was helped by a pass interception by Curt Petersen.

Led by a passing attack from Nick Kangas to Kyle Grove, the Colts drove to the Cardinal six-yard line in the second quarter. Kangas carried the ball over the final score in the first half.

Both Kangas and Brown scored again in the second half. Brown ended up with 106 yards rushing on eight carries and Gary Berman had 129 yards on nine carries. Kangas completed six for six passes, five to Grove for 74 yards.

Packers 20, Cowboys 0

Two touchdowns by D. Kane and one by J. Schurr were made possible by a strong offensive line that ripped holes in the Cowboy defense. Helping on the scoring drives were Packer quarterback T. Ries and running back D. Dublinski.

Good defensive efforts were turned in by M. Jennings, B. Lonergan and P. Finnerty of the Packers. Punting by T. Ries of the Packers kept the Cowboys in trouble for most of the game.

Vikings 30, Eagles 0

Tough defensive efforts by Vikings' Dave Heinrich and Myles Naughton and a fumble recovery by Tim Kirkpatrick held the Eagles scoreless in the first half. Kip Sharp scored the only touchdown for the Vikings on a three-yard dive. Gary Deboker, Kevin O'Hare and Jason Gedoric made good tackles for the Eagles, and Deboker recovered a Viking fumble.

The third quarter saw Sharp scoring again on a 20-yard run. The extra points were made by a pass in the flat to end Ken Delisi. Delisi also caught a 35-yard scoring pass, with Rich Cascairo scoring the extra points. Viking defensemen Scott Hayman, Tom Mueller, Steve Bretl and Jim Buerer completely stopped the Eagle offense, until the 4th quarter. Doug Heasley of the Eagles then completed a 35-yard pass to Todd Johnson, but the threat ended without a score.

The final Viking touchdown was made on a 45 yard pass to Heinrich from Kirkpatrick.

Saints 30, Steelers 6

After a tight six minutes of play, the Saints completely blew the Steelers off the field in the first quarter, scoring 16 points. Jay Devero, off blocks by Topzcewski, Ischinger, and Ailshie went 72 yards for the first Saint touchdown. Mike Bonogura scored the extra points. After a Steeler fumble, Bonogura went 22 yards for the second touchdown, and Lance Pearson scored the extra points on a counter play.

A Saint drive aided by a 23 yard run by Pearson and 17 yards by Bonoguro was climaxed by a one-yard plunge by Brad Rosley for the score. The extra points were made on a pass from Tom Sanders to Pearson.

The Steelers got on the board in the third quarter with a pass from Adam Gotheredge to Ken Klein. This followed another touchdown run by Bonogura of the Saints. Saint Tom Weber helped the defense by intercepting two Steeler passes in the third quarter.

Browns 64, Giants 0

Rick Mianulli scored three touchdowns and two extra point tries for 22 points; Clark Poland and Dan Humbert scored two touchdowns each; and Rich Mazolini and Phil Sammons scored one touchdown each. Tim Jauch, Tom Ness and Mike More each had two-point conversions.

The entire Brown defense was outstanding holding the Giants to 28 yards net. Dean Niro, Rich Mazzolini and Mike Griffin each recovered a fumble. Jerry Coughlin, Kurt Thome, John Swift and Tim Saegis blocked punts.

Mount Prospect

SENIORS
Lions 7, Colts 6

Lion quarterback M. Mooney scored from 1 yd. out while T. Prawitt added the game winning extra point. Jeff Koepke ran well as Pfister and Dipoalo opened the holes. Noted for offensive play was McGuire, Wingate, Dote and Zierfuss. Defensively Mooney had two interceptions while Koepke, Johnson and Bernard led the charge. Colt fullback Kolls blasted offtabkle for the TD. Good defense by Limperis, Polozzi, Vraliel, Jolly and Eldrup.

Giants 6, Cardinals 0

Phil Toepper led the Giants with a TD sweep behind the blocking of Payne, Nicholich, Phillips and Benjamin after several key pass receptions by Paisley from Nielsen. Defense by Teufel, Blondell, Prendergast, Gilbreth, Arnold and Gorgol. The Card defense of Devito, Malloy, Axlerod, Anderson and Schmidt hung tough. Offensively Francis, Larman and Cichon played solid ball.

Oilers 30, Redskins 0

First quarter TD's by Ken Iwanski and Sprinkman. Execution of plays by Mistak, Hilb, Kier, Logan and Meyer increased the half time lead as Iwanski notched his second TD. Maher scored and Iwanski completed the charge with his third TD. The Oiler defense was led by the efforts of Funk, Sobeski, Glatt, and Koyangi.

Rams 12, 49'ers 0

Ram halfback Doug Zaucha turned it on in the second half with a TD sweep and a dazzling 75 yd. punt return for another. Fine running by Greg Fuchs, combined with the hard blocking by Weidner, Walsh, Anderson, Krause, Zender, Koustardous, Meade and Martinelli. The defense of Markowski, Brand, Kelleher, Gradei and Nickle were tough. Special mention goes to Kinney, McGough, Scully, McTigue and Bernard Doyle.

Cowboys 13, Falcons 0

Cowboys halfback Steve Rudnick sprinted 45 yds. for the TD behind a super block by Mitch Reinhardt; then Rudnick added the extra point. The strong offensive line of Fumegalli, Dave Klop, Brzozowski, Jeff Klop, Bulaw, Borgstrom and John Sersen blasted holes in the tough Falcon defense. The Cowboy linebackers of Sersen, Rudnick, Foloky and Allen combined to contain the Falcon offense. A 20 yd. interception for a TD by Tom Judy iced the big victory.

Steelers 19, Eagles 0

Ed Wallace and Dom Falcone each picked up TD's behind the front wall of Lake, Paulos, Keeler, Vihnanek, Bak, Lawry, Roach and Haaland. Fumble recoveries were made by Hurd, Wallace and Ed Cheathan who ran 30 yds. for a TD. Bob DiBastian sealed an Eagle drive with a pass interception.

Raiders 13, Chiefs 6

Outstanding defensive players were Andros, Ryan, Popovich, Anderskow and Fisher. Hunt notched two TD's on a 5 yd. run and a 15 yd. pass from Kuehl. Other offensive power was supplied by Close, Zipparro, Gelfand and Zavodny. A TD pass from Maloney to Nicholson put the Chiefs on the board. The defensive play by Cilenti was a blue chip performance.

BANTAMS
Gophers 7, Hawkeyes 6

Behind the protection of Krawchuk, McGuire, Sauer and Rubel, Gopher back Steve Perns ran for the TD. Scott Girolmo scored what proved to be the game-winning extra point. The Gopher defense was sparked by a Huska fumble recovery and sterling tackles by Mizwicki, Kulling and Kowalski. The Hawkeyes charged back late in the game on a TD by Jim Weiand. The offense was led by Free, John Weiand, Faulhaber, Antonson and Goehring. The defense was inspired by a Tim Prendergast and Lamphier blocked punt.

Boilermakers 38, Tigers 0

Pat Mooney, Joe Burdi, Ken Gavre, Tom Best, Brad Quast and Dave Eddy scored TD's. Great blocking by John Raftery, Mark Maliski, Brian Zoellick led the attack with quarterback Jim Arredia engineering the offense with two pass completions. The defense was led by Mooney, Brian Schlaw and Don Golic.

Illini 12, Hoosiers 0

Rich Schutz plunged 4 yards for the TD behind blocking from Mike Fletcher, Steve Roberts and John Daley. Defense by Werhane, O'Brien, Webb, Borgerson and Hank Fredericks set up a blocked punt by Phil Miller who recovered for the second Illini score. Other outstanding efforts were by Watnabe, Matthies, Fack and Savage. The Hoosier defense of Gorham, Lucas, Limperis, Christy and Schlecht fought hard.

BANTAMS
Spartans 6, Bruins 6

The Spartans took an early first half lead with a 20 yard TD by Bert Kruth who also had a 55 yard run behind the blocking of Boron, Benson, Wolfe, Dvoracek and McNeil. Spartans were aided by a Brian Boron interception. The Bruins came back behind Duever and Kelly and a 15 yard TD run by Nelson. Defensively Davidson, Caldarrella, Hunt, Boffa, Klinger and Jobski gave the Bruins a strong charge.

Wolverines 12, Badgers 6

Kyle Weller completed four passes for 36 yards and tough running was added by Brad Davis, Bill Steinment and Craig Moburg who burned the Badger defense with TD runs of 52 and 63 yards. Defensive standouts were Scott Vrable, Breze, Kerger, Zender and Chipchase made the big plays.

Jeff Francis, Tim Scully and Randy Boba made sizable yardage behind the blocking of Dave Cantieri, Dave Berendt and Kevin Brennan. Scott Fedro gave the Badgers an early lead with quarterback sneak, after two fine pass receptions by Doug Barker. Defensively, the redmen played ough with fumble recovery by Francis and Matt Dolan.

Buffalo Grove Bills

Lightweights Bills 12, Gagewood Packers0

In the "mud" bowl classic last Sunday, the Bills lightweights held the Gagewood Packers to 43 total yards and sloshed their way to a 12-0 win on a muddy field. Doug Nelson scored the first Bill TD on a one-yard QB sneak. And in the second half, halfback Jeff Albrecht went in from the eight-yard line. The Bills defensive unit recorded their third shutout as Ron Hoefmeister, Rod Haslam, Dave Gherardini, Ken Brecht, Jeff Peterson, and Bobby Veternik played well. End Mike Salat opened numerous holes for Bills backs to run around.

Bills Widgets 44, Addison Cowboys0

The Bills widgets, behind the three-TD performance of back Wade Light, trampled the Addison Cowboys last Saturday 44-0. Two of Light's TD's came off the arm of QB Joe Molloy who connected on passes of 32 and 60 yards. Dean Kuller scored a TD from the four, and Fred O'Connor sprinted 52 yards for still another Bills TD. Finally in the final minute, fullback Scot DuVal got loose on a 44-yard run. The defense unit held Addison to just one first down and was anchored by Mike Kozemzak, Scott Ringel, Rick Santi, Kevin Luthringshausen, and Tom Lahrman.

Addison Pee Wee White 25, Bills Pee Wee Red 6

The White squad stopped the Bills Reds 25-6 despite a 65-yard rushing performance by back Tim Peterson. And it was "Pete" who scored the lone Red TD on a 40-yard sweep. The coaches had special praise for the offensive performance of QB Scott Walker and back Bob Hajek.

Schaumburg Grens 30, Golden Widgets 6

The young golden widgets were outmanned by 15 to 20 pounds per man at nearly every position and could simply not keep up with the powerful Schaumburg Grenadiers last Saturday. End Donnie Triplett caught a 2-yard pass from QB Mark Loeffler for the only Bills points. Both the Bills safeties — Chris Tufano and John Anderson — along with nose guard Chris Gorman's play was good for the Bills defensive 11.

Bills Black 51, Gagewood Steelers 0

The Bills black pee wee squad put it all together Sunday and stomped the Gagewood Steelers 51-0. The Bills totaled 307 way with four TD's. Craig Kritch recovyards rushing as QB Mark Loeffler led the ered a Steeler fumble and went 40 yards for another TD. And end Scott Rech caught a pair of TD passes from Loeffler. Finally Chris Gorman ran over from the 23 to cap the Bills scoring. The Bills defensive team limited Gagewood to just 4 total offensive yards the entire game.

Bills Heavyweights 18, Gagewood Packers 0

Despite a muddy field at Gagewood, the Bills prevailed in a game filled with interceptions and fumbles. In the second quarter after a short Gagewood punt, the Bills drove for their first tally, capped by a 18-yard TD run by Tom Zeien. In the second half, the bigger Bills wore down the Packers by sustaining two long drives. The second TD was again scored by Zeien from 28 yards out. Finally QB Phil Menzel scored the third Bills TD on a four-yard sweep. Defensively the Bills were led by Dave Smith's two interceptions, and the fine play of Joe Coriaci, Brian Weiner, Ken Seminick, and Paul Heesch.

Pee Wee Bills Gold 31, Gagewood Packers 0

Quarterback Tim Parsons personally contributed to the success of his Bills pee wee gold team as he scored a record five TD's in leading the Golds to an impressive 31-0 rout over the Gagewood Packers Sunday. Parsons scored three TD's on runs of 45, 2 and 13 yards. On defense he scored on two pass interceptions from 50 and 80 yards away. Marc Battaglini led the defensive unit to its third straight shutout. Linebackers Brad Dyson, and Brian Mitalo effectively shut off the Packers ground attack with help from Chris Tufano and Kevin Meland who recovered a Packer fumble. Kevin Potter rushed for over 50 yards and set up two of the Bills five TD's.

The environment

Save natural areas: Giebel

by LEA TONKIN

Unique natural areas in Illinois should be protected, not bulldozed for new development, says Henry Giebel of Des Plaines.

Giebel, as a spokesman for the Des Plaines Valley Chapter of the Sierra Club, plans to testify at an Illinois Recreation Council hearing at 7 p.m. today in the Marriott-Chicago O'Hare Motor Hotel.

Areas such as the Chevy Chase prairie on Lake-Cook Road near Wheeling have been catalogued by the state as valuable natural lands, Giebel said. The land was recently turned under in preparation for a construction project.

"THERE SHOULD be something done to prevent this destruction once an area is cataloged," Giebel said.

The public is invited to attend the recreation council meeting to discuss the Illinois outdoor recreation plan. Council members Gil Deavers and Robert Brinkmeier will chair the session. They are seeking comments on land acquisition, development of state properties, the location and type of recreational development needed in Illinois, said Illinois Conservation Dept. Director John McGuire. The council makes recommendations to the governor, the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, the Illinois Dept. of Business and Economic Development and the Illinois General Assembly.

The U.S. Senate has killed two controversial proposals to build a new lock and dam project at Alton, Ill., and to impose user fees on the nation's inland waterways for the first time.

In a compromise move that cleared the way for passage of the $1.1 billion Rivers and Harbors Navigation and Flood-Control Authorization bill, the Senate by voice vote deleted the two measures. The bill was approved Tuesday by a 78-to-3 vote.

Environmentalists, including the Sierra Club, have opposed the Alton Locks and Dam Project No. 26. U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who led the fight against the Alton project, said it "would affect adversely river eco-systems on a vast scale; would result in piecemeal destruction of fish and wildlife resources, and would result in irretrievable and irreplaceable losses of fish and wildlife resources and values to present and future generations." The measure will be considered by the U.S. House.

The Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, has announced a free self-guided program for children which will continue through Nov. 30. Called "Autumn journey for children: my kind of town," the tour features information on the geology, early history and animals of the Chicago area. Participants should ask for journey sheets at an information desk, and bring a pen or pencil.

President Ford Tuesday signed legislation tripling the size of the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund established in 1965 to expand outdoor recreation areas. The fund money has been used for federal land acquisition and to provide matching grants for state and local programs.

Bar groups self-serving: lawyer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — San Francisco attorney Melvin Belli, once dubbed "King of Torts," is tweaking professional bar associations again for "retrogressive leadership."

Belli, 69, has been in trouble with the California bar and the American Bar Assn. intermittently in the past 20 years. The state bar suspended him for one month because he endorsed a brand of Scotch in a New York newspaper advertisement. Belli defended the endorsement on free speech grounds.

By his own account, Belli once introduced the late racketeer Mickey Cohen to the ABA's national convention under a pseudonym and called him a tax expert. The lawyers listened to Cohen attentively and did not learn who was really addressing them until later. Cohen was under indictment for tax evasion at the time.

BELLI'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY, "My Life on Trial," is now at West Coast bookstores and will be available nationally next month. In it he claims the ABA and state bar associations are riddled with conflict of interest and that "the legal establishment in America is not there to serve the people but to serve itself."

"And," he said, "as members of their various bar associations, they have provided retrogressive leadership in the country for more than a century — and continue to do so."

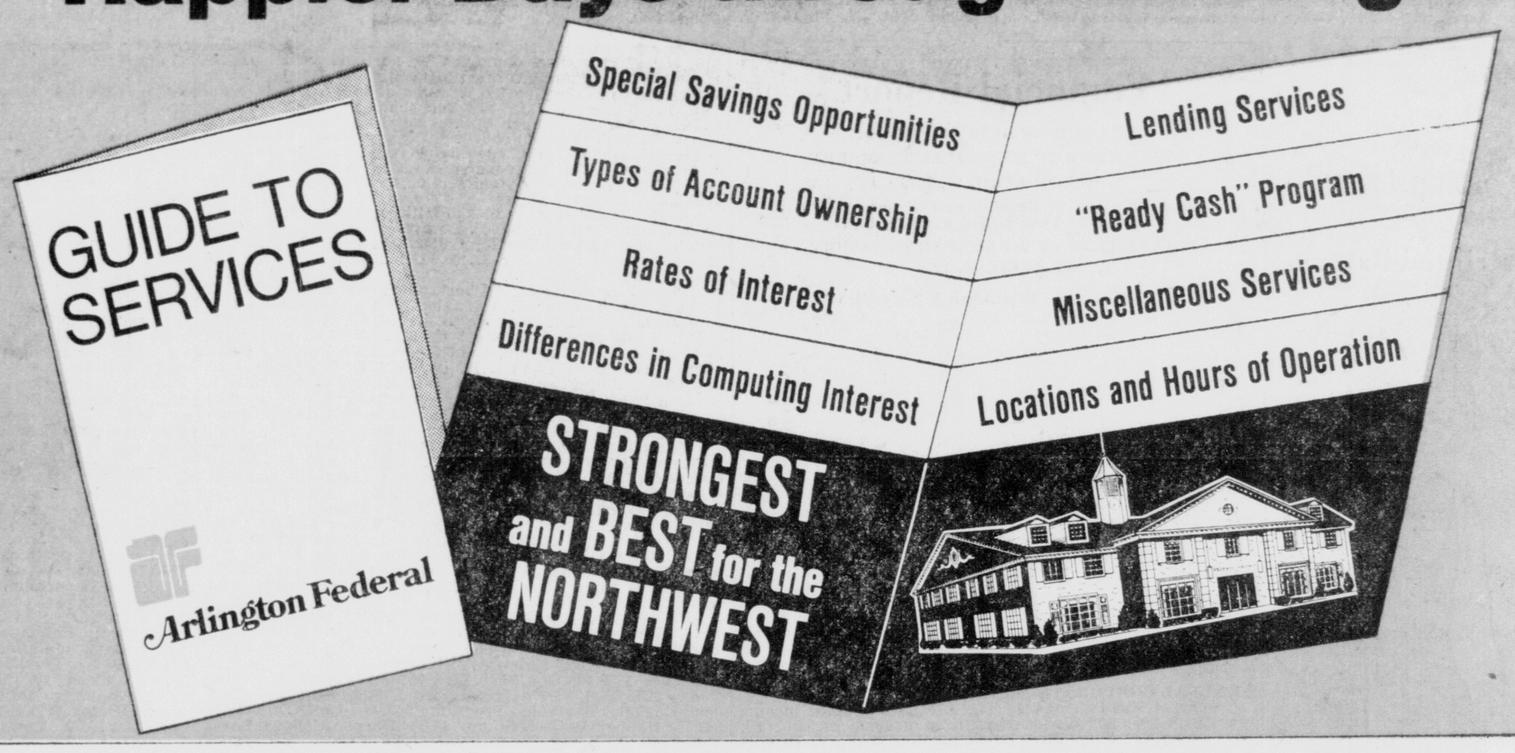
A spokesman at the ABA headquarters in Chicago said the organization "will not dignify Belli's remarks with a response."

Belli writes that most bar leaders "work for the nation's largest establishment law firms and, in that capacity, their main concern is to help predatory corporations screw the people at large, fix prices, challenge the constituionality of antipollution laws, put together phony bond issues."

Belli, who made a national reputation for winning large damage verdicts against private corporations on behalf of their employes and customers, charged that historically "the American Bar Assn. has been anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic."

"Now, of course, they make a show of being on the side of civil rights and the black man and the environment," Belli said. "Balderdash. They're still sitting alongside General Motors and General Mills and General Electric and all the other Generals who have feathered their nests at the expense of you and me."

Here is your GUIDE to Happier Days through Savings



YOUR FUTURE AND ITS OPPORTUNITIES are dependent on what you are doing for them now. Our role as a thrift institution is to provide the incentive and know-how for a sound savings program. Our Guide to Services is yours for the asking at any of the Arlington Federal offices. When you have digested its contents, you will be ready to sit down with our savings counselors and map your financial plan for the future.

SAVINGS OPPORTUNITIES. You may be unaware of the variety of ways in which savings can become a natural and systematic part of your financial management. Federally approved plans like the Individual Retirement Account and the Keogh Savings Account can reduce current income taxes and increase retirement income. The earlier you start, the better. Ask us also about the Transmatic Savings Plan and the Telephone Funds Transfer System, designed to make savings effortless and systematized. If you are receiving Social Security checks, you should be taking advantage of direct deposit.

The various kinds of savings accounts and the types of account ownership deserve your study to determine which fit your specific needs.

INCREASED EARNINGS. By now, astute savers realize that "highest rates allowable by law" do not mean that all financial institutions give you the same return for dollars invested. Ask us to explain the many variables in computing interest and how Arlington Federal selects those which are most beneficial to you. One university study reveals that just one of these variables makes for a difference of almost 68%. You would be wise to investigate and to discover that "the best savings account" is one at Arlington Federal.

MISCELLANEOUS SERVICES. You may be surprised to learn that Arlington Federal can take care of your insurance needs—life, homeowners, mortgage life, automobile, boat, snowmobile, fire and extended coverage, and health and accident. We process bond redemptions, execute sight drafts, issue registered checks without charge to customers (up to $1,000), offer safety deposit boxes for valuables and important papers, provide travelers checks, free notary service, and free check cashing up to savings balance.

LENDING SERVICES. We invite you to look into the special advantages of an Arlington Federal home mortgage loan. Like savings accounts, all mortgage loans are not the same; ours has several distinctive advantages for qualified home buyers. Our loan counselors are especially expert about home values in the northwest suburbs ("Arlington Federal Territory") because of their thorough acquaintance with these communities and continuing studies of trends in local real estate values.

We also make home improvement loans up to $10,000, enabling you to improve the capacity, comfort, and value of your home. If you are now an Arlington Federal borrower, you may find it advantageous to use our "Ready Cash" program and the equity in your home to raise the funds needed for emergencies or opportunities.

These are some of the informational points covered in our Guide to Services. You will find it profitable to drop in at one of the offices listed below and receive your free copy.

STRONGEST AND BEST FOR THE NORTHWEST. This is our slogan and we would like to explain its foundation. As one of the 400 largest of the nation's 5,000 savings and loan associations (a position attained in less than 25 years), we are also among Chicagoland's top 16 and are unusual in the fact that we focus on the northwest suburban communities. The money you deposit here gets invested here. We have more branches serving this area than any other financial institution. Our assets approximate the total combined assets of all five banks of Arlington Heights. Together with our enviable record throughout the industry for sound and successful management, these facts explain why we are strongest and best for the Northwest.

Company in business of selling dreams

by LYNN ASINOF

You can buy three private islands on a Wisconsin lake for only $170,000. Or if you dream of a warmer climate, $660,000 will buy you a 50-acre island complete with three houses in the Bahamas.

Merle Haggard's rural California estate is for sale, and Mary Martin's famous Brazilian ranch is going for only $550,000.

To most people homes such as these are just dreams. But the folks at Previews Inc., an international real estate marketing firm, make a business of dealing in dreams.

ONCE A YEAR, the company lists all its inventory in a catalog and ships the book out to anyone willing to pay the $6 fee. There are castles, islands, ski chalets, cattle farms, victorian mansions and historic colonial homes.

The properties handled by Previews are exclusive. "There is no point in our bringing in a property that's much less than six figures," said Robert Reilly, manager of the Chicago office, noting the 11 per cent fee charged by Previews.

Reilly said all real estate listed has "a sales problem — not that it isn't good but that it is a little too good for the local market."

The catalog is one of the company's best marketing tools. It's distributed free to real estate firms, air lines and other places where potential buyers linger. And the listings bring responses.

"TAKE THIS ONE," Reilly said, waving a brochure for Bettendorf Castle in Fox River Grove listed at $175,000. "We got literally hundreds and hundreds of inquiries about this."

The castle, a miniature replica of an ancient Roman fortress, is now in the process of being sold. The interest in the property was so great that Previews had to limit inspection to "qualified prospects only."

Reilly said Previews' most popular offering is islands, with many located in warmer climates and some in the north woods.

"These are the ones that bring the most responses," Reilly said of the islands. "There is something about being emperor of all you can see."

MOST OF THE islands sold by Previews are bought by businessmen "because they also use them for an entertainment spot," Reilly said.

But owning an island is not for everyone. "If you want a pack of cigarets or an ice cream cone, you have to go down to the boat and go over and get it," Reilly said.

Many of the Previews listings appeal to romantics. "We had a lighthouse in Maine and a minister in Iowa who was approaching retirement age who thought this would be ideal. That's where he retired," Reilly said.

Reilly said a new trend has started in farm areas, with the farm house and buildings sold separate from most of the field property.

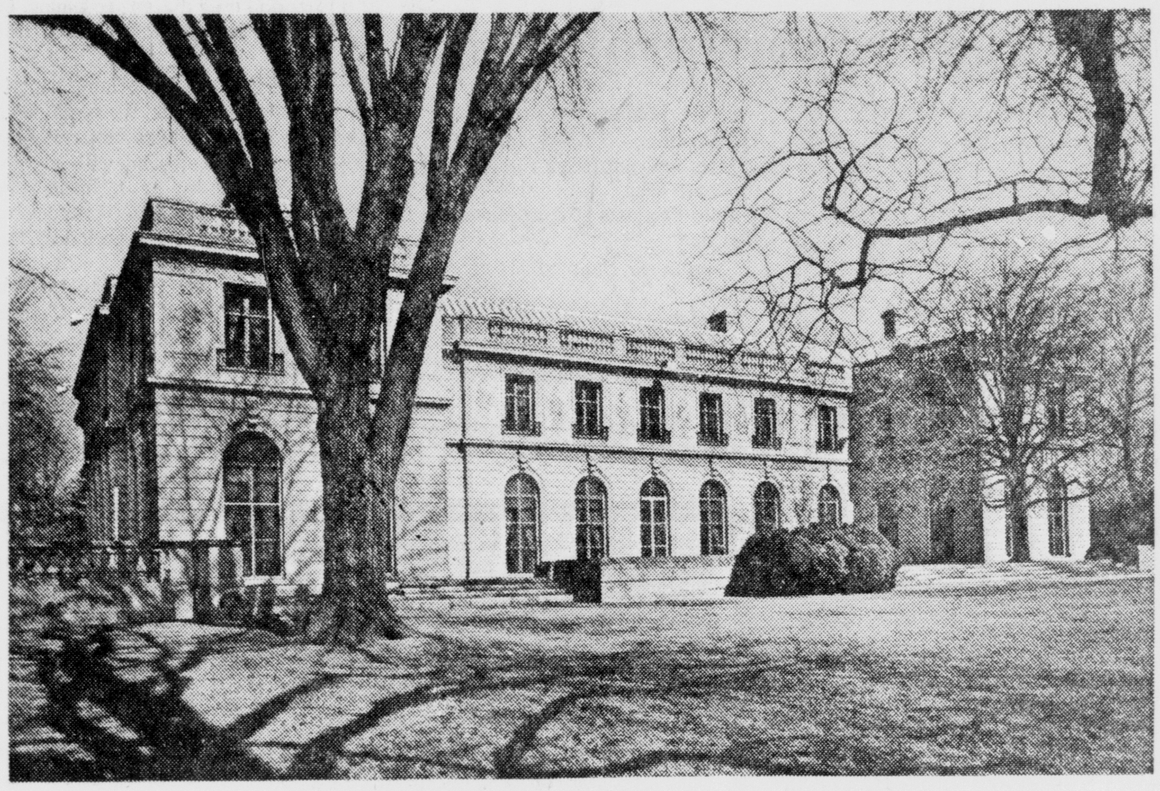
"THIS IS APPEALING to a city dweller who wants a farm building but doesn't really want to be a farmer," Reilly said.

A seven-square mile tract of wilderness in Minnesota, listed at $1.65 million, is attracting people who are concerned about the environment. Reilly said some who have inspected the property like the idea of being able to set the environmental rules for such a large tract of land.

Although Previews attracts all kinds of buyers, Reilly said currently there is a good deal of interest from Italy, Germany and the Middle East.

"Everyone looks to the U.S. as a very solid investment in real estate," he said, noting that both Swiss bankers and Arabian sheiks have contacted the company.

GLAMOUR properties owned by celebrities and movie stars have a special appeal for some buyers, even though other property may have a better investment value.



"ROSE TERRACE," the Grosse Point Farms, Mich. residence of the late Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, is one of the dream properties sold by Previews. Offered at $1.25 million, the 42-room house was divided into condominiums by a developer and sold to people who wanted a piece of "the good life."

"The values will hold up on these glamour properties though," Reilly said. He said a Japanese soft drink manufacturer recently bought Dean Martin's house, mostly because of its prestige.

Since the company started in 1933, it has bought and sold property for both the wealthy and the famous. The list includes the late John Jacob Astor, Leonard Bernstein, Bob Dylan, Sid Caesar, Dean Martin, Pierre Cartier, Yehudi Menuhin, Edmund de Rothschild, the late J. D. Rockefeller Sr. and Artie Shaw.

The firm began in the middle of the Depression, trying to sell the fine old estates in the East. The company used the gimmick of filming the estates and inviting a select group to the "preview."

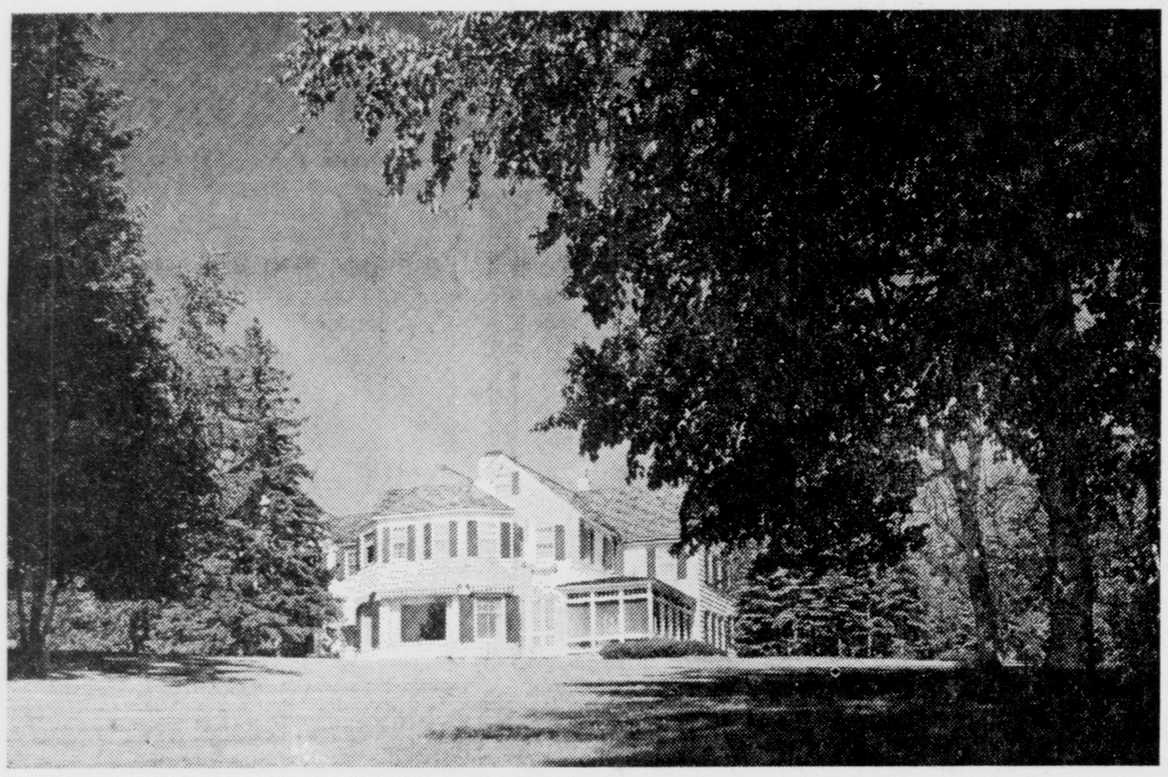
THIS TECHNIQUE soon became too expensive, but Reilly said Previews continued to be a leader in the real estate field. He said the firm was the first to use multiple listings, and now relies on thousands of brokers in its international chain.

Because of the unique kind of property handled by the firm, Reilly said each branch office has its specialty. The Los Angeles office specializes in movie stars' homes, the Denver office deals in ranches and the Chicago office is known for selling colleges.

Reilly has sold several campuses, including Carthage College, the old Rockford College campus and Mackinac College.

Each property handled by Previews is marketed individually, with advertising placed in selected magazines and publications. A special marketing committee works out the program. This leads to some unique approaches.

For example, a house in New Jersey was built without any square corners because the owner believed that ghosts hid in corners. "We marketed that as a house guaranteed not to have ghosts," Reilly said.



TYPICAL OF THE properties handled by Previews, this lakefront estate on Madeline Island, Wis. has a main house and a gate house. Built in the 1920s, the main house has 13 rooms and faces Lake Superior. Completely furnished and equipped, the 2.75-acre property is offered at $200,000.

Help landscaping recover from long, dry summer

Now through mid-October is a good time to help your landscaping overcome the ravages of the long, hot summer and at the same time prepare it to withstand the rigors of the cold winter ahead.

"The first thing that property owners ought to do is to see that evergreens, including broadleaf varieties, are watered enough to make up for the deficit of rainfall in July and August," said Dick Brickman, president of Theodore Brickman Co., Long Grove, landscape architects and contractors.

Evergreens continue to evaporate water during winter, so it's essential that any moisture deficit be made up before the ground freezes. Water should be applied at the surface, using a soaker hose or sprinkler, or just below it, using a root feeder, and allowed to soak down to a 1-foot depth. Deep waterings should be repeated weekly.

TO TELL IF the water has soaked down 12 inches stick a root feeder into the ground 1 foot, then remove it. If the tip has moist earth clinging to it, the water has soaked far enough. If, instead, the tip is dry or dusty, you still have more watering to do.

If your evergreens need trimming or pruning do it before mid-October. After that, there's a chance that newly-exposed wood and foliage is apt to sun-scald because it has no chance to become hardy in the cold weather.

"However, hold off feeding your evergreens and other shrubs until mid-November or until all the deciduous plants lose their leaves," Brickman said. "By feeding shrubs now, you may encourage further growth which won't have enough time to become hardy. After mid-November, there's less danger of this happening. The roots remain active enough to utilize the fertilizer."

Lawn feeding is highly recommended in early October. At this period the grass is "tillering," or sending out horizontal shoots. Feeding now will encourage this growth and promote a thicker lawn. Choose a fall feeding fertilizer, which has phosphorus and potash in amounts equal to or greater than nitrogen, Brickman said.

BECAUSE OF THE great amount of rain we had in the spring, and because of lawn watering, you may find that your trees have grown more than normally and now require shaping and trimming. This work should be done in the fall to prevent ice and snow damage that can occur on overgrown or weakened limbs. A professional tree trimmer may be your best bet for this task.

Thinking ahead to the days when the leaves start to fall, you might want to consider buying a mulching machine to dispose of leaves and return them to the soil. Brickman suggests that several neighbors can share the cost of a machine to bring the per-house cost down.

Brickman said another idea that's worth considering is the use of a blower to rake up leaves. These are especially good for getting leaves out of shrubbery. There are compact blower units on the market, including a portable one that's worn on the back, with a flexible nozzle to direct the air stream.

If you are thinking ahead of next year, Brickman suggests that you plant your flowering bulbs now, while the week-ends are still pleasant. Bulbs can go in anytime until the ground freezes, but why wait for a cold, wet day to do it?

At the same time you're planning for next year, you may want to make some basic improvements in your landscaping, such as putting in or enlarging a patio or terrace, replacing poor plant specimens with better ones, adding new trees and ornamentals, installing shrubs for privacy, or otherwise upgrading your property. This is a good time of year to call in a landscape architect-contractor to discuss your possibilities. That way, you can prepare plans during the winter and be ready to go when spring comes.

U.S. Home Corp. tells earnings hike

U.S. Home Corp., the nation's largest home builder, reported that for the six months ended Aug. 31, net income increased 195 per cent over the comparable period of the prior fiscal year. For the quarter ended Aug. 31, net income increased 52 per cent over the second quarter of the previous year.

For the six months the company earned $4,646,000 or 45 cents per share, fully diluted, on revenues of $176,143,000, compared with earnings of $1,577,000 or 16 cents per share, fully diluted, on revenues of $143,179,000 in the first half of last year.

For the quarter, U.S. Home reported net income of $2,294,000 or 23 cents per share, fully diluted, on revenues of $91,749,000, compared with net income of $1,508,000 or 15 cents per share, fully diluted, on revenues of $78,379,000 in the same period of the previous year.

"The results for the year to date are most gratifying," said Charles Rutenberg, chairman of U.S. Home Corporation.

THE CHAIRMAN said that the improved earnings performance reflects the success of U.S. Home's continuing program to increase its penetration in existing housing markets. He said that during the current fiscal year U.S. Home had opened 28 new housing communities in the major housing markets it currently serves. He said that an additional 22 housing communities are scheduled for opening during the balance of the current fiscal period.

"The increased sales volume from new community openings, combined with improved operating efficiency, a reduction in total borrowings and lower interest rates will continue to aid U.S. Home in achieving improved earnings performance."

Headquartered in Clearwater, Florida, U.S. Home Corporation was ranked recently by Professional Builder magazine as the nation's largest home builder. The company has major home building operations in Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, the Washington, D. C. area and Florida.

Manufacturers of building products report profit hike

Continuing to show a strong profit comeback from the depressed levels of 1975, building products manufacturers posted an after-six profit gain of 40 per cent in the second quarter of this year, the F.W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company reported.

Sales in the April - May - June period rose 16 per cent over a year-ago, according to the results of the firm's latest review of a representative group of building products makers. McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, an authority on the construction market, is noted for its Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information.

The industry's profit improvement was widespread, according to George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of Dodge. "Nine out of every ten firms in our survey reported higher earnings," he said. The Dodge review subdivides the industry into 14 product groups, all of which showed profit improvement during the second quarter. "This included the basic metals groups, which were among the last segments of the industry to show a recovery," Christie said.

The second quarter after-tax profit gains for the 14 building materials product categories reviewed by Dodge were:

Heating and air conditioning equipment (3 companies), over 100 per cent

Glass (3 companies), up 93 per cent

Coatings (3 companies), up 60 per cent

Aluminum (3 companies), up 55 per cent

Controls (4 companies), up 54 per cent

Plumbing products (3 companies), up 54 per cent

Cement (9 comapnies), up 42 per cent

Forest products (6 companies), up 42 per cent

Tools and hardware (5 companies), up 40 per cent

Multi-Products (6 companies), up 39 per cent

Gypsum (2 companies), up 31 per cent

Electrical fixtures (5 companies), up 17 per cent

Iron and steel (4 companies), up 14 per cent

Heavy equipment manufacturers (5 companies), up 2 per cent.

Autumn time for checking heat system

Before you inow it, autumn will be here in force and another heating season will begin. Now, while your system is still shut down, is a good time to have it checked.

Your family's comfort, health, energy and sense of well-being all are affected by the evenness and quality of your home's heat. With the current emphasis on fuel savings, the check becomes doubly important, since an efficient system also will conserve fuel, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau notes.

Perhaps all your system needs is cleaning and servicing, and the replacement of some parts. On the other hand, if it seems to gobble up fuel and still leave cold spots in the house, it will pay you to have it replaced.

Hydronic heat is a quality type. It uses water as the heating medium and is efficient, clean, quiet and draft-free. Baseboard radiation makes placement of furniture and the hanging of drapes easy.

Another desirable feature of hydronic heat is the ease with which it can be "zoned" to vary the temperature in different areas of thehome according to the activity there. Thus, bathrooms can be kept warm and bedrooms cool for sleeping. Rooms occupied by babies or older folks can be kept warmer, while rooms such as recreation rooms used by active teenagers can be kept cooler. The temperature in seldom-used rooms, such as guest rooms, can be kept low. All this not only means maximum comfort for everyone but fuel savings as well.

Home buy, sale can be agonizing move

by Don G. Campbell

There's a perfect time to buy a house . . . a perfect time for selling a house.

The fact that the last person who hit it perfectly at both ends was an Ohio farmer in the late 19th century doesn't stop us from thinking it could happen again some day — to us.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My wife and I are in our late 20s with two children. My income is $18,000 and our problem is this: we bought a house three years ago for $21,000 — $175 a month on a 7 per cent VA loan. The house is in an older, but nice, area. We have invested about $1,500 in repairs — something every month.

Six months ago we rented an apartment (nice, modern) for $270 and rented the house out for six months at $240 a month. We hoped to find a newer and bigger house, but need a downpayment so we can have a lower mortgage payment. The chances are that I will be transferred within two years.

Would it be wise to sell the old house? This week we have to repair a gas leak under the house — $200. A month ago we put up a fence for $200. The house does not have central heating and is small. We feel we could manage larger payments since my wife can make $8,000 working.

We want a nicer home but, in two years, which would be more salable and profitable? A house we would want would run about $38,000 — Mr. J. R. (Tucson, Ariz.)

ANSWER: If this house you own were your principal residence you wouldn't have to go through this agonizing debate; it would obviously pay you to hang onto it until your transfer goes through. You could then sell it and defer tax on the capital gain by then buying the house you REALLY want in your new location.

But, as a piece of income-producing property, this house is something of a drag (you COULDN'T be making any money on it). I'd sell it right now and tuck away whatever profit you have in it (after taxes). Augment this with the money that is now going into your mortgage payments on it — and what you're now spending on it to keep it up right.

By the time your transfer goes through, it seems to me that you should be in pretty good shape to swing the higher-priced house in your new town.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I use the den in my home for business purposes. A friend has just told me that I can deduct this percentage of my total floor space as business expense. Is this right? — Mr. W. F. (Long Beach, Calif.)

ANSWER: It's always been the case — plus a percentage of your utilities — but you'd better check next spring with a good tax man because the Internal Revenue Service has just tightened up on this little gimmick with a vengeance. It's a whole new game and simply using the den incidentally for business purposes isn't going to cut it any longer.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We recently bought a home, and when we took possession I was surprised to find that the previous owners had taken with them a beautiful crystal chandelier that had hung in the entry way and had been a particularly nice touch there. As I say, I was surprised at that but I was outraged when I also found they'd taken the garbage disposal with them, too! Isn't there anything I can do about this? — Ms. C. B. (Buffalo, N. Y.)

ANSWER: Run upstairs fast and check on the flush bowl in the bathroom!

Unless it is specifically spelled out and described in the offering, everything that is attached to a house is presumed to be a part of the deal. The chandelier sounds like the sort of thing that might have been excluded — are you sure it wasn't and you just didn't notice the exclusion?

The removal of the garbage disposal is absolutely ridiculous! Get hold of the real estate broker representing the seller and tell him to get that thing back in place, pronto!

(Incidentally, I had a case a few years ago where a seller — before surrendering the property — dug up and removed a 10-foot citrus tree.)

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I've been worried since selling my house about a year ago because it was a VA mortgage and the new owner just assumed my mortgage. A friend now tells me that if the buyer defaults the VA can come back and make me responsible for the mortgage again. Is this true? — Mr. P.L. H. (Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: Technically, that's quite true but, in actuality, you'll find such kickbacks pretty rare. I wouldn't worry about it.

Baird & Warner loses $101,000

Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors today reported a net loss for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1976 of $101,486, equivalent to 10 cents per share. In the previous year the Chicago-based real estate investment trust earned $533,885, or 51 cents per share.

John W. Baird, chairman, reported that the trust experienced its first quarterly loss in the fourth quarter, amounting to $353,808 or 34 cents per share, as compared to net income of $32,223 or 3 cents per share for the 1975 fourth quarter.

Baird attributed the fourth quarter deficit to a larger increase in the loan loss reserves in that quarter than in prior quarters. Increased loss reserves were required on certain loans secured by unimproved land due to continued development inactivity producing lower appraisal values, he said.

Lower net earnings for the year were largely attributed to a slower pace of recovery for construction and real estate investment than was experienced in the general economy.

BAIRD SAID, "A lingering mood of business caution, coupled with intensive efforts by developers to work out the problems ignited by the 1973-75 recession, put a limit on the trust's opportunities to generate new business."

Despite the lethargic pace of real estate recovery for most of the fiscal year, Baird said that efforts to resolve problem loans have produced some excellent results, citing the following:

- Quadrominium projects in Medina, O., and Aurora, Ill. that had been delinquent loans were fully sold out.
- A parcel of land was sold in Peoria, Ill., producing full recovery of loan principal and substantial recovery of past due interest.
- The debt on the main lodge of a major resort was restructured and the property is expected to produce a good operating income and a fair cash income return.
- In a transaction consummated shortly after the end of the fiscal year, the trust assumed the ownership of a major residential complex in suburban Glen Ellyn.

During the year the trust acquired and leased back, as an equity investment for $300,000, a parcel of land underlying an apartment project in Knoxville, Tenn., and committed to make an additional investment in excess of $1.5 million to expand and convert Green Bay (Wis.) Plaza, a major shopping center which the trust owns, to an enclosed mall shopping center.

BANK LINES WERE reduced by $15 million from $47 million to $32 million, Baird said. He explained that the action provides a saving in interest costs by reducing required cash balances held on deposit and does not impair the trust's ability to fund existing commitments or to seek and finance new investments.

The trust is deferring income recognition on 13 delinquent mortgage loans aggregating $12,923,932 compared with $9,652,034 at the beginning of the year.

Poor insulation in attic, loose windows waste heat

Inadequate attic insulation and loose-fitting windows can increase homeowners' heating costs, says Commonwealth Edison Co.

Yet, with a few well spent hours around the home this fall, heating costs can be kept to a minimum.

The largest single heat-loss area in your home also is the easiest to fix, says Edison. The attic floor should have insulating material up to the top of the floor joists or to a thickness of eight inches, whichever is greatest.

IF THE insulating material has settled, says Edison, you should restore its thickness with the highest R-value material available.

R-value measures the effectiveness of insulating material. Although it usually is sold by thickness, R-values help determine how well an insulating material blocks heat. Three inches of one material may be equivalent to six inches of another in this respect.

Edison recommends R-19 in the ceiling or attic floor and R-11 in walls and floors over unheated basements.

Another way to reduce heat losses is to install storm windows and doors. These will provide islands of tepid air between the heated inside of your home and the arctic-like outside.

IF STORM WINDOWS aren't available, tighten up your windows to make sure there are no places where the inside heat will escape. Many varieties of inexpensive putty-like compounds are readily available at most hardware stores for this purpose.

After seeing to the attic and windows, have your heating system checked by a reputable heating service. In most cases this involves only a few minutes at very low cost, but can pay big dividends over the long run, advises Edison.

The serviceman can spot unsafe conditions inside the unit and perform needed repairs. He also can make minor adjustments to assure efficient operation, which will help keep winter-long heating bills to a minimum.

During the heating season make sure all heat registers are kept free of obstructions. If your home uses radiators or baseboard units, keep them clean. Heavy dust buildup acts like an insulator and makes your heating system work harder than it has to — this costs money.

EVEN WHEN THE winter temperatures arrive there are other ways to help keep heating costs low, says Edison.

One way is to let the sun help your furnace. Close shades and draperies on the "shade side" and leave them open on the "sun side" of your home. At night, keep all drapes and shades closed to provide an extra insulating barrier to keep the heat where it belongs.

Adding a humidifier to your home also can help reduce heating costs. Adding moisture to the dry winter air allows thermostat settings to be lower without loss of comfort. Proper humidity also will help preserve furnishings, Edison says.

The utility also offers consumer guides for ways to save on energy costs. Write to Edison for a copy of "101 ways to conserve electricity at home," Commonwealth Edison Company, Dept. AV, Box 767, Chicago 60690.

Professors design home that saves on heating cost

A house whose heating costs would be only one-third that of one built with currently recommended construction has been designed at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Eighty per cent of the saving is from superior insulation. The rest is from solar heat through generous use of triple-glazed, south-facing windows.

The extra insulation and glass conserve energy, reduce the size of heating and cooling plants needed by the house, and cut the costs of winter heat and of summer cooling.

THE HOUSE was designed by Professors Wayne L. Shick and Rudard A. Jones in the UIUC Small Homes Council-Building Research Council. They call it the "Illinois Lo-Cal House."

Details are reported in SHC-BRC Council Notes, C2.3. Comparisons are with the 1974 U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Standards for houses in the northern part of the nation.

"If the Lo-Cal House is compared to the typical house of 1950, the savings are even more dramatic," the architects said.

Insulation features include:

- Heavy ceiling insulation, 12 inches, including over the outside wall, made possible by constructing the eaves (soffit) at ceiling level.
- Heavy wall insulation, 8½ inches by using a staggered double row of studs, one for the outside wall, the other for the inside wall.

The house also features improved floor and crawl space insulation with insulation both under the floor and inside the foundation wall, and triple-glazed glass areas, using standard windows with sealed insulating glass plus a storm window with removable screen. There is a complete vapor retarder, such as a polyethylene film or aluminum foil immediately below the ceiling insulation and on the inner stud wall.

Solar features include setting the major axis of the house east-west, achievable through a variety of designs to fit various lot locations. Roof overhang is designed for solar control, to keep the direct sunlight out in summer and allow a maximum in during the winter.

There are no windows on east and west walls, and there is minimal glass areas on north wall. Major glass areas are on the south wall to achieve a maximum of solar heating during winter months.

Six benefits seen by the architects include a low-cost heating system, low energy cost of heating, low-cost cooling system, low energy cost for cooling, favorable ratios of benefit to cost, and improved acoustic performance.

The solar heating plan is based on a study which shows the winter heat gain from south-facing, triple-glazed windows averages 200 to 300 BTU per square foot per day. The one-story Low-Cal House plan places 85 per cent of window area on the south wall, and in the two-story design, all windows may be south.

Sunlight through the windows heats interior surfaces of the house. The structure and furnishings absorb heat and warm the air. Insulation and triple glazing retain warmth in the house even after sundown.

Design of the roof overhang in relation to the sun's angle permits a maximum of sunlight through the windows in winter, and blocks off the sun in summer. From June to October, when shading is partial, use of awnings, drapes or shade trees which lose their leaves in winter is suggested.

Need more room? Install new boiler

If your house seems crowded and cramped, the answer to your problem may be under your feet. According to the Better Heating-Cooling Council, many people are looking toward the basement for an added room which can serve as a work and play area.

There is one obstacle which must be overcome for this plan to work — the bulky, unsightly, fuel-eating dinosaur, better known as the heating plant. The answer, advises the council, is a new, attractive and compact boiler.

Today's boilers are a far cry from those which were installed in homes 30 years ago. They take little space, and are available in attractive, appliance-styled cabinets. With a new boiler your basement becomes more attractive and your family will enjoy greater comfort at less fuel cost.

Housing starts up 23% over 1975

In the second quarter of 1976 construction of new housing units was up 23 per cent over a year ago, it was reported by the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

A total of 393,199 new housing units was started in the April-May-June period, according to the firm, an authority on the construction market widely known for its Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information. This compared with 320,501 units reported in the same quarter of 1975.

The figure for the latest quarter, after adjustment for seasonal variations, reflected an annual rate of 1.3 million dwelling units, unchanged from the first quarter of 1976.

"The long-dormant apartment market seemed finally to be awakening in the second quarter," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of F. W. Dodge. "Starts of multi-family units attained their best rate in almost two years, with the West and South Central areas leading the apartment recovery."

Of the 10 metropolitan areas leading the nation in new dwelling units for the latest quarter, five were in California and two were in Texas. In ranking order, the 10 key areas are: Chicago, 9,471 units; Houston, 8,752 units; LA/Long Beach, 8,406 units; Anaheim/Santa Ana/Garden Grove, 8,190 units; Washington, 6,677 units; San Diego, 6,348 units; Dallas, 6,173 units; Detroit, 6,042 units; Riverside/San Bernardino, 4,026 units and San Jose, 3,995 units.

Sneezing? Clean registers

If you find yourself sneezing more this winter, check your heating system, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council, especially if you have a system which uses fans or blowers. If the filters aren't clean, the blowers may be spreading dust along with the heat. Clean the registers. A hydronic (hot water) heating system is a sealed system, which distributes heat without fans or blowers, the council says.

Fuel use drop tied to new U.S. law on energy

For the first time since the 1973 oil embargo, many small businesses, universities, hospitals and local governments now have an incentive to effect energy savings measures that could substantially reduce the nation's annual fuel consumption.

A federal energy bill, recently signed into law extends the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) until 1977 and makes some $2 billion in loan guarantees available to various segments of the economy to install energy-saving equipment and material.

The government's concern for more efficient use of energy by the nation's industrial-commercial complex is reflected in recent studies that indicate that more efficient energy savings programs could save 3.5 billion barrels of oil or energy equivalent by 1990. This is $38.5 billion at current prices.

ON A DAILY basis, business and industry use 57 per cent of the total energy consumed in this country, or five million barrels of oil per day, more than the combined amount used for home heating and transportation. Yet of this total usage by business and industry 40 per cent is wasted.

Significant energy loss stems from buildings, industrial piping, duct work, vessels and related equipment insufficiently insulated, said George J. Haufler, president of CertainTeed Corporation, one of the country's leading manufacturers of building products. Haufler cited studies showing that insulation alone, if increased to optimum thicknesses, would save one-third of that waste with a substantial return on the insulation investment.

In the past, larger industrial concerns with relatively good capital funding have been eager to pursue energy conservation programs. But many small businesses that lack a strong financial base have been content merely to pass along energy costs to their customers in the form of higher prices.

The monetary incentives contained in the new energy bill should induce an increasing number of industrial operations to capitalize on the return-on-investment aspect of insulation, industry sources predict.

GOVERNMENT EFFORTS to encourage more efficient and economical use of energy has been aided by the development of computer analysis services by major insulation products manufacturers.

Such computer analysis service provides three basic categories of information. First, it suggests the insulation thickness needed to make an investment pay for itself in terms of energy savings for a specific time frame. Secondly, it computes the true value of a capital investment for insulation by relating present-day investment costs with anticipated increases in the cost of fuel and money. A third function is to alert businessmen to the amount of additional insulation they need to bring their facilities up to current energy-saving standards.

The availability of federal loan guarantees for energy saving equipment and material now provides the economic means to upgrade insulation to energy-saving standards.

Solar pioneer's home gets heat from 'greenhouse'

Harry Thomason is a crusading solar pioneer, father of perhaps the first economical system to heat houses with sunlight.

Thomason — wiry, intense and graying a bit at the age of 55 — lives in a four-bedroom rambling home in a Washington suburb that looks like it has a greenhouse on top.

That "greenhouse" is a bank of solar heat collectors 16 feet high and 60 feet long on the tall, sloping south roof. It provides from 75 to 90 per cent of the house's heat, keeping it a comfortable 68 degrees Fahrenheit even in freezing weather. Supplemental heat comes from an oil furnace, but even at today's high prices Thomason's winter fuel bill stays under $100.

THE HOUSE AND its solar heating system are Thomason's own design. Since that house was completed he has built three others in the Washington area, each better than the last. The newest needs only an oil-fired water heater to supplement the solar panels.

There are almost 200 other Thomason-designed homes scattered across the nation from Bend, Ore., to Colorado Springs, Col., to Woonsocket, R.I.

Some were built by individuals who bought the plans for as little as $25 through the Edmund Scientific Corp. Others were put up by developers who passed Thomason's rigid screening to win their licenses.

Royalties from the licenses, from the plans, from solar seminars and from books he has written bring Thomason an income of about $25,000 a year. But it was an uphill battle to get where he is today.

BUREAUCRATS AND industrialists scoffed at Thomason's inventions. Even today he is a controversial figure within the solar community, especially among advocates of more complex systems.

"At first the government disbelieved what Thomason was trying to tell us," William Hirsch of the Energy Research and Development Administration told UPI. "But as time goes on, it's beginning to look like he really has something."

Thomason's switch from Patent Office employe to solar pioneer began in 1956 during a summer thunderstorm at his wife's home in North Carolina.

Dashing into a barn to escape the cold rain, he felt warm water dribbling from the rusty sheet metal roof onto his head. The idea was born like "a flash of genius," he said. Run water down a sun-baked surface, catch it in a container and use its warmth to heat a house.

AT THE time Thomason, who held a physics degree from Catawba College in North Carolina, was supporting his wife and five children with his regular work and was going to law school at night. A rule barring Patent Office employes from applying for their own patents caused Thomason to switch to a job at the Pentagon.

Working weekends and nights, he progressed from dream to reality. In October, 1959 he and his family moved in.

That first heating system and, with refinements, those that followed were the essence of simplicity:

- Solar panels of black-painted, corrugated aluminum backed by insulation and covered by a single sheet of glass or plastic.
- A system to pump water to the roof, let it course through channels in the solar panels where it becomes 10 to 20 degrees warmer, and collect it in a 1,600-gallon tank in the basement.
- Twenty-five tons of fist-size stones packed around the tank to hold in the warmth.
- A fan to blow air across the stones and into the house.
- A revolutionary way to eliminate costly metal air ducts by blowing warm air up through the walls and out at ceiling level, then collecting cool air from between the floor joists.

Today Thomason reverses the solar heating process in summer to provide solar-powered air conditioning. He holds some 20 solar energy patents — more, he says, than any other inventor.

Thomason's was not the first solar heated house. But Thomason's designs are more efficient, getting a minimum 50 per cent solar heat in the coldest climate. At $4 per square foot of solar panel they also cost far less than competing models with double glass covers, copper or steel heat collectors had complex ducts that cost from $7 to $20 per square foot.

To stage talks on U.S. cities

Lecture grant to Roosevelt University

Roosevelt University has been awarded a grant to sponsor a lecture series titled: "American Cities — Then and Now, a Historical Perspective."

The grant came from the S & H Foundation, charitable arm of the Sperry and Hutchinson Co., best known for its S & H Green Stamps.

The talks are scheduled for Nov. 3, 8, 17 and 22, and Dec. 1. They will be presented at Roosevelt, 430 S. Michigan, Chicago in the Sullivan Room, at 7 p.m. They are free and open to the public, according to Dietrich C. Reitzes, Chairman of Sociology and Anthropology at Roosevelt, who organized the program.

PROFESSOR REITZES said that, although the American experience has contributed significantly to the welfare of mankind, urban problems have withheld these benefits from a substantial number of Americans. Too many current discussions, he said, tend to concentrate on problems as they exist today with relatively little reference to historical background. He said the proposed lecture series is designed to deal with current urban problems in view of events that led up to them.

Roosevelt University was one of 27 schools to win S & H lecture grants this year, out of 223 entries. Since the program was begun in 1960, over 500 grants have been made to more than 400 schools, totaling over $985,000.

Norman J. Yager, Zone Sales Manager for S & H Co. and based in Elmwood Park, Ill., said that his company's program was planned to bring prominent speakers to campuses and to help strengthen college and community ties by opening the talks to the public. He said that virtually every major school of higher education in the country has applied for lecture grants during the program's 16-year history. He added that to the present, the S & H Foundation remains unique in the U.S.

THE SPERRY — Hutchinson Co., now celebrating its 80th sear, is a diversified corporation of some 14 companies engaged in promotional services, interior furnishings, banking, insurance and retailing.

The program schedule is as follows:

• Nov. 3: "The History of American Cities," Dr. Harold Mayer, Department of Geography, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

• Nov. 8: "Urban Transportation Issues," Dr. Richard Michaels, Director, Urban Systems Library, University of Illinois, Circle Campus, Chicago.

• Nov. 17: "The Development of the Modern City," Dr. Brian J. L. Berry, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

• Nov. 22: "The City and Crime," Dr. Norval Morris, Dean of the Law School, University of Chicago.

• Dec. 1: "Urban Trends in the United States, the Third World and China," Doris Holleb, Director, University of Chicago's Metropolitan Institute, and Commissioner of the Northern Illinois Planning Commission.

Tips on correcting noisy plumbing

Noisy plumbing, like a faucet drip, can be very hard on the nerves. Moreover, it's more than a nuisance.

There are generally three types of noise, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says: water hammer, whistling and chattering.

Water hammer is the thump in the piping heard when faucets or valves are turned off abruptly. It can usually be eliminated by the installation of an air chamber or short length of pipe in the wall where each supply pipe enters the plumbing fixture.

Chattering is often caused by loose pipes, by pipes rubbing against a metal projection, by worn washers or looseness of other inside parts. A plumbing contractor can locate the offending part and repair it. Whistling is caused by the speed of water flowing through pipe that is usually too small. It's most common at bends and tees. A pressure-reducing valve will help.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

What if you owned a piece of property that you feel might be hard to sell for a price you'd consider accepting? Somebody else may own property they feel the same way about. Now, maybe that person rather likes your property and maybe you see some merit in his. The point we're making is that properties which are hard to sell can often be exchanged to the benefit of all.

There are other reasons why property exchanges are becoming more common. Tax considerations are important. The owner of property you want may refuse to sell because he doesn't want to pay a capital gains tax. But, he might be willing to exchange it, thus deferring the tax.

If this sounds complex, why not "Talk It Over" with us? We'll explain how property exchanges can work to your advantage.

Course offered at 2 locations

Real estate investment class set

"Investing in Real Estate," a course offered by the Chicago Real Estate Board/Hall Institute of Real Estate, will be conducted at two locations this fall.

The popular course, being offered for the third time this year, has proven extremely popular with both real estate salespeople and the general public. Topics to be covered in the course will include how to understand real estate as an investment, how to analyze and value investment real estate, how to shelter income through depreciation, how to select the right property and how to judge various types of real estate investments.

The course will be offered in October at Kendall College, 2408 Orrington Ave. in Evanston and in November at the Chicago Bar Association, 29 S. LaSalle in downtown Chicago.

Instructors for the course are Robert D. Abels and William P. Vranas.

ABELS, A graduate of the University of Illinois, is well-known in the field of commercial-investment brokerage. In recent years he has won the CREB "Salesman of the Year" award and was one of the first ten Realtors in the State of Illinois to earn the CCIM (Certified Commercial Investment Member) Designation, the highest professional designation awarded to commercial-investment members by the Realtors National Marketing Institute.

Vranas, who will be assisting Abel, is a graduate of Northwestern University. Before forming his own firm in 1976, Vranas was executive vice president of United Investors Realty. His field of special interest has long been investment properties.

The class to be conducted at Kendall College will meet Monday evenings 7 to 10 p.m. from Oct. 11 through Nov. 8. The Loop location course will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings Nov. 2 through Nov. 30 from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuition of $100 includes the textbook, "Real Estate Investment" by Robert W. Laffin, as well as all instructional material. Enrollment is limited to 40 students.

Registration forms and further information may be obtained by contacting the school office at 18 S. Michigan, Chicago, 60603 or by calling Marlene Goldberg at 236-4692.

Report to aid business executives

Business executives who must determine the replacement costs of their company buildings to comply with a recent Securities and Exchange Commission ruling will have an easy guide at hand when McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company publishes a new Dodge Research Report on "Manufacturing / Office / Warehouse Building Costs" in mid-October.

The specialized report's detailed listings for more than 500 recently-built structures are arranged so corporate financial officers, building department heads and others can easily find current cost figures that relate to their buildings and calculate present values.

Corporate executives, as well as construction professionals, can also use the data in the 288-page report to prepare budget estimates for new construction and renovation. The cost information is also designed for appraisers who want to evaluate existing structures for insurance purposes.

The report includes such data as the average building costs for low, middle and high quality constrction of different types of structures, the same cost figures for major components such as roofs, walls and electrical systems, and the percentage of the total cost that each component represents.

An index of 183 cities for making cost adjustments that reflect local labor and material prices.

Case histories on more than 40 buildings which contain costs of completed construction for comparison with contract award prices and identification of trends in actual costs.

Price of "Manufacturing/ Office/Warehouse Building Costs" is 7$2 prepaid plus the appropriate state sales tax. Purchasers may send mail orders to Dodge Building Cost Services, Room 2051, McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, 1221 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10020.

Tips on building solar collector

by RON HUTCHERSON

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — James R. Clinton, a college physicist who teaches a householders' course in how to build or buy a solar heating system, favors the simple solar collector.

Clinton, researcher in solid state physics at the University of California at San Diego, described building the "guideline" collector, which can be assembled by a home handyman.

A flat box with a window to let the sun's rays in, it contains a metal collector warmed by the sun and tubing through which a medium — generally water — circulates to transfer heat.

"This is not the best collector, it is not even particularly unique. It simply represents a design which makes good use of readily available materials and achieves good efficiency at low cost.

"It is the unexciting fact that the simplest collectors, made with the most common materials, are the only ones which will find significant application with the next decade.

"Four years ago, I started playing with solar energy at my own house. The thing I built supplies about 80 per cent of my energy for water heating and 50 per cent for space heating. It cost about $400."

The collector box must be made of material such as wood to withstand the elements since it is mounted outdoors to face the sun. The bottom has to be insulated to prevent heat loss. The top — the side exposed to the sun — is covered with glass or clear plastic.

Clinton recommends glass because plastic deteriorates during prolonged exposure to heat. He suggests three inches of glass wool for insulation.

The absorber plate is a metal sheet painted black. Clinton recommends 0.020 inch soft aluminum. The plate is sandwiched into the box between the glass cover and insulation, leaving a ¾ inch air space between the cover and plate.

Clinton said the "most important" step is bonding tubing to the absorber plate for good heat transfer since "nearly all of the absorbed solar energy must flow through the bond."

He recommends using 3/8 inch outside diameter copper tubing at four-inch intervals. Because of the difficulty of soldering copper to aluminum, he suggests forming grooves in the sheet and cementing the tubing in them with a metal or high thermal conductivity adhesive.

The configuration of the tubes can be serpentine, with one long tube snaked back and forth across the plate, or a header arrangement can be used. That requires a large pipe at each end of the heat absorber joined by smaller tubes crossing the heat absorber panel.

"The collector should be oriented toward the south," Clinton said. The precise tilt depends on latitude and the time of year the solar energy is to be used.

Once the necessary collectors are in place, they are connected with pipes to a hot water storage tank or the swimming pool or water heater being warmed.

"There are many factors which make pool heating the most attractive home application of solar energy," Clinton said. He listed existing pool plumbing and pumps, the absence of any need for a storage tank and the possibility of using plastic pipe.

"Heating domestic water is probably the best use of solar energy," he said. "Hot water is considered a necessity and can be supplied economically with a modestly sized solar installation."

For a San Diego type climate and average family hot water use, he said 15 square feet of collector per person can supply 80 per cent of the heat needed to operate a system in the 100- to 150-degree range.

The system also requires a storage tank equal to about 30 gallons per person. Water from the collector can either be fed directly into the storage tank and on into the home water heater or circulated through a heat exchanger in the storage tank.

"Space heating is the application upon which solar energy will have the greatest future impact," Cinton said. But he viewed it as less attractive economically and considerably more complex than pool or water heating.

He said guideline collectors can be built by the handyman for about $3 a square foot or purchased for $10 to $15 a square foot.

Include heating in home projects

No matter what type of home improvement project you have — finishing the attic or basement, adding a room, installing wood paneling, carpeting — you'll be dollars and comfort ahead if you include heating in your pre-planning, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council.

In nine out of 10 home modernization jobs, the council notes, heating is needed. When it is planned at the outset, it is relatively inexpensive. Later, the cost of installation is much higher.

If your home is equipped with hydronic (hot water) heating, it will be easier to expand the present system. Hydronics uses only small diameter tubing, about finger size, and it can be snaked through small holes to connect the new area with the existing system.

Before you panel a room that has old fashioned radiators, the Council suggests you replace the radiators with trim baseboard heating panels; otherwise the room will look unsightly.

Give plants plenty of room to avoid root competition

All parts of a plant respond to stimuli of one sort or another. Roots are no exception. Where there is moisture and plant foods, roots will naturally extend themselves in the direction of these necessities.

This is also true where two plants grow close together. Their roots compete for the elements in the soil requisite to their growth. This is one of the reasons why you should always give a plant plenty of space in which to grow. Adequate spacing of plants does not completely eliminate all root competition but it helps.

However, there are conditions under which rootw must necessarily compete if you want to make certain arrangements of your plants.

In the top sketch there are flowers growing beneath a tree. Now, this is usually not a good place to grow flowers, but if the tree is high-headed, allowing sunshine to reach the flowers, you can grow them beneath a tree. And, of course, in moderate shade you can grow a variety of flowers and ground cover plants. The trick in growing plants under these conditions is to furnish them with adequate amounts of moisture and nutrients, remembering that you are providing these for the well-established tree roots as well.

It's your landscape

by George Creed

ANOTHER PLACE where root competition is often intense is in the garden or border that has a hedge as background — as in the lower sketches. Hedges made of certain plants are more of a problem than others so far as root competitions is concerned: arborvitae with dense fibrous roots is one of these.

The sketch on the bottom left illustrates a hedge with its roots invading a flower garden. The sketch on the right shows one way to control the roots of the hedge. To do this dig a shallow trench on the garden side of the hedge. You will then sever the root on that side, but will do no harm to the hedge plants.

When you have completed the trench, place boards, sheet metal, slate or other material that will act as a barricade against the roots as in the lower right-hand sketch. Complete the operation by backfilling.

Questions and Answers —

Q. I have a tree with leaves that look like little fans. Can you tell me what kind of tree it is?

A. It is probably a ginkgo tree.

Q. Under my beech tree I find many empty seed hulls. Is this a sign that the nuts do not develop?

A. No, it's a sign that squirrels have been busy.

Stone fireplace provides home with elegance

In an age of look-alike housing developments the home with the distinctive decorative features immediately commands a better price. One of the most practical ways to give an elegant custom-decorated look to an ordinary room or home is to install a natural stone fireplace.

Today, a great variety of textures and colors in natural stone are available in pre-cut, lightweight rustic or modular shapes that are practical for use in interior construction. A fireplace and wall can be built into virtually any type of house. The cost is modest and the enhancement of the resale value of the home more than offsets the initial cost.

All of the natural stones — limestone, granite, sandstone, marble, quartzite, slate and specialty stones — offer the home decorator a variety of colors ranging from the pastels to earth tone, charcoals and jet black. Textures range from rustic to highly polished reflective surfaces.

There is literally no limit to the variety of designs used by decorators in creating elegantly distinctive stone fireplaces. Contrasting borders of polished stone are frequently utilized to dramatize the rugged texture of the basic stone used in the fireplace construction.

Good lawyers sometimes can go too far

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

One thing I have always emphasized in this column is the need for good legal advice. However, sometimes a good lawyer can go too far. The following letter is a good example.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have a real problem. Quite innocently my neighbor has been using my driveway for several years to gain access to his property. Apparently, the two properties were owned by the same person at one time.

He recently decided to refinance his house. He was required by the bank to have an official survey made, and they found the error. He plans to construct a new driveway, but in order to do so I must grant him an easement over the corner of my property. This easement won't affect my property in any way, but now let me explain my real problem.

MY FATHER is an attorney. He comes from the old school. He told me my neighbor has no right to cross my property, and if I grant him an easement he should pay me at least $10,000. My father has instructed me not to sign anything. He said if my neighbor will not do business with me, let him deal with the neighbor on the other side. What should I do? — BAD NEIGHBOR.

Your father is legally correct. You have your neighbor in a bind. He cannot do anything without your permission or that of an adjoining property owner.

However, there is one element that you are missing. Your father does not have to live next door to your neighbor.

You do! If, as you say, the easement will not affect your property in any way, you would be much wiser to go along with your neighbor and maintain a harmonious relationship.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My mother-in-law says this is the best time to take care of my lawn. She told me to reseed it and fertilize it. My uncle says I should wait until spring.

DO YOU HAVE an opinion? — LAWN BOY.

This is a very controversial subject. Everybody seems to have a different opinion. My opinion is that now is the time.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have a strange leak in my basement. I'm not sure if it's a plumbing leak or water seeping in from the outside.

Is there any way to find out without digging up the floor? — DRIPPY.

Plumbers very often use a dye test. Dye is flushed down the toilet. If the dye appears in your basement, you can be assured it is coming from your drainage line. If the water remains clear, look for another source.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I left my husband on amicable terms several years ago and went to live in Europe. I was away for approximately five years.

While I was gone, my husband sent me papers requesting that I sign over my portion of our house to him in case something should happen to me during my stay abroad. All the legal documents were enclosed and I signed them in the presence of a notary public.

The papers specifically stated that my stay overseas was temporary, and that my husband was to receive my part only if I were to die.

Now I have returned home and find that my husband got a divorce on the grounds of desertion. He sold our house and he spent the money. I don't want him back, but I surely would like the money. Since I am still alive, how was he able to sell the house? — NOTHING LEFT.

Hire a good lawyer. Your former husband had no right to sell the house. The new buyers do not have clear title. Most likely their title insurance company will settle with you for our share of the property.

Construction contracts drop in August: Dodge

Weakness in nonresidential construction left August contracts for total new construction 15 per cent below their year-ago value, the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company reported.

The latest month's contracts for future construction of all kinds totaled $8,504,665,000, pushing down the seasonally adjusted Dodge Index to 162, the lowest reading since last December. July's Index was 184 and is based on a 1967 index of 100.

McGraw-Hill Information Systems Company, an authority on the construction market, produces Dodge Reports on construction activity and Sweet's Catalog Files of construction product information.

"Like so many other statistical indicators that are currently raising doubts about the durability of the economy's recovery, construction contracts hit a snag around the middle of the year," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F. W. Dodge. "August's decline, following the hesitation in June and July, took a lot of the steam out of the upswing that had been taking hold in nonresidential building during the first of the year."

The Dodge economist added that housing, the latest month's only bright spot, "continued to demonstrate strength in the closely watched apartment market."

August contracts for nonresidential buildings totalled $2,536,345,000, a decline of one per cent from the previous August value. Over the past twelve months, contracting for nonresidential buildings had made a good advance, according to Christie, but the latest month's weakness erased most of that gain and plunged the nonresidential building market to its weak year-ago level.

Nonbuilding construction, by contrast, was at a peak during the summer of 1975, when the flow of funds through public works programs was temporarily stepped up as an anti-recessionary measure, explained Christie. "Without this extra push, the current August total of $1,869,023,000, for highways, sewer systems, and other nonbuilding construction, was much less than half the year-ago value."

Residential building value in August, at $4,099,297,000, showed a 45 per cent gain over the same month of last year. "Both apartments and one-family homes were sharply ahead, as the residential building market recorded its fifth consecutive $4 billion month," Christie said.

Kitchen planning exhibit at home, apartment show

General Electric and Hot Point booths at the Oct. 6 and 7 Home and Apartment Exposition in Rosemont will feature William J. Ketcham, CKD, Manager of G.E.'s Kitchen/Laundry Design Operation. He will be on hand both show days to discuss and advise attendees on their kitchen plans.

Attendees are invited to bring their plans to Ketcham for a little "free advice" on how to plan, improve, update their kitchens and laundries.

Ketcham has designed over 10,000 kitchens for apartments and single-family dwellings since joining Hotpoint's Contract Sales Department in 1955 in Chicago. He is a commercial artist with solid, practical experience and is known for the contributions he has made to the industry as well as for his confidence and enthusiasm.

Ketcham is a member of the Board of Directors of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers and sits on their Executive Council. He is also an Industry Advisor on the Council of Manufacturers. He has spoken to many local HBA groups, writes kitchen and laundry design articles for trade and shelter magazines, and as his schedule allows, teaches basic design to interested novices and old pros who want to refresh their knowledge.

A native of Chicago, Ketcham attended Northwestern Universisty and the Art Institute of Chicago. He received his commercial art training at the American Academy of Art in Chicago.

To get your "free advice," call the Home and Apartment Exposition office at 751-1075 for complimentary tickets, which are available to all bona fide members of the shelter industry.

New bathroom ends family fights

Feuding over the bathroom is a major cause of family friction, especially where there are two or more growing children.

Ideally, the solution is the addition of one or more bathrooms. Where family finances do not permit this, the answer is a shower stall, preferably with receptor tub. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out that a plumbing contractor usually can install a shower in the basement or attic, often next to existing pipe.

At one time, taking a shower could be a "risky business." Whenever water was being used elsewhere in the house, a drop in pressure could cause sudden dousings of icy cold or scalding hot water.

Today, according to Peter Warshaw of Powers-Fiat, a pioneer in the shower control field, there are temperature controls that enable the bather to select the temperature he wants before turning on the water. It then remains constant regardless of pressure changes.

Spray settings on modern showerheads include fine, medium and coarse, and the heads themselves are self-cleaning.

For free information on automatic temperature controls write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

PLANK BY PLANK, workers put up the beams for the Des Plaines parking garage at Ellinwood Street. The $1.2 million structure is scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

Army base sparked boom

Texas town grows 'outta sight'

KILLEEN, Tex. (UPI) — The town Earl Massey remembers was one of those small, dusty Texas communities headed nowhere, and no one particularly cared.

"Oh, occasionally someone would speak up at a city council meeting about bringing new business to town. But not much was ever done about it," Massey said.

"We' already had a couple of fine dry good stores—the Norman Brothers for one over on Avenue D — and they had just about everything the town needed. On one side was groceries and on the other side they had dry goods, ladies' dresses and men's suits. Even sold ladies hats."

A NIGHT ON the town: a root beer, a hamburger down and a Clark Gable movie at the Texas Theater, where Massey was the proprietor. That was 40 years ago.

"I think we all knew things were going to change the day we saw those strangers in town," said Massey.

The strangers were government surveyors. Things never were quite the same for Killeen and its 1,280 residents.

In 1942, the Army opened a training camp in the rolling black hills east of the town. Today after three wars, Ft. Hood is the largest armor post in the Western world. It covers an area one-fourth the size of Rhode Island.

AND KILLEEN claims a population of 42,000. Another 8,500 live in Harker Heights, a suburb almost swallowed up in the growth of the larger community.

"If you were to count noses tomorrow at 4 a.m., you'd find 120,000 persons in a 15-mile radius of the center of town," said Arnold Mathias, director of the city's board of development. "Boy, you can't sneeze at those kind of figures."

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the Killeen-Belton-Temple strip was the sixth fastest-growing metropolitan area in the country during the past five years. In Texas, it was No. 1, outdistancing No. 2 Austin.

"We've got lots of fresh air and lots of room to grow," said Dan Manfull, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. "And we plan on continuing to grow."

BUT THE OVERNIGHT growth has come at a price.

Today, the quiet, unassuming Texas prairie town of the late 1930s has become a military camp town. The city center is largely a collection of pawn shops, franchise food houses, used car lots, acres of mobile homes and the kind of businesses — topless bars and massage parlors — that cater to the GI dollar all over the world.

The Texas Theater is no more. Massey, who served for a time as the town's postmaster, is retired and the Norman brothers closed their doors long ago.

In 1975, Killeen police made 460 prostitution arrests. On military paydays, buses full of young women show up at the downtown depot. Police jokingly call them "The Dallas reinforcements," a supplement to the resident supply of call girls.

DURING THE five years that Killeen was becoming No. 6 in fast-growing metropolitan areas, the city's crime increased 32 per cent, the population 17 per cent.

"Comparing crime to population, our ratio is worse than Waco or Austin," Police Commander Bill Mangerich said. "It's outta sight."

More growth pains are in the offing, Mathias said. A growth rate of 25 per cent is forecast for the next six years.

City leaders have tried to alleviate some of the problems before they arise and expand the economic base of the city.

"THE MILITARY, well, it's like a large industry to us. Some cities — like Dallas — have Texas Instruments. We have the Army," Mathias said.

"But even though the military is here to stay, we would like to diversify the economy — bring in more industry and expand our tourist trade."

So far, there hasn't been much success. Industry has been slow in coming. More national hotel franchises and discount store chains are cropping up. But big business has shunned Killeen.

Killeen Daily Herald editor Gerald Skidmore says industries "just don't want to risk the chance that the town will drop back down to 1,200 should the military leave."

THAT ISN'T likely. Huge amounts of taxpayer money are tied up on the 217,551 acres of Army land: 4,000 buildings, 700 miles of roads, a $1 million a day payroll, more than $100 million dollars in current construction contracts.

"It would be awfully difficult to live here if you didn't like the military," Skidmore said.

Most do, but some successfuly fought an Army plan announced last March to add 59,300 more acres of farm and ranch land adjacent to the fort.

Most community leaders feel Killeen can be a showcase city of the future.

"So," said Mathias,"give us a little time, hey. We have a long way to go."

Downtown L.A. alive and well thanks to 'jewel'

by JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — This great drowsy giant of a town was described not too many years ago by a critical visitor, an easterner to be sure, as 77 communities in search of a city.

He was right in a way. Nobody knew where downtown was.

The 26-story city hall was the tallest building in town but it was squeezed in a rather scrubby area between Chinatown, little Tokyo and the Mexican commercial section.

HOLLYWOOD HAD the glamor name but it was nothing much more than the name. Beverly Hills had the luxuriant homes but it was the center only of personal wealth. Long Beach and San Pedro were teeming ports for ocean going oil tankers and freighters.

There was lovely Santa Monica and Malibu and their beaches. The great "bedroom" of the San Fernando Valley with more than 1 million residents alone. The black area included Watts.

The modest single residence homes of Whittier where Richard Nixon grew up. Century City with its towering office buildings, gourmet restaurants and Shubert theater. But none could lay claim to being downtown.

Almost overnight, it seems, Los Angeles has acquired a nucleus and one of its crown jewels is the most expensive hotel ever built, the $110-million Bonaventure which opens its doors around the first of the year in the Bunker Hill section.

THE AREA LIES roughly where Wilshire Boulevard finally ends after its long stretch from the Pacific. Over the past five years skyscrapers — most of them owned by banks — have sprouted up until Los Angeles for the first time has a skyline, nothing like Manhattan to be sure, but respectable when you can see it through the smog.

And the glue which may finally hold it together is the Bonaventure, a spectacular 35-story structure of five circular towers with mirror-like exterior and 12 light-festooned outside elevators leading to the 1,500 rooms and revolving restaurant and cocktail lounge in the center.

The Bonaventure will be operated by Western International Hotels, a subsidiary of United Air Lines, which already owns and operates such properties as the Plaza in New York, Peachtree Center Plaza in Atlanta, the Century Plaza in Los Angeles, the St. Francis in San Francisco, the Mayflower in Washington, the Crown Center in Kansas City and the Hotel Toronto.

The only other major hotels in the area are the Los Angeles Hilton and the venerable Biltmore. The Ambassador lies not too far away.

THE BONAVENTURE is not the largest hotel in the West. The MGM Grand in Las Vegas has 2,000 rooms and the San Francisco Hilton has 1,600.

But in terms of exhibit space and convention facilities — it has a ballroom seating 3,000 — it will be tops west of the Mississippi. Had it been built in time, Los Angeles might well have got the Democratic national convention instead of New York.

Green thumbs and blue ribbons go well together

When two neighboring garden clubs decided to combine talents and green thumbs to sponsor a joint garden show, it was only natural that the name of the show should be "Hi, Neighbor!"

Not only did the clubs, Arlington Heights Garden Club and Plum Grove Garden Club, share in sponsoring the show; they also shared the ribbons, each earning five awards in artistic classes.

More than 300 flower and vegetable buffs visited the show held Saturday at Frontier Park in Arlington Heights. In addition to ribbons won by club members in various classes amateur gardeners from everywhere took home ribbons in horticulture.

"Everywhere" included a contestant from Kewanee, Ill., who arose at 3 a.m. to drive the 186 miles to Arlington Heights.

Winners are listed on page 3 of this section.

In-store home economists aid food shoppers

by LISA PIASECKI

Amidst the product-packed aisles of some of Chicagoland's supermarkets lies a small consumer outpost. Consumer Service Centers, now located in 12 Chicago area Jewel Food stores, help the consumer at point of sale with menu planning, recipe ideas, nutritional information, shopping tips and suggestions for stretching food budgets.

Consumer Service Centers, staffed by qualified home economists, ar a relatively new idea. While Jewel has used in-store home economics in its Grand Bazaar stores for several years, consumer centers were not put into regular Jewel food stores until this spring, explained Sue VanDam, Jewel home economist.

There are now six full-time home economists in the Grand Bazaars and 12 in regular Jewel stores, including Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Barrington and Highland Park.

JANET ZALESKI, a University of Wisconsin graduate in home economics journalism, serves customers in the Elk Grove Jewel located in the Grove Mall. Dianne Hamilton, a University of Illinois graduate with a B.S. in foods and business, a master's in home economics education and a year's teaching experience, runs the Consumer Service Center in the Arlington Heights Jewel on Kensington Road.

Before beginning as in-store home economists, Dianne and Janet participated in a one-month training program at the main Jewel offices in Melrose Park. This involved learning about all of Jewel's operations such as quality control, organization, pricing, shipping and customer service. Their final training was under a resident home economist at one of the Grand Bazaars, where the trainees practiced all they had learned.

"When I began my first day here in Arlington Heights, I really felt that I had a good feel for what I would be doing on a day-to-day basis," commented Dianne.

THE CONSUMER Service Center, which serves as a base for the home economist, looks like a mini kitchen, equipped with microwave oven, small refrigerator, cabinets and demonstration table. The big coffeepot is always hot for customers to help themselves and the peg board exterior of the Center overflows with recipes, nutritional information and other helpful consumer hints.

Not all Jewel customers, however, know just what the in-store home economist does. Each day involves varied responsibilities, usually tailored to suit the particular clientele a store serves. During a five-day work week, Dianne, Janet and the other in-store home economists answer consumer questions, suggest menu plans, distribute recipes, demonstrate a variety of dishes and help the consumer in every way they can.

Demonstrations, for instance, are scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week.

These are designed to give customers new ideas, introduce a new product, suggest ways to prepare a particular food economically and nutritiously, and to inform and educate the shopper. Jewel feels a variety in the demonstrations is important so main dishes, breads, frozen food products, desserts, beverages, salads and appetizers are just some of the different products the home economists prepare.

SUMMING UP her job, Dianne explained, "I am responsible to both the customer and Jewel management, acting as a liaison between the two. I find out what the customer likes and dislikes about the store, bringing her ideas and suggestions back to Jewel, while at the same time trying to help her solve a particular problem, often explaining why Jewel's policies are the way they are."

Jewel reports good shopper reception so far.

DEMONSTRATIONS WITH their tasty results and practical preparation ideas are just one way Jewel food stores are helping their customers. Dianne Hamilton of the Arlington Market Jewel serves Mrs. Carl Miller a squash dish she has just prepared.

"I've even started building up a group of 'regulars' who stop by the center just to chat," said Dianne, "and I really like that."

Shoppers in the Arlington Heights store most often ask about food preparation, especially for crowds; special diets; food storage; recipe ideas; and menu planning. Many shoppers also make specific product requests and complain about food costs, said Dianne, who tries to help find nutritious and economical ways of menu planning and shopping.

"I REALLY ENJOY meeting and talking with the people who come to see me, and it's gratifying for me to see customers using the information I supply," she said.

According to Sue VanDam, Jewel has no immediate plans for further expansion of its in-store home economics program. Dianne, however, feels very positive about the entire program and sees good potential for it.

"As people are becoming more and more consumer-oriented, gaining stronger voices in consumer legislation, I see our job becoming more and more important in terms of informing consumers about new products and consumer legislation," she said.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Sitting long time makes legs swell

I am a woman 51 years of age and have a little high blood pressure but have it under control. My big problem is my legs.

I sit all day sewing at a factory. The calves of my legs swell terribly. I have been to a number of doctors. No one knows what it is. Also the hamstrings above my knees hurt. My legs are very tight at night. I lie down 10 minutes and all the swelling leaves. What could it be? I don't drink milk. Am I low on calcium or vitamin C or iron? I am overweight.

If you could help me it would be a new life for me.

I doubt it is a deficiency in your diet. And apparently you do not have varicose vein problems. Your history suggests that it is related to your sitting. This is an important point for many people.

When you sit with pressure against the back of the thighs and sometimes with added pressure at the edge of the seat of the chair, you press hard on the veins that drain the legs. The pressure can cause faulty emptying of the veins. It has been known to result in clots forming in the veins, for example, after long airplane flights with improper seating.

Your overwieght problem may contribute to the condition. I would suggest that you pay particular attention to your seat and make sure it fits you so that the pressure is directly on your pelvic bones with little or no pressure on the muscular part of your thighs. Also get up regularly and stretch your legs. Anyone who has to sit long periods of time would be wise to follow the same advice.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, as it may have some pointers in it that will help you. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I would appreciate any information you could give me on hypoglycemia. Is it possible that a person would feel worse when first going on a hypoglycemia diet?

Yes, you can feel worse. Particularly if you really don't have hypoglycemia. The diagnosis is made far too often in people who really have other problems, including anxiety, instead of hypoglycemia. I am afraid the diagnosis is often used as a wastebasket to label all sorts of ill defined complaints that appear to have no ready explanation.

The diagnosis should never be made unless it can be demonstrated that typical symptoms occur at the same time that a low blood glucose value is documented. Low blood sugar levels without glucose value is documented. Low blood sugar levels without symptoms during testing is not a satisfactory basis for the diagnosis. Symptoms, which could be caused by other things, without the low blood glucose reading cannot be used alone for a diagnosis.

Many hypoglycemia diets are low carbohydrate diets. The sharp reduction of carbohydrate intake to extremely low levels in normal people leads to loss of salt, water and chemical imbalance and may cause a person to feel tired, faint, or have a headache. If you don't have hypoglycemia and that is the diet you have been given — a so called high protein diet — that may be your problem.

Pests in furniture give reader trouble

Dear Dorothy: We're afraid we may have some kind of tiny bug in our upholstered furniture. We can't see anything, but we feel them. They might have come in at the window where the air conditioner is, but what can be so small that we can't see them? Do you have any ideas what might be done about it? — Mrs. J. Wehner

All one can do is theorize from the experience of other readers. Most often, this kind of situation arises from pets. Fleas produce eggs and when they hatch they attack not only animals, but humans. But this is also a case where you might have mites. While many claim success spreading walnut tree branches, or using oil of eucalyptus on balls of cotton tied under furniture, you may have to get professional help, or try what the professionals suggest: Spraying with products containing malathion, methoxychlor, ronnel or pyrethrum.

Dear Dorothy: We have a place in the country which we love. But the hard water in the dishwasher there does unbelievable things to glasses and such. How does one cope with this kind of water? — Ruth Mark Surprised you've never heard of the rinse aid used in dishwashers. It's the first thing to put on your shopping list.

Dear Dorothy: How does one get food odors and sticky food out of plastic containers? — Donna Mullin

Put such containers in a pan large enough to enclose the piece and let it soak in an enzyme pre-soak solution.

Dear Dorothy: When I make soup with a small chicken, Iadd, besides onion, carrot, celery and a tiny bit of bay leaf, a can of kosher chicken broth. Gives it that old-style flavor. — Eleanor Kowalsky

Food shoppers can support group projects

Two food store chains are scheduling benefit days in which shoppers who have special identification slips may present them to the cashier in order for a specific group to receive five per cent of their purchases. The groups will use the proceeds for their philanthropy.

St. Viator High School Mothers Club is sponsoring Jewel Shop and Share Days Tuesday and Wednesday at all area stores. Benefit slips are available at the school office, 392-4050.

Dominick's Day at area stores Wednesday will benefit the Des Plaines Woman's Club and Beth Tikvah Sisterhood.

Area NCJW donates books to libraries

West Valley Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, which includes units in the Northwest suburbs, recently donated a set of four books to libraries in the area.

They include Des Plaines, Niles, Glenview, Skokie, Morton Grove and Oakton College. The library at Northwest Suburban Congregation, Morton Grove, where the West Valley Section holds its monthly meetings, also received a set.

3rd ANNUAL ZINFANDEL SALE

"the great American Grape"

The only place in the world in which the Zinfandel grape is grown is California. Since its origin is uncertain it can truly be called "the great American grape."

Zinfandel varies considerably in quality and character, the best coming from California's coastal counties. It can be a wine of peculiar charm, zestful and aromatic with a raspberry-like flavor. It is essentially Californian in type and has the great advantage of being remarkably inexpensive.

They won blue ribbons

Created by Mrs. E. S. Reinhard of Arlington Heights, the arrangement, in a pale blue and gold vase, had a background of pale blue velveteen, and earned best in show using fresh material.

It was a whimsical mobile of bare twigs, nails and mums that won first place and best in show in creativity for Mrs. Nancy Manos of Arlington Heights. The design was staged hanging from an outdoor clothes dryer.

The show's "Hi, Neighbor!" yellow rosette went to Mrs. Beverly Ray, president of the Arlington Heights Club, for her class reunion buffet table. Also earning blue ribbons in tables were Mrs. Robert Wessberg and Mrs. Jack Kniecik, both of Palatine.

WINNING SPECIAL awards in the educational exhibits were Mrs. John Dols of the Plum Grove Garden Club for her display of stem, leaf and runner plant propagation, and Dale Schafernak, Palatine, for his bonzai display. Schafernak also won the blue ribbon in this competition. A 30-year-old evergreen, approximately 18 inches tall, was a show favorite.

Mrs. Dols earned a blue ribbon in the design class using fresh fruits and vegetables.

"Please Come In," a design class open to novices who had never won a blue ribbon in the artistic division, was won by Mrs. Robert Schoeberl of Rolling Meadows for her door arrangement of dried flowers.

Other blue ribbon winners in design classes were Mrs. Fred Dodge and Mrs. Joseph Koenen of Arlington Heights and Mrs. George Sheehan of Palatine.

THE AWARD FOR excellence in horticulture went to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haun, Arlington Heights, and sweepstakes for winning the most blue ribbons in horticulture went to Mrs. Leonard Wachsmuth, Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Wachsmuth will also receive a special award from the Garden Club of Illinois for winning five or more blue ribbons in horticulture. Also receiving this award will be Mrs. L. R. Zimmerman of Kewanee, Mr. and Mrs. Schafernak, Mrs. Dols and Mrs. Otto Becker, Palatine. Horticulture was open to all amateur gardeners.

AWARDS OF MERIT in horticulture went to Richard Teutsch of Arlington Heights and Beverly Ruprane and Mrs. Harold Kaiser, both of Reseda Garden Club. The aboreal award went to Mrs. Ted Samuelson for her buried branch of cotoneaster.

Young hostesses for the show were members of Plum Grove Junior Garden Club who served cookies and punch to guests. The young gardeners won a blue ribbon for their breakfast tray for a youngster recovering from an illness. Title of this class was "Sorry You Can't Come Out and Play." Also winning blue ribbons in the Juniors were Elizabeth Becker and Fred Haun, Jr.

Her hang-up won top creativity award

Winning decoration says "Please Come In".

Plants need gradual move indoors

Potting shed
by Mary B. Good

So summering outdoors is like Geritol for houseplants, you say? Drooping leaves revive, new health and vigor occur, do they? Plants double in size? But the so-called refreshing change of climate often creates more problems than it solves when the plants move back indoors again.

If you've left rare or sensitive plants outdoors, you have the soul of a gambling man!

You will find that the lion's share of problems occurring frm the process of moving plants indoors in the fall center on the following: failure to thoroughly wash plants free from insects before bringing them back in the house, exposure to cold drafts, moving into a hot, dry house without a gradual transition from outside, not enough light indoors, poor ventilation, erratic watering.

TELL YOURSELF you won't let a leaf in the door before you've grouped them all outdoors and put the garden hose to the lot of them. As much as it sounds like work, force yourself to remove debris from pots, trim off dead and damaged foliage and rampant growth that spoil the symmetry of the plants. Scrub brush the pots, then look over each plant again for insect hitchhikers.

Next, select a suitable spot (an enclosed porch is terrific if you have one) where the plants can begin to acclimate to the less-than-optimum home conditions they are soon to experience. Leave them there a week; this allows you to observe any developing problems, such as disease or insects. For heaven sake, keep those coming in from outdoors segregated from the plants that didn't spend their summer out of the house. You don't want to spread the plague!

TO MAKE EXTRA sure you're not bringing in bugs, submerge potted plants in water to bring soil-bore pests out of hiding. Foliage insects can be eradicated by bagging plants, giving the plants a dose of pyrethrin (ecologically-safe), according to directions, tying the bags and leaving the plants inside them alone for 12 hours before unbagging again.

Satisfy your houseplants' light and water requirements. (Check a houseplant care book for specific plants, if you need a refresher.) Clean off the windowsill for active service and dust off the Grolux lights and humidifier, if you need them.

Finally, this may help with the solutions to problems that houseplant buffs experience after the summertime hiatus. By the process of elimination, you can usually discover the most common cause of your plants' distress.

Leaves drop off the plant due to 1) insect attack, or 2) not enough humidity, or 3) not enough water, or 4) re action to gas or smoke, or 5) temperature in the room is too high or too low for the plant.

IF LEAVES BECOME yellow, brown or discolored, it may be caused by 1) lack of light, or 2) not enough water, or 3) not enough humidity, or 4) cold drafts, or 5) gas or smoke, or 6) insects, or 7) too high or too low a temperature. Brown leaf tips is a telltale sign of low humidity. Plants prefer moist air.

Plant stops growing (no new growth) may be due to 1) it's potbound, or 2) plant pests, or 3) it's crammed too closely against other plants, or 4) inadequate light, or 5 the room temperature is too hot or too cold.

Leaves grow in misshapen or gradually get smaller and smaller due to 1) a cramped pot and not enough food, or 2) not enough light.

Notice how the same old conditions seem to cause myriad growing problems! So, be aware of light, water, temperature, humidity requirements for a successful houseplant environment.

No carte blanche diet

by IRA J. LAUFER, M.D. and HERBERT KADISON

(Last of a series)

The keystone in treatment of diabetes is modification of the diet; in many cases no other measure need be used.

In a number of patients, however, this is impossible. Sometimes this is known at the time of diagnosis and in others it is not known until the sugar balance remains poor after some time on a modified diet. In these cases the physician must resort to medication to help maintain the blood sugar at a proper level.

Today, two kinds of medication are available for diabetes, and each should be used together with a diet that the physician considers satisfactory and with which the patient can live comfortably. There is insulin of various types and there are the oral drugs which assist in lowering the blood sugar.

IN THE CATEGORY of patients who cannot be controlled by diet alone there are also those who cannot be treated with the oral agents. These are either juvenile-onset diabetics or those whose diabetes showed up late in life but which acts similar to the juvenile type. These patients must use insulin or else they will progress rather rapidly into tetoacidosis and diabetic coma.

In 1950 it was discovered that the maturity-onset diabetic (the patient in which diabetes shows up at maturity) in most czses secreted insulin of his own, but and as yet unexplained defect prevented this insulin from acting normally. It was also determined that the juvenile-onset diabetic made no insulin whatsoever. This is why the oral agents may be effective in the maturity-onset disease, but ineffective in the juveniles.

The food one eats not only fills a physiological need, but also is essential to psychological health. The kind of food eaten sometimes demonstrates and provides status. It furnishes mental satisfaction. The desire for food when one is disturbed or worried transcends true hunger and metabolic need.

Since diabetes was discovered, physicians have attempted to control the disease through diets.

SINCE DIABETES WAS discovered, physicians have attempted to control

the disease through diets. Their prescriptions ranged from the ingestion of milk, cereals, starches, autumn fruits and sweet wine to outright starvation which then permitted only a miniscule amount of carbohydrate to the diet.

The basic reasons for dietary control are, first, a maintenance of the diabetic at ideal body weight and, second, some limitation of carbohydrate to keep the blood sugar within control.

Most maturity-onset diabetics, the great majority of the victims of the disease, are overweight. In many, a mere reduction in weight causes diabetic symptoms to disappear. According to the National Commission on Diabetes, the chances of developing the disease doubled with every 20 per cent of an individual's excess weight.

THE FIRST QUESTION to be considered is the need for dietary modification in all patients with diabetes. Although the question is somewhat controversial, it would seem that if a patient were to be at ideal weight and in good control, with no increase in blood fats and cholesterol, there would appear to be no compulsion to manipulate the diet. However, this is true only in a small percentage of patients. Most are either too fat or too thin and nutritional adjustments must be made.

Determination about diet should be made in consultation with the physicina. While for years it was thought that a rigid limitation on carbohydrates should be maintained, this is no longer in vogue.

The American Diabetes Assn. in 1971 stated, ". . . This allows the diabetic more dietary freedom but does not give him carte blanche to indulge himself in sweets and starchy foods. The emphasis now is in the balanced diet that will maintain the diabetic's ideal weight."

FOR THOSE WHOSE diabetes cannot be controlled by diet or the oral sugar-reducing agents, or both, insulin taken on a regularly injected basis is the only treatment, along with dietary restriction. The type and kind of insulin must be prescribed by the physician to take into account the specific needs of the patient. Some may take "regular" insulin while others may take either one long-acting kind or a combination of types. The routine is to be followed daily.

The oral hypoglycemic drugs may be prescribed in certain cases where diet alone is not effective or where the patient, for whatever reason, cannot inject insulin. These act in different ways to control the blood sugar.

In 1960, a study called the University Group Diabetes Program was started to evaluate the role of diet alone, insulin, and an oral agent in the treatment of diabetes. An unexpected result of the study, made public in 1969, was that in the group of patients taking the oral agents there were a greater number of deaths from heart attacks than there were in any of the other groups.

THIS RAISED A STORM of controversy and arrayed diabetologists into two camps — those who agree and those who disagree with the study. Even the retention of a prestigious data-analysis group whose report confirmed the accuracy of the data did not still the argument.

Thus it is up to the individual physician to determine the mode of therapy for his patient. Whether it will be diet alone, insulin combined with diet or one of the oral agents combined with diet, this is a decision which the patient and the physician should share.

The ultimate aim of all therapy in diabetes, however it is carried out, is the maintenance of a happy functioning patient who can live the kind of life he enjoys without having it cut short by complications.

Ask Andy

Anaconda, python closely related

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Leonardo Morris, 12, of Mexican Springs, N.M., for his question:

IS THE ANACONDA RELATED TO THE PYTHON?

There are about 2,400 different kinds of snakes, and they are all related to each other. Just as brother and sister are closer relatives than cousins, some snakes are more closely related to each other than they are to other snakes. The anaconda and the python are at least first cousins in the eyes of snake experts.

Anytime a group of authorities get together, one thing you can count on is that they will disagree on something. Many scientists that specialize in snakes say that the anaconda and the python should be in separate many believe they should be classed in the same family of snakes but in different sub-families.

The main difference between the two snakes seems to lie in their skull structure and in their methods of reproduction.

The variations of skull structure are difficult to distinguish unless you are a specialist. But the manner in which the snakes bear their young is easy to note. The anacondas produce living young. They have a running start at birth and can take care of themselves at once. The pythons, on the other hand, lay eggs, which they quickly abandon. When the young hatch, they are at the mercy of numerous predators.

Both the python and the anaconda are among the most primitive of living snakes. It is believed that their direct ancestors go back 100 million years. Whereas most snakes have only one lung and no trace of a hip girdle or hind limbs, the anaconda and python have two lungs and hints of the hip girdle and hind legs.

Another feature that these two snake groups share is that they both kill their prey by constriction — that is, they squeeze their victims to death. After the initial grab they loop their bodies around their prey and squeeze just hard enough to prevent breathing and circulation.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Jenny L. Foust, 11, of Kernersville, N.C., for her question:

WHAT EXACTLY IS A SPICULE?

Spicules are the tiny needlelike structures that support the soft tissues of certain invertebrate animals. Most sponges, which are water animals that attach themselves to the bottom of the ocean, have skeletons consisting of spicules. Some sponges have spicules made of calcium carbonate, while others have spicules made of silica.

The thousands of spicules in the skeleton of a sponge form an intricate structure and serve to keep open the internal passageways and pores. In some of the 3,000 or so species of sponges, thespicules are interlaced with flexible fibers of a substance called spongin. The pores or holes in the sponge's body come in two sizes. The smaller ones, called ostia, take in water. After passing through a network of internal chambers and channels, the water is finally expelled through the larger pores — the oscula.

(Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.)

by United Press International

Today is Thursday, Sept. 30, the 274th day of 1976 with 92 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American industrialist William Wrigley Jr., was born Sept. 30, 1861. This also is actress Deborah Kerr's 55th birthday.

On this day in history:..

• In 1846, a dentist in Charlestown, Mass., extracted a tooth for the first time with the aid of anesthesia — ether.

• In 1938, Germany, France, Britain and Italy met in Munich for a conference, after which British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain promised "peace in our time." That "peace" lasted 337 days before World War II started.

• In 1972, President Richard Nixon signed a congressional resolution approving an interim Soviet-American offensive arms agreement.

• In 1974, President Antonio de Spinola unexpectedly resigned, warning that Portugal was heading toward chaos. Also that day, the Senate voted to cut off aud to Turkey because of its invasion of Cyprus.

Hamlet handles it eloquently

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The fair Ophelia had gotten Hamlet into another duplicate game. Actually it was the important Elsinore Mixed pairs.

The first hand found the melancholy Dane in a normal three-notrump contract. West opened the four of diamonds. East won with the ace and led back the eight of hearts.

Hamlet soliloquized. "To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question. For whether 'tis better in the end to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune or to take the average plus score. Ah! There's the rub."

Hamlet would have had no problem in rubber bridge. He would rise with the ace, knock out West's king of diamonds and make four notrump. At match points he would make five instead of four if he played his queen of hearts and it held.

The match-point problem was not too difficult either. The three-notrump contract was very normal, but Hamlet felt that a heart would be opened at some tables. This lead would hold declarer to just three. While he would get two heart tricks, he would not have time to set up the diamonds. Hence, one overtrick would mean a decent score even if the heart finesse were on. Hamlet went up with his ace, knocked out the king of diamonds and tied for top.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Fresh Bartlett Pears

. . . delicious any way you serve them

Soon the countryside will be ablaze with color, but already Oregon, Washington, and California orchards fill the stores with Fall's abundance of fresh Bartlett pears.

Derived from a European variety, Americans enjoy Bartletts for their sweet flavor, thin skin, buttery texture and juicy goodness. Served out of hand for snacks, with cheese, or dressed up in an elaborate dessert, Pacific Bartletts will be at their peak of good eating until mid-October.

Bartlett pears always are picked green, but only after they have reached maturity. When shopping, choose yellow-skinned fresh Bartlett pears to eat within a day or two. Green-skinned pears may be stored in a paper bag at room temperature for a few days. When the fruit becomes golden-yellow and yields to slight pressure, it is ready to eat or may be stored for a short time in the refrigerator. Green-skinned pears also may be held before ripening in the refrigerator for a week or more, then removed to room temperature to ripen.

To keep fresh pears from turning brown, dip cut surfaces in lemon juice or a commercial ascorbic acid preparation.

The season for our juicy Pacific Coast Bartletts is much too short, so enjoy them while they're at their peak.

BIRDS OF PEARADISE

- 8 fresh Bartlett pears
- 1 bottle (one fifth) dry red wine
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 orange, sliced
- 1 stick (3 inch) cinnamon
- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
- ¼ cup (2 ounces) sweet butter
- 1 tablespoon Gorgonzola cheese
- 2 tablespoons pistachio nuts, chopped
- 8 whole pistachio nuts, shelled
- Melba toast, optional

Core pears, being careful not to remove stems. Pare pears. If necessary, remove slice from bottom to stand straight. Bring wine and sugar to boil; stir until sugar is dissolved. Add pears (upright), orange and cinnamon. Poach pears, covered, until tender, but still firm, basting frequently. (About 20 minutes.) Cool pears in wine mixture. Beat together cream cheese, butter and Gorgonzola; add chopped pistachios. To prepare each "bird"; slice top from pear about 1 inch down from stem. Spoon cheese mixture onto cut surface of bottom of pear; replace pear top for "head." Stick whole pistachio into cheese filling of each pear for "bill." Serve with toast or crackers, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

FESTIVELY FIZZY PEARS

- 8 fresh Bartlett pears
- 1 bottle (one fifth) champagne
  or
- 1 quart ginger ale
- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges
- 1 piece (2-inch) vanilla bean, chopped
- Cornstarch
- Sugar
- Whipped cream
- Chocolate curls

Core and pare pears. If necessary, slice piece from bottom to stand straight. Poach upright (covered) in champagne, syrup drained from oranges and with vanilla bean, basting frequently until tender but still firm, about 20 minutes. Omit vanilla bean if using ginger ale. Cool in liquid. Remove pears and vanilla bean from liquid. Measure liquid; add 1 tablespoon each, cornstarch and sugar per cup. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and clear; cool. To serve: stand pear in serving dish. Arrange orange sections around pear. Spoon on champagne sauce. Pipe rosettes of whipped cream on oranges and a swirl on top of pear. Arrange 2 more orange sections on whipped cream on top of pear; garnish with a chocolate curl. Makes 8 servings.

CRUNCHY CARNIVAL SALAD

- ¼ cup corn oil
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons light corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon onion salt
- 1/16 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/16 teaspoon curry powder
- 6 fresh pears
- ½ cup chopped nuts or peanuts
- 2 oranges, peeled and sliced
- iceberg lettuce cups

Mix together corn oil, lemon juice, corn syrup, orange rind, salt, onion salt; mustard and curry powder. Beat until well blended. Peel, halve and core pears. Roll pears first in dressing, then in nuts. Arrange 2 pear halves and 2 orange slices in lettuce cup on each of 6 plates. Spoon remaining dressing over all. Makes 6 servings.

PEAR BASKETS

- 6 fresh Bartlett pears
- Lemon juice
- ⅓ cup strawberries
- ⅓ cup green grapes
- ⅓ cup black grapes
- 2 tablespoons liqueur (fruit or mint-flavored)
  or
- 2 tablespoons sugar

If necessary, slice piece from bottom of pears to stand straight. Cut pears crosswise just above halfway mark; hollow out core, and a little of the pear pulp, top and bottom, leaving stem intact. Brush cut surface with lemon juice. Slice strawberries. Halve and seed grapes. Toss strawberries and grapes with liqueur. Spoon into pear bottoms and replace tops. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Orange slices, sliced bananas, and canned Bing cherries may be substituted for grapes and strawberries.

OOMPAH-PAH PEARS WITH SHRIMP

- 16 raw shrimp
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup corn oil
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- ½ teaspoon seasoned pepper
- ½ teaspoon dried basil leaves
- ½ teaspoon ground oregano
- ½ teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon onion salt
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
- 2 fresh pears
- 12 small tomato wedges
- Iceberg lettuce

Cook shrimp in salted simmering water to cover about 2 minutes, or just until shrimp loses transparency. Remove shells and veins. Mix together lemon juice, corn oil, seasoned salt, seasoned pepper, basil, oregano, sugar, onion salt and parsley. Pour over shrimp and marinate several hours or overnight. Drain, reserving dressing. Core and cut pears into 8 wedges. Arrange pears, shrimp and tomato in 4 individual serving dishes, lined with lettuce. Spoon dressing over all. Makes 4 servings.

BARTLETT BANDWAGON CHUTNEY

- 1 can (1 lb.) whole peeled tomatoes, chopped
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup white vinegar
- ½ cup dark corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon powdered ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/8 teaspoon white pepper
- Dash cayenne pepper
- 4 to 5 fresh pears
- ⅓ cup slivered green pepper

Mix together tomato, onion, raisins, vinegar, corn syrup, ginger, salt, dry mustard, white pepper and cayenne in large heavy saucepan. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer uncovered, 30 minutes. Peel, halve, core and cut pears in wedges. Add to tomato mixture; simmer 20 minutes. Add green pepper and cook 5 minutes longer. Cool. Store covered in refrigerator. Makes about 1½ quarts.

Season is ripe for rosy reds

If apple picking ranks high on your list of fall family outings, now's the time to head for the orchards. By mid-October, all four of American's most popular apple varieties, Red Delicious, McIntosh, Winesap and Rome Beauty, will be in season.

A quick glance at any produce counter now reveals an abundance of three of these favorites along with many other popular varieties.

Each variety of apple is not suitable for all purposes, however, something you need to keep in mind when picking or shopping. Apple varieties suitable for eating out of hand, in fruit cups or salads include: Delicious, Jonathan, Winesap, Stayman and Golden Delicious. Firm-fleshed Rome Beauty, Northern Spy, Rhode Island Greening, Winesap and York Imperial hold their shape well for baking. Tart and slightly acidic Jonathan, Grimes, Golden and Newton apples make great pies and sauces.

REGARDLESS OF THE variety chosen, look for firm, well-colored fruit. Pick mature apples, as they will have the best flavor, texture and storage life. Don't pick immature apples, characterized by a lack of color and abnormally small size; apples with shrivelled skin; and overripe apples, which feel soft to the touch.

After picking, apples will keep longest and retain the best flavor and texture if stored properly. Keep large quantities of apples in a cool, dark and airy place. Look them over occasionally, and remove any showing signs of spoilage. Smaller quantities may be stored in plastic bags and refrigerated to prevent odor transfer and shrivelling. Refrigerator shelf life may be one or two weeks depending upon the variety and maturity of the apple.

When picking apples in the orchard or purchasing them in the supermarket, choose just the amount you think you'll use in a reasonable amount of time. As a rough guide: one pound of apples equals two large, three medium or four small apples; two and one half pounds of apples will yield enough apple slices for a 9-inch pie or three cups applesauce.

BESIDES JUST tasting good, apples also are nutritious. Apples furnish nutrients important in promoting good digestion. They also contain calcium and some Vitamin A and C. Dieters will be happy to know that apples are also low in calories — 70 to 90 calories for an average apple.

Though the true purist may delight in savoring a freshly picked apple as is, with the many varieties available, apples can be used in many creative ways.

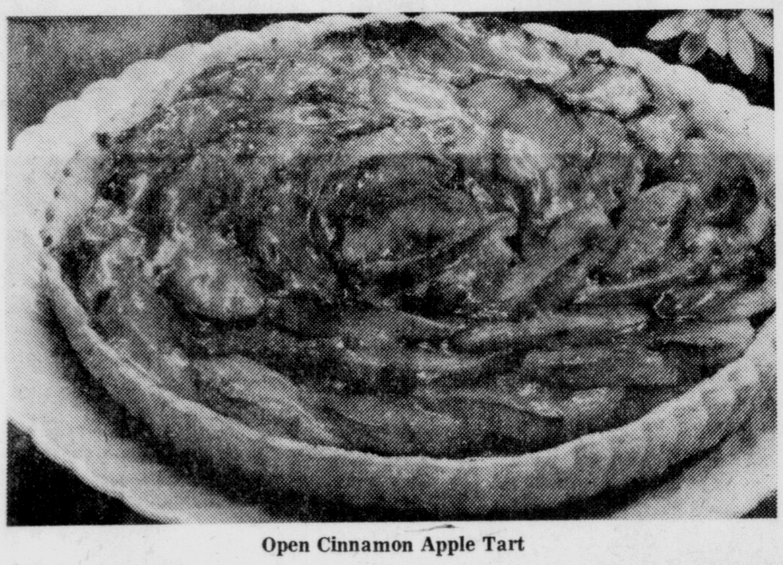
Open Cinnamon Apple Tart

1 1/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup butter
1 tablespoon sugar
About 5 tablespoons water
¾ cup firmly-packed, light brown sugar
1 tablespoon orange peel
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 tart green apples
2 tablespoons melted butter

In a medium bowl combine flour and sugar. With a pastry blender or two knives cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. With a fork stir in water until mixture forms a ball. Wrap in waxed paper; chill until dough is easy to handle, about 1 hour. Meanwhile, combine brown sugar, orange peel, cinnamon and nutmeg. Stir in lemon juice; set aside.

Roll out pastry 1 inch wider all around than a 10-inch quiche pan with a removable bottom or a 9-inch pie plate. Gently ease pastry into pan, pressing onto sides. Run a rolling pin over the quiche pan to trim the pastry flush with the top edge (if using pie plate, flute pastry to form decorative edge). Prick bottom and sides of pastry. Chill in refrigerator for 10 minutes. Bake in a pre-heated 425 degree oven for 10 minutes. Remove pastry from oven and reduce temperature to 350 degrees.

Arrange a layer of apple slices on bottom of the pastry lined pan. Sprinkle with half of the brown sugar mixture. Arrange remaining apple slices in overlapping concentric circles. Sprinkle with remaining brown sugar mixture. Pour melted butter over all. Bake in 350 degree oven for 1 hour. Cool to room temperature. If desired, glaze with ½ cup apricot jam heated with 1 tablespoon water until melted; spoon over apples. Slice and serve with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 8.



Open Cinnamon Apple Tart

Apple Smothered Pork Chops

6 center-cut loin pork chops, ¾ inch thick
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground sage
3 tart apples
3 tablespoons molasses
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cups hot water
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1/3 cup light raisins

Sprinkle pork chops with ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon sage. Brown chops slowly in frying pan. Reserve fat drippings in pan. Put chops in large, shallow baking dish.

Peel and core apples, cut into thin slices; arrange on top of pork chops. Pour molasses on top.

Stir flour into fat in frying pan; cook until brown, stirring constantly. Gradually stir in water and cook until mixture boils. Add vinegar, ½ tea-

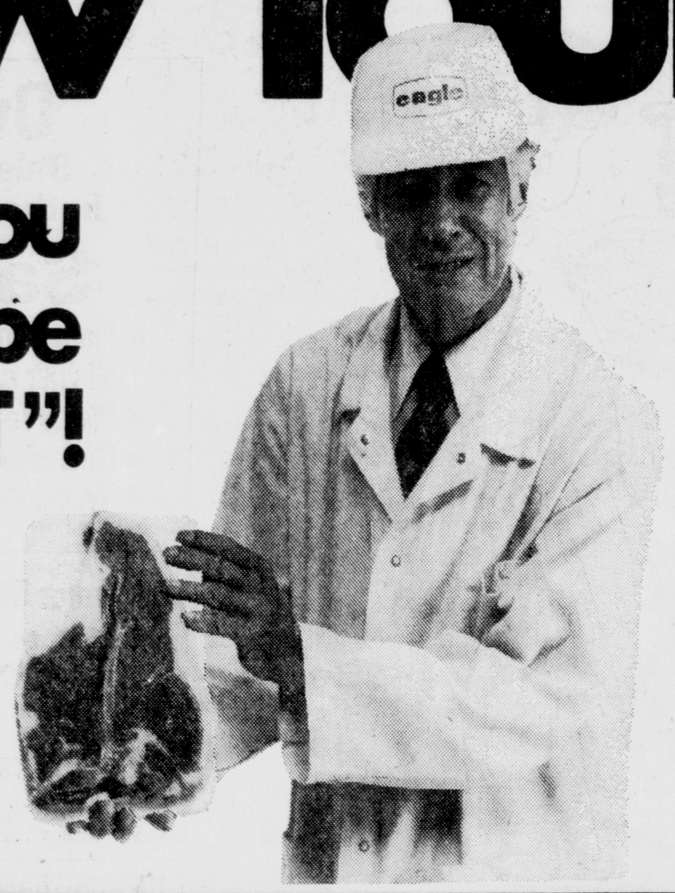
Know Your Value!

The meat you buy should be trimmed to a "T"!



Another in a series from Eagle's Value Checklist, designed to help you get total value for your food dollars!

A little extra time spent in Valu-Trimming each cut of Eagle Bonded Beef means greater economy . . . greater value . . . for your food budget!

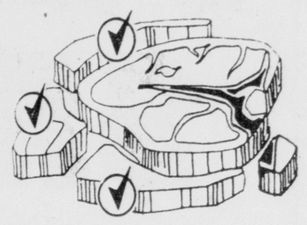
Eagle removes the "tail". Your steak weighs less. Costs less.

That's value the Eagle Way!



- Inner excess suet is trimmed to ½ inch. Just enough to assure you of tenderness and flavor.
- The "tail" section - tough and stringy - is removed. This really saves you money.
- The exterior fat is trimmed before the cut is weighed.

Shoo-fly's a fair winner

Terri Tatlock, a member of the Simply Smile 4-H Club of Arlington Heights, won the Demonstrator of the Day Award at the 1976 Illinois State Fair. Terri's demonstration, "How to Make a Shoo-Fly Pie," which appeared in The Herald as an old Pennsulvania Dutch favorite, won the blue ribbon.

A 4-H member for five years, Terri has been studying food and nutrition and food demonstration through the 4-H program. Terri became interested in cooking projects because she likes to cook and eat. When her mother worked, Terri prepared meals for her eight brothers and sisters.

Terri, who won two county judgings before going on to the State Fair, chose Shoo-Fly Pie as her entry, because it is a family favorite.

WHEN ASKED ABOUT the learning experiences the competition gave her, Terri replied, "The biggest thing I learned is to have confidence in myself. You need to have confidence to do anything well."

Terri Tatlock

n'" A freshman at Buffalo Grove High School, Terri is active in Forensics, The Gap, her church youth group, and Buffalo Grove High School's band as a flutist. Terri, 14, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stehmeier of Arlington Heirmts.

SHOO-FLY PIE

¾ cup sifted, all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon ground cloves
2 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoons baking soda
¾ cup boiling water
½ cup molasses
1 beaten egg
9" unbaked pie shell

In medium bowl, combine sifted flour, sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and ground cloves. Blend in butter with pastry blender or two knives until the size of small peas. In small bowl, dissolve baking soda in boiling water. Add molasses and beaten egg. Blend with wire whisk or fork. Pour one-half of the liquid into unbaked pastry shell. Add one-fourth of the flour mixture and mix with wooden spoon so as not to tear pie shell. Add rest of liquid. Spoon remaining flour on top. Do not stir. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 25 to 30 minutes longer or until lightly browned.

Milk and spirits pack real punch to delight adults of all ages

Milk, nutritious, delicious and great with peanut butter and jelly, is not just for the kids. Spiked with spirits, milk drinks with a kick have become the latest rage for adult entertaining.

Selected liqueurs, flavored with fruit, chocolate, coffee and nuts, will add a new dimension to the fountain favorites you make at home. Good news travels fast, and there are now numerous recipes featuring milk, sweet cream, sour cream, ice cream and a variety of spirits.

CAFE AU LAIT PASHA

Whip 1 cup heavy cream until thick. Add Pasha (Turkish) Coffee liqueur) and continue whipping until thoroughly mixed. Serve in champagne glass with short straws.

DUTCH TREAT

Whirl in a blender just until combined ¼ cup vanilla ice cream and 2 ounces Vandermint (a blend of Dutch chocolate and fresh mint). Serve in champagne glass with short straws.

AMARETTO MILK SHAKE

Blend 3 parts cold milk, 1 part Amaretto di Torino (Italian liqueur with a hint of almonds and apricots) and a scoop of peach ice cream.

OLD FASHION EGGNOG

12 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 quart milk
2 cups Bourbon
1 quart whipped cream
1 cup dark Jamaican Rum
Nutmeg

Beat egg yolks slightly. Add sugar a little at a time and beat until smooth. Pour in milk, Bourbon and Rum. Beat egg whites until they form peaks. Fold beaten egg whites and whipped cream into yolk mixture. Serve cold dusted with nutmeg. Serves 25 to 30.

CREAMSICLE

Combine 2 ounces orange juice, 1 ounce sweet cream, 1¼ ounces Sabra (Jaffa orange liqueur with a hint of chocolate) and blend well. Strain over crushed ice.

FIVE BICENTENNIAL AMERICAN EAGLE RUGS (2' 10" x 4' 4") TO BE GIVEN AWAY FREE. COME IN AND REGISTER. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

200 years at the same location.

All items on sale Thursday, September 30, thru Wednesday, October 6, 1976 unless otherwise indicated.

Dominick's FINER FOODS

Apple dishes to please everyone

spoon salt and raisins.

Pour sauce over apples and pork chops. Cover and bake in pre-heated 350 degree oven for about an hour or until tender. Serves 6.

Autumn Apple Bread

2/3 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teasopon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups coarsely grated, peeled raw pie apples
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
2/3 cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar until light and fluffy; beat in eggs. Sift next 4 ingredients. Add alternately with apple to creamed mixture. Stir in lemon rind and nuts. Bake in floured, greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan in preheated 350 degree oven for approximately 40 to 50 minutes. Cool before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

Thoughts about bread span ages

by Jarvis Rice

You wouldn't think you could get a feeling of importance from eating a slice of white bread, would you? But in medieval times the people thought they could because white bread was a symbol of wealth and power. Dark bread was for the poor, but the poor were the rich in this case because the dark bread was more nutritious. That's not necessarily so anymore since most white bread is now enriched. Bread, the staff of life has always offered food for thought. The Roman Senators of Caesar's day, contended that "Bread and the Circus" were all the hoi polloi needed, but an ancient proverb argues that man also has spiritual wants to fulfill for "Man cannot live by bread alone."

Man might try grits, peanuts or peaches, all making headlines these days thanks to a Southern Democratic Presidential nominee. But it wasn't very peachy news for the Georgia candidate when he sent a bushel of peaches to each of the national convention delegates to remind them of his state of origin. The peaches were plainly marked as coming from South Carolina!

It was gloomy news over in Teignmouth, England, when the local brewery discontinued making beer. Pub regulars were so upset they placed an obituary in the newspaper to mark its demise.

* * *

St. Thomas Aquinas' appetite once made news. The Italian scholastic philosopher with the legendary love for food became so fat that he couldn't reach his plate. He solved his problem, however, by sawing out a semicircle in his dining table.

If that story's true, Aquinas' food bill must have been high. Yours, too? Maybe one of the reasons is today's do-it-yourself beauty remedy craze. Women are giving themselves a peaches-and-cream complexion with fruits, vegetables and herbs. One homemade cleanser consists of a mixture of honey, egg white and oatmeal. Another is peaches, mashed bananas and olive oil. Or try giving your face a "mayonnaise skin snack," recommended by models. Another natural remedy is cider vinegar and grapefruit juice. Out of grapefruit? Use lemon or watermelon juice. Was the Italian tenor Enrico Caruso being prophetic when he said: "Watermelon is a good fruit. You eat, you drink, you wash your face." Next time you wind up with egg on your face, look in the mirror. It may have enhanced your beauty!

No fuss skirt steak tastes good

(Editor's Note: This is Joyce Zeller's last column for the Working Woman.)

It's true that one of the basic principles of this column has been cooking two meals at a time, using the same basic meat. We get out of the kitchen a lot faster that way.

I realize, however, that you can't feed your family something you cooked the night before forever. Once in awhile you have to cook from scratch just to keep things interesting. Let's agree, though, that this should be something fast and simple so we don't end up with a lot of pots and pans.

THE RECIPES I have today use skirt steak, and parsnips, a vegetable which might be unfamiliar to some of you. Parsnips are delicious so do be sure to include them. Don't worry about how the family is going to react. Just tell them that since you've been working, you're a more interesting person, and you need to cook new things.

The working woman cooks
by Joyce Zeller

Or tell them what I tell my kids. . . that I have no intention of raising a bunch of gastronomically unsophisticated clods who are going to embarrass me by ordering a cheeseburger in a Chinese restaurant.

TRY TO FIND prime skirt steak for this recipe. This is a rich cut of meat so a quarter pound will be plenty for each person. Skirt steak is boneless, cut in strips and run through a tenderizer.

Parsnips look like white carrots and are sold in the produce section of the supermarket. They are usually waxed, so you'll have to peel them with a vegetable peeler before cooking them. Parsnips have a sweet, mild flavor and they are well worth eating, because they contain calcium and vitamins A and C.

CHINESE SKIRT STEAK

1½ pounds prime skirt steak, cut in 2 inch strips.
1 bottle Kikkoman soy sauce (small)
1 teaspoon garlic powder
4 medium tomatoes cut in wedges
4 medium bell peppers cut in strips
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
¼ cup oil
1 beef bouillon cube
1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with ½ cup water.

Moisten meat well with all the soy sauce. Pierce with a fork. Sprinkle with garlic powder and allow to marinate in shallow dish until parsnips are cooked, about 20 minutes. Saute peppers and onions in oil until tender. Remove. Saute meat over medium heat until just medium rare. Remove from pan. Add any soy sauce marinade that is left to pan with crushed bouillon cube and enough water to make about 1 cup broth. While stirring constantly over low heat, add cornstarch mixture a little at a time until you have a transparent gravy. Return meat and vegetables to pan along with tomatoes. Stir to heat and serve with buttered parsnips, and hard rolls or rice. Serves 6.

PARSNIPS

Allow one medium parsnip per person. Peel. Slice into half inch rounds like carrots. Simmer in as little water as possible until tender, about 20 minutes. Add butter, salt and serve.

Joyce Piazza

Cooks zesty Italian favorites

by LOIS SEILER

Joyce Piazza is living proof that you don't have to BE Italian to cook like one! Although her husband, Tom, is of Italian descent, there are no Italian ancestors in Joyce's background, yet she loves Italian food.

One of her favorite culinary pastimes is experimenting with Italian dishes. By testing and tasting, she devised her own recipes for pizza, Italian spaghetti sauce, manicotti and Italian sausage with peppers which have won accolades among her family and friends.

PREFERRING RECIPES that are easy to make yet full of flavor, Joyce makes a simple pizza using a packaged hot roll mix for the crust. Her sauce is mildly flavored with parsley, basil, garlic and oregano.

Because her three children like pizza plain, Joyce uses Romano and Mozzarella cheese generously. However, other ingredients such as mushrooms, green pepper, onions, pepperoni or cooked Italian sausage may be added to the topping.

"The crust is firm yet soft, and with all the cheese it melts in your mouth," Joyce said. She serves it as an evening snack or for Sunday night supper, and it makes a big hit with children and adults.

ANOTHER SIMPLE yet savory supper is Joyce's Sausage with Peppers. This combines mild Italian sausage, onion and green pepper in a tomato sauce. It is spooned onto French bread or submarine rolls and served with a salad or relish tray. This is a hearty sandwich and excellent for casual entertaining.

Joyce's spaghetti sauce is full-bodied and flavorful. Basil, bay leaves, parsley and garlic are used as seasonings in the tomato sauce in which she simmers large, tasty meat balls and Italian sausage. Even the meat balls include Italian seasonings, plus onion and cheese.

The recipe makes a large quantity and will serve 10 to 12. She uses it for big gatherings, or when making spaghetti sauce for the family, she will often freeze half. The sauce can be served over spaghetti or any pasta.

SOMETIMES JOYCE fills manicotti shells with a well-seasoned Ricotta mixture and bakes them in the spaghetti sauce, serving the meat balls and sausage on the side.

"Fresh cheese, Romano, Parmesan and Ricotta, is essential to exceptional flavor in all Italian dishes," Joyce emphasizes.

With the spaghetti and manicotti dinners she recommends as Italian salad and garlic bread as accompaniments. For dessert, Joyce suggests something light, such as gelatin whipped with ice cream.

The Piazzas moved from Westfield, N.Y., to Mount Prospect two years ago. Joyce belongs to the Mount Prospect Newcomers and gourmet group. In her spare time she enjoys sewing, swimming and tennis.

PIZZA

1 small onion, minced
1 teaspoon butter
2 cans (8 ounce size) tomato sauce
Pinch of parsley
Pinch of basil
Pinch of garlic powder
Pinch of oregano
Pinch of sugar
¼ pound freshly-grated Romano cheese
½ pound freshly-grated Mozzarella

Everyone can cook Italian; just follow directions

Mushrooms, green peppers, onion, pepperoni or cooked Italian sausage, if desired

Prepare hot roll mix according to directions for cloverleaf rolls. Let rise according to directions.

Prepare the sauce by sauteing the onion in butter. Add tomato sauce and all the seasonings. Let simmer for 20 minutes.

After dough has risen, knead it a little and stretch it into a lightly-oiled large, round pizza tin or 14 by 18 inch tin. Cover pan completely.

Spread sauce over the dough, sprinkle with a little more oregano and the Romano cheese. Any other toppings may be placed on top. Bake at 450 degrees 15 to 20 minutes. The last five minutes, sprinkle on Mozarella cheese. Serves 5 to 6.

SAUSAGE AND PEPPER

3 pounds mild Italian sausage
1 large sweet onion, sliced in rings
1 dozen green peppers, sliced in strips
1 large can Italian bell tomatoes
1 8 ounce can tomato sauce
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste.

Cut sausage in 4 to 5-inch pieces. Brown slowly in Dutch oven until partially done. Remove sausage and drain off some of the liquid.

Add onions and green pepper to liquid in pan. Saute until partially tender. Return sausage to pan and add bell tomatoes (plus any over-ripe tomatoes you may have on hand) and season to taste. Add tomato sauce and stir to mix well. Cook, covered, until sausage is done; about 15 minutes more. Serve on French bread cut to fit size of sausage, or submarine rolls. Serves 6 to 8.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI SAUCE

Meat balls:
3 pounds ground chuck
1 medium onion, minced
Salt and pepper to taste
2 to 4 pieces dry bread, grated
1 teaspoon parsley
1 teaspoon basil
Garlic powder to taste
Salt and pepper
¼ cup freshly grated Romano or Parmesan cheese

ITALIAN SAUSAGE, green peppers, mushrooms, and fresh Romano and Mozarella cheeses make Joyce Piazza's pizza a family and company favorite.

1 or 2 eggs
1 pound mild Italian sausage, cut in 3-inch pieces

Mix together ground chuck, onions and salt and pepper to taste.

Make a bread crumb mixture by mixing together grated bread, parsley, basil, garlic powder, salt, pepper and cheese. Add to meat mixture. Add 1 or 2 eggs to moisten mixture; mix well.

Form into meat balls about 2 to 2½-inches in diameter. Brown in skillet. Brown Italian sausage. Remove and drain meat balls and sausage on paper towels. (The important thing is to achieve a pork flavor; thus spareribs or pork butt may be substituted for the sausage, if desired.)

Sauce:
2 to 3 large cans tomato sauce
1 large can tomato puree
1 8 ounce can tomato paste
3 cups water
2 bay leaves
Salt
Dash of pepper
2 teaspoons dried parsley
2 teaspoons basil
Garlic powder to taste
Pinch of sugar

Combine tomato sauce, puree, paste and water in a large saucepan. Mix together over low heat until blended and a medium-thick consistency. Add remaining ingredients and stir until blended. Add meat balls and sausage and let simmer over low heat, partially covered, for two hours. Serve over spaghetti or any other pasta.

To make stuffed manicotti, prepare above sauce. Cook manicotti shells five minutes and drain. Prepare the following ingredients:

2½ pounds Ricotta cheese
Pinch of basil
Pinch of parsley
Romano cheese, to taste
Salt and pepper
1 egg

Combine ingredients and fill manicotti shells. Pour a little sauce into the bottom of a 9x13-inch casserole. Arrange filled shells and pour sauce over the top. Sprinkle with grated Romano and bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve with meat balls and sausage on the side.

Carpet is such a major purchase for the home that we believe you would want to know why we consider Berven Of California "better carpet"
Very likely Berven of California carpet will first catch your eye through its rich clarity of color and the distinctive way it is used in subtle blends and combinations. You may next be attracted by the many unusual yarn variations and textures used in a above-average yarn weight to assure superior resilience and a more luxuriant softness.
What you might not immediately see, however, is the attention devoted by this Mill to technical details of manufacture so necessary for textural life, color integrity and long lasting carpet beauty. These are the qualities that with each passing year will make you so pleased you insisted on Berven quality . . . for a carpet handsome to the sight and touch provides lasting satisfaction. It isn't that Berven of California alone produces this caliber of carpet, but that they do so with such reliable consistency.
You'll be as convinced as we . . . with Berven it's simply the way of doing things.
